POSTAL DISPUTE CORE ISSUE

Cabinet Holds Crisis Session

Resignation Rumors Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—An emergency cabinet meeting was under way today with the Montreal postal dispute the prime topic.

Reports that a resignation from the cabinet might result centred upon Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, who was at the meeting.

MACKASEY
. . . standing firm

Mackasey quickly squelched them as he emerged from the meeting briefly. Asked whether there was any truth to reports of his impending resignation, he replied:

"None at all."

Was he ready to quit?

"Not in the least."

Mr. Mackasey added that "it was an unfortunate rumor."

One informant said he expects that the government will reverse its acceptance of the recommendation of mediator H. Carl Goldenberg that Montreal mail truck drivers be incorporated into the public service. The proposal has been rejected by the drivers because it would cost them their membership in the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

PM BACK FROM HOLIDAY

The cabinet was believed ready to have the mail hauled by a single contractor after calling for public tenders.

However, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans' office said the Goldenberg report is being implemented.

Prime Minister Trudeau went to the meeting shortly after arriving back in Ottawa early this morning from a skiing vacation in British Columbia.

Speculation about possible resignations was rife as word came out about the meeting. One source said the possibility that some minister would submit a resignation, depending on what decision the cabinet reached, was not improbable.

Mackasey and Kierans have headed two cabinet factions with different ideas on how the Montreal postal snarl should be resolved.

Meanwhile, postal deliveries were made to all sections of Montreal today as rented trucks handled mail for the third consecutive day since the government took over the service.

Post office officials said the rented vehicles are doing "just more than 50 per cent" of the work previously provided by a private contractor.

The two-month postal dispute has cost the post office about $3,000,000.

Violence erupted in the dispute again Thursday afternoon when six trucks and an escorting security car were attacked and one man was injured.

SEARCH PRESSED FOR SICK BABY

Times News Services

KINGSTON — Search for the newborn baby snatched early Thursday from hospital here goes on today as doctors expressed concern for the infant. The baby girl is suffering a possibly fatal blood disease and Dr. D. J. Delahaye said he believed she urgently needed a blood transfusion.

Toronto lawyer W. Glen How, general counsel for the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect of which the mother is a member, said he had been told by "a competent, medically-trained person" that the baby is doing well.

The baby was born Wednesday in Smith Falls, 55 miles north of here to Mrs. Antonius Dewall, 22.

Breath Law Appeal Filed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Attorney-General's department today filed an appeal with the B.C. Court of Appeals against a judgment handed down Thursday by a B.C. Supreme Court judge declaring null and void the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

No date was announced for hearing the appeal.

City Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said there is no change in the law as far as B.C. is concerned except that it is no longer an offence to refuse to take a breath test.

In Ottawa, Justice Minister John Turner said the federal government will defend the law in the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary.

Technically, the landmark ruling of Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe is effective only in B.C. but, as Attorney-General Edgar Gerhard of Alberta put it, it will have a "persuasive effect" elsewhere.

In other words, if defence lawyers in other provinces cite the judgment, selling fast here at $1.20 a copy, judges would consider it, although they would not be bound by it.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Thursday instructions have been sent to police throughout the province to revert to the former method of charging drivers with impaired driving rather than with violation of the federal law which makes it an offence to drive with a breathalyzer reading in excess of .08.

OTHER CHARGE

Peterson stressed there will be no loosening of the police effort to keep drinking drivers off the road.

Lady Luck Smiles On Drinker

By NEILL GADDES

Call it a lucky break:

An 18-year-old who was to be sentenced this morning for driving while his blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent reversed his guilty plea on the advice of Judge William Ostler and had his case dismissed.

"You have pleaded guilty to Section 224 of the Criminal Code," Ostler told John M. Soan, 315 Alder, but added in view of the "landmark decision" in Vancouver the section is "a nullity."

NULL AND VOID

Ostler was referring to the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling Thursday that declared null and void, at least in B.C., the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

The section had been in effect since Dec. 1 of last year.

"The legal implications are probably not known to you but I advise you to withdraw your plea of guilty and enter a plea of not guilty," Ostler said, noting that the accused was undefended.

Soan took the advice and the case was dismissed.

He had originally pleaded guilty March 24 to having a blood-alcohol content of .11 per cent when he was involved in an accident near Rockland and Cook March 23.

But Harold S. Andrews, 57, of Vancouver, was not as lucky:

NOT AS LUCKY

He asked Ostler, before entering a plea to an impaired driving charge, whether the Vancouver decision would have any bearing in his case.

"Hope springs eternal but I'm afraid not," the judge replied, adding that it was a good question.

Andrews pleaded guilty, was fined $350 and had his licence suspended.

Capital Budget Hiked; Voting Date April 30

By JIM HUME

It took city council two hours Thursday to tell Mayor Courtney Haddock's special budget committee it had cut capital project proposals too much.

It took the same aldermen only a few minutes to tell the mayor they disapproved of public statements published Thursday in which Haddock forecast defeat of capital budget vote set for April 30.

The mayor cheerfully agreed to re-insert in the five-year capital program $523,000 to revamp and replace city maintenance sheds at Garbally Road and $220,000 as a Phase One move towards a fire fighting training centre.

The extra $743,000 pushed the capital budget total from $5,570,000 to $6,313,000.

DENIES REPORT

Haddock denied telling the Colonist that the fall would be a better time to hold the budget. And he suggested that his forecast of defeat for an April vote had been taken out of context.

Ald. Harold Olafson was the first to ask Haddock about morning reports regarding the budget.

"We had an informal meeting in the alderman's lounge and we all agreed that April 30 was the best, not the fall," Olafson said.

"I didn't say the fall," replied Haddock.

Ald. Clyde Savage said he couldn't see too much point in pushing for April 30 "if you are openly against it . . . we'll be defeated before we start."

"Let's forget the press report," said Haddock.

"I can't forget," answered Savage. "I'm in favor of getting this thing through but I can't see how we can do that from what I read this morning."

LACK OF FACTS

"Are you against holding the vote now because of lack of facts or because of what I said?" asked Haddock. "One is important, the other isn't."

And he again urged Savage to take no notice of what had been reported in the morning newspaper.

The five-year program itself, pared from more than $8 million to $5.5 million ran into its own troubles from a council strangely divided after earlier pledges of unanimity.

Ald. Tom Christie sparred and spatted with Ald. Percy Frampton throughout the debate. Frampton is chairman of the city's finance committee.

At one point when Frampton urged a decision, Christie snapped "don't be in such a flaming hurry, Mr. Frampton." He later accused Frampton of being rude by "mumbling away and inter-

Williston-Benguet Meeting 'Incredible'

By BRUCE YEMEN

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett today described as "incredible" and "unbelievable" a meeting which may take place Saturday in Vancouver between Resources Minister Ray Williston and a lawyer for Benguet Corp.

"What power has Benguet got to pull a cabinet minister over to Vancouver for a meeting?" Barrett asked of the foreign company whose gambling interests in the Bahamas have led to the provincial government stalling a proposed development of recreation facilities in the Cypress Bowl area of West Vancouver.

Williston said today he will attend the meeting if he is invited. It is understood that West Vancouver Mayor Alex Forst is also expected to attend.

ALLEGED LINKS

The opposition has asked repeatedly for the government to say clearly that Benguet is unwelcome in B.C. because of its gambling connections and other alleged links with organized crime including bribing of government officials in the Bahamas.

Benguet took over a B.C. company called Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources last fall for $1 million in the controversial ski development on leased Crown land.

After a public uproar over the Benguet firm's reputation and apparent plans for a huge residential subdivision in the bowl, Williston and Premier Bennett announced the project was being suspended.

AWAITS REPORT

Williston has said in the legislature he has had no reason so far to change his view that Benguet is not welcome in the project but maintained that a report on the company had not yet been given to him by the attorney-general's department.

He said the promoters of the Cypress Bowl project have been given until May to arrange acceptable financing but also said that, as far as the government is concerned, the promoters don't own any leases in the Bowl because of an administrative oversight in the lands department.

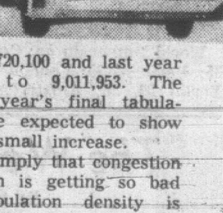
Public Transit Subsidies— Common Sense or Outrage?



By JOHN MIKA

(Last of a series)

Local councils are not noted for artistic talent but periodically they perform a fascinating dance — sticking heads into sand and waving on high for all to see another portion of anatomy where their heads should be.

The inspiration for this self-blinded gyration is the same for both ostriches and aldermen — fear. But at least the bird has pretty feathers.

What the aldermen of all councils fear is the responsibility of operating a money-losing transit system, reasoning that poor service is better than civic subsidy.

The latest dance occurred only last month in the city when an alderman suggested the validity of that fear should be examined — and drew only a "gasp of dismay" from the rest of council at such heresy.

But how much subsidy would be needed? Would it be justified? Could it be reduced by civic operation? Would its cost be outweighed by savings in more rational planning of transportation services? Where could subsidies come from? Are the people interested?

So far the dismayed councils have been too busy gasping to ask.

The capital region's bus system loss estimate for the fiscal year ending this month is $750,000.

The new fare increase — raising adult fares to 25 cents cash April 1 — is estimated to add a net $275,000 of new revenue.

The provincial government gives a $2,000,000 annual subsidy for transit losses and, being approximately one-fifth of the combined total, the Greater Victoria bus system could expect to receive at least $400,000 annually as its share if taken over by the local municipalities.

That would leave a total operating deficit of $75,000 to be shared by the capital region's municipalities if they took over the system this year.

Because labor costs form such a high proportion of operating costs, the bus system deficit could be expected to climb in future but municipal control in itself could slow this cost increase substantially.

Remember, B.C. Hydro is running the bus system purely as a holding operation and is not even considering methods of increasing business because it wants to get rid of the fleet.

Despite that — and apparently not even known by most civic officials — the well-known bus passenger decline over the decades "bottomed out" three years ago and is beginning to climb back even with an uninterested board of directors.

In the 1966-67 year, the local system carried an all-time low of 8,619,835 paying passengers, B.C. Hydro transit manager H. R. Halls revealed in an interview.

The following year it pulled up to 8,720,100 and last year hopped to 9,011,953. The current year's final tabulations are expected to show another small increase.

"It's simply that congestion downtown is getting so bad and population density is slowly rising that there is a natural countercurrent to transit," explains Hall.

There is a growing volume of literature which shows things like fares held down to 25 cents, express scheduling, air conditioning, carpeting, more comfortable seats and room and even brighter interior decor in buses have enabled a determined transit operation to vigorously promote a comeback in many small and medium-sized cities."

Assets Not Safe In Quebec—Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal firm of investment consultants has advised its clients to remove "physical securities and liquid assets from the province of Quebec—at least until the election is over."

This advice came from Lafferty, Harwood and Co. Ltd. in a newsletter to between 200 and 300 clients mainly financial institutions in Canada, the United States and Europe.

R. G. D. Lafferty, partner in the firm, said today the letter was sent March 18 to explain to clients possible problems that may follow the April 29 provincial general election.

The firm's advice resulted from allegations that Quebec Finance Minister Mario Beaulieu's "economic philosophy is based on demagoguery and not on the disciplines of economic reasoning."

The next government might attempt to implement these theories by "arbitrary government action" against private investment in the province, the newsletter warns.

The letter cites a speech by Mr. Beaulieu to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce March 16.

The investment guide said "the entire political philosophy of the speech is one of statism," which it warns "is unworkable within the framework of the North American environment."

Mr. Lafferty said the statist approach would lead to a "province where the population is subservient to the state."

Investment capital here would then suffer the same fate it did in the Belgian Congo after independence or in Cuba after the takeover by Premier Fidel Castro.

"Unless the Canadian federal government unequivocally undertakes to protect the rights and property of Canadian citizens, we think the correct investment move at this time is to physically remove securities and liquid assets from the province of Quebec—at least until the election is over and the policies and formation of the new government can be evaluated."

Mr. Laffert y said that "it would be very difficult" for Ottawa to intervene to protect investments in Quebec because property and civil rights are strictly provincial responsibilities under the Canadian constitution.

30-Plane Dogfight Over Nile

By United Press International

Israeli jets switched their attack from Syria back into Egypt's heartland today and knocked out two missile bases in the northern Nile delta, Israeli spokesmen said. Cairo reported about 30 Egyptian and Israeli warplanes fought an air battle over the delta area.

An Israeli military spokesman said the bases reported knocked out were at El Mansura, 75 miles north of Cairo and 50 miles west of the Suez Canal. It was the fourth time in three weeks Israeli jets had struck missile sites on the bank of the Nile around El Mansura.

An Egyptian military spokesman said, however, that intercepting Egyptian aircraft took off to engage the attacking jets and the Israeli pilots retreated "without being able to carry out their mission" of hitting the emplacements.

A dogfight broke out, and eventually involved approximately 30 planes from both sides, the Cairo spokesman said.

rupting when other people try to talk."

Most aldermen found agreement in Olafson's request that the Garbally Road maintenance yards be brought up to date. In existence since the turn of the century, replacement has been termed essential.

Having a rougher ride, but finally put back in the budget with modifications, was the proposed fire fighting training centre.

It was stressed that the only actual fire fighting training received by Greater Victoria fire fighters is "on the job."

Mostalder men agreed that eventually a fire fighting centre would be required. Some felt the vote was not the place to make the decision, others thought the proposed centre should be a regional district effort or at least a four core municipalities project.

CAN'T DELAY

But on the vote the majority agreed to leave the training centre in the budget.

Ald. Cecil Parrott urged council members to get behind the April 30 vote because "we can't keep delaying these things. They have to be done. We can't dilly dally any longer."

Christie suggested that by setting an April 30 vote date council was giving the appearance ot trying to railroad it through.

"I can't see how anyone can claim the referendum is being pushed down their throat." said Ald. Hugh Ramsay. "These projects are long overdue. The capital budget program was announced almost two years ago — it's two years old, not something brand new."

FALL VOTE

Ramsay and Olafson agreed that if the spring vote fails the same program would have to go to the people again in the fall.

Christie described the spending program as "poorly-timed and containing nothing but streets and sewers."

Last June when the budget was first defeated council asked approval for close to a million dollars for parks. At that time the criticism was that the budget contained too many frills and lacked practical content.

This time the frills are out — more than $2 million of them — including a proposed $162,000 community centre planned for Beacon Hill Park and designed for the elderly.

DDT Total Ban Seen By Kiernan

Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday he will be "very surprised" if the insecticide DDT isn't banned totally in B.C. within a year.

"I think we've reached a point where an outright ban is needed," he told the legislature.

"It's too dangerous to fool around with."

Kiernan also said a bill regulating use of snowmobiles and other off-highway vehicles may be placed before the legislature next year. It might even include regulation of helicopters used in hunting, he said, but there will have to be study of possible conflict with federal department of transport jurisdiction.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

We grow up from childhood with some ideas that aren't anywhere near accurate, such as the idea that a layer of fat under a person's skin is an efficient insulation against cold weather.

Many doctors doubt that a layer of fat is a good insulator. They question whether a fat man can conserve body heat under extreme conditions of cold better than a thin man can.

Each pound of fat requires about one mile of blood vessels for nourishment. As some of these blood vessels come near to the surface of the fat man's body, they can give off a rather great amount of heat by radiation. Thus, although fat does function as a form of insulation, its efficiency can be impaired by the high flow of blood through the fat.

A man who is thin is probably as efficient as the fat man in conserving his body heat.

Sihanouk Seeks UN Support For Return Bid

HONG KONG (WP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk has appealed to the United Nations to withhold recognition from the new Cambodian regime that deposed him as chief of state two weeks ago.

In a message to UN Secretary-General U. Thant from Peking, where he is now in exile, Sihanouk claimed that his ouster by a coalition of conservative Cambodian military and civilian leaders on March 18 was unconstitutional.

The prince urged that Cambodia's UN seat therefore be left "vacant" until the Cambodian people "say the last word" in what he called "their current struggle for the return of our state to constitutional legality and peace."

The text of Sihanouk's cabled message, sent to U Thant on Wednesday, was transmitted here Thursday from Peking by the official New China News Agency.

"Straight charges of impaired driving can and will be laid;" he said.

Mr. Justice Munroe overturned the legislation on grounds the federal cabinet substantially altered it when it proclaimed the date on which the law took effect. That was last Dec. 1.

The judge said that by dropping a section of the law, the cabinet went beyond its powers because Parliament, which approved the legislation, had not given the cabinet authority to change it.

"Parliament ... did not intend to delegate to the privy council any power beyond the power to fix the time when the legislation should become effective," his written judgment said.

His ruling came as he allowed an appeal by David Story of Vancouver, charged with impaired driving here Jan. 10 and convicted March 26. He had not been sentenced. The conviction is quashed.

Story appealed a ruling by provincial Judge Maurice Mulligan who had rejected defence lawyer Richard P. Anderson's contention that the law had been improperly proclaimed.

SECTION ELIMINATED

Mr. Justice Munroe ruled that the legislation had indeed been improperly proclaimed because the cabinet, without power to do so, scratched a "safeguard" section that Parliament had approved.

The section gave an accused driver the right to a sample of his breath, to be provided by police, the idea being that he could then have it independently tested if he so desired.

Stewart McMorran, Vancouver's chief prosecutor, said the cabinet presumably ditched this clause because "science has never been able to design a container that will retain an air sample."

Sooner or later, the breath contained in it would disappear or at least become mixed with air from the outside.

Prior to Thursday's precedent-setting judgment, a driver with a blood-alcohol reading of .08 per cent or more was automatically ruled impaired, provided the court agreed the test was properly given.

Now, said Mr. McMorran, the Crown is back where it was before Dec. 1. Police would have to go back to giving such evidence about a driver as the smell of alcohol on his breath, slurred speech, unsteady gait, and so on.

The breath test law upset by Mr. Justice Munro was part of the 1969 Criminal Law Amendment Act. His judgment did not affect other parts of this act, which affected passports, firearms, theft from mails, gaming houses and harassing telephone calls.

In Winnipeg, Attorney-General A. H. Mackling of Manitoba said Thursday he would be "reluctant to see application of a law frustrated by a technicality."

Mr. Mackling said although he has not seen the decision "there may be some technical omission within the law."

"If the effect of this technical ommission is to delay application of what is a good law, then it is regretable," he said.

He said the law will continue to be applied in Manitoba "assuming it is valid and proper."

"If it is considered by judges here that there is some absence of authority in the law, they may choose to follow their colleagues in British Columbia."

In Edmonton, Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart said Thursday the court decision that the federal compulsory breath test law is invalid, does "not have other than a persuasive effect in provinces other than B.C."

'Now Casting For Son Of Good Life'

Now W. A. C. Bennett Productions Inc. announce "The Son of Good life." Read on.

The premier threw the legislature into turmoil Thursday night with an announcement that the controversial government film will have a sequel before the next election.

He made the disclosure in a shouting, arm-waving defence of the B.C. promotion film which was made at taxpayers' expense and shown widely before the 1969 election.

"Before the next election, I want to announce there will be another one—'The Better Life'," Bennett shouted.

The matter came up during recreation department estimates, when Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said the $50,000 "The Good Life" was made for political propaganda purposes with the taxpayers' money.

He charged that the government had cheated the people of B.C.

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) suggested a sequel of his own: "The Full Life." The film would show the province as it is, including pollution, welfare and poverty to depict a balanced view of life, he said.

The premier replied that the film had brought "millions of dollars" into B.C. and "created hundreds and hundreds of jobs." The opposition just couldn't take the election defeat, he added.

Pulp Mill Wins Safety Award

Local 2 of the Pulp and Paper Makers of Canada, at the Crofton pulp and paper mill, has been awarded the National Safety Award for the third consecutive year.

The presentation was made by W. H. Cox, national executive board member, to T. P. Church, union safety director.

At the Crofton gathering, the plant's administrative general manager, G. F. Cameron, complimented the union members and their executive for their active interest in safety.

CONG PRESS VIET WAR ON 2 FRONTS

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrillas kept up their intensified attacks across South Vietnam today, shelling 60 positions and battling South Vietnamese troops in the northern Mekong Delta and American forces near the Cambodian border.

Casualties continued to rise. Official but incomplete reports said at least 79 Americans, 267 South Vietnamese troops and 770 guerrillas were killed since Tuesday night, when the Communist command launched its heaviest attacks in eight months.

NDP Caucus Backs Barrett for Chief

Caucus Chariman Bob Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said the endorsement by the 12 MLAs was made in accordance with the party's constitution. The decision will be forwarded to the party's leadership convention in June at Chilliwack where Barrett is expected to win the leadership.

The 39-year-old social worker from Coquitlam was named house leader of the party by the caucus following defeat of Tom Berger in the Aut. 27 election.

Berger also resigned as party leader effective as soon as the party could elect a new leader. Berger had won the leadership at an April, 1969, convention, defeating Barrett by 36 votes.

Williams was also a contender at that convention but ran third to Berger and Barrett. Former party leader Robert Strachan, who had previously defeated a Berger leadership bid in caucus in 1967, backed Williams at the convention.

With Barrett making a credible showing as opposition leader in his first session, he received the support of Williams, Strachan and Alex Macdonald, former deputy leader who was also considered a possible candidate.

Civic Transit Control— Economically Feasible?

But the key words are vigorous promotion. That obviously never will be provided by the reluctant B.C. Hydro but could be expected automatically from municipal administration or regional board administration.

How would the deficit be met?

It may be a slim promise but a federal-provincial municipal conference last year in Toronto agreed that someday Ottawa will have to help meet transit costs as Washington does now.

Forgetting that, however, there is the traditional source of the municipalities' general revenue account.

A $75,000 subsidy for the local system serving approximately 155,500 persons in the transit coverage area is not much when compared with:

- An estimate of $45,000 or ⅔ of a mill annually from the 30,000 persons in the Nanaimo regional district who approved a referendum last fall to buy out a private bus company so that service could be improved from the down town core to the unorganized areas lying beyond city limits;
- Or the $57,000, approximately 1/6 of a mill, subsidy that it costs West Vancouver this year to maintain its highly-praised 55-year-old transit system.

* * *

The Nanaimo system is only starting up as a public organization but already it has provided service to two new areas and re-organized and improved the old runs.

The West Van system is an even better example because it has been in operation so long, serves a difficult wedge-shaped geography similiar to Victoria's and is so popular with its citizens that they overwhelmingly rejected a referendum 17 years ago when B.C. Electric wanted to buy the system to add to its metro Vancouver operation.

Elmer Barnes, West Van city manager, said the area's 36,000 residents are served by a relatively big fleet of 32 modern buses which carry more than 1,500,000 passengers annually at fares considerably lower than private company equivalents. It also has experienced a small increase in traffic in recent years.

"We are not troubled if we lose a little because if we break even then it would mean that the passengers were subsidizing the property owners since the availability of the transit system adds to the value of property just as any other utility, fire and police protection service or parking facilities for cars do," Barnes said.

There are many thousands of Greater Victorians who have no other means of transporation but even motorist ratepayers benefit by the simple availability of an alternate mode of travel.

When the record snows hit the area a winter ago, Greater Victoria was saved from total paralysis only by the transit buses which kept people moving to work and to stores.

* * *

The January bus passenger figure jumped 19.5 per cent or 134,285 riders as a result of the emergency — even in Feburary when the thaw came it was up 6.7 per cent — and that represents almost 4,000 workers who were able to make a round trip to their jobs and back during a month of working days.

So the bus system saved at least $1 million in payroll for the community as well as the larger economic loss of a complete standstill threatened by the emergency.

A lot of businesses and workers who never consider the transit system as a service to them would have found it doubly hard to pay their taxes last year if the buses had not been available — and the local council would have found it hard to keep to their budgets, too.

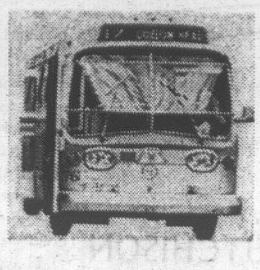
But property owners benefit from another saving through transit services: existing parking facilities (whether off-street garages downtown or on-street in the outlying suburbs) would have to be more than doubled to handle the extra cars needed (themselves a major capital draw-down on the community at large).

With an annual expenditure of about $700,000 on roads in this region and street parking estimated to use one-third of the average roadway surface, it can be argued that ratepayers are subsidizing motorists by $235,000 a year now in more blacktop than is needed to move vehicles from one place to another. Add the annual expenditures which would be needed for building more off-street facilities, the extra traffic police, signals, signs and so on.

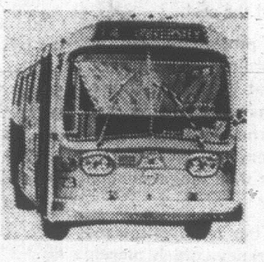
In addition, consider the loss of potential civic income represented by off-street parking sites located as they are in the centre of downtown and neighborhood areas.

These valuable pieces of property — as office or commercial buildings — would bring almost five times more tax revnue than does a private parking lot and at least double the tax revenue of a large private parkade structure.

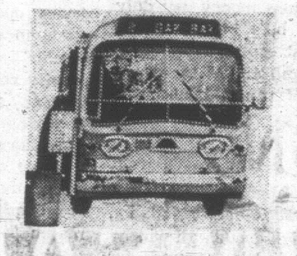
There's another $100,000 lost revenue potential at large. And a further $75,000 is lost to Victoria because its civic parking buildings and lots are not assessed property taxes at all and the ultimate loss — in terms of displaced prime private buildings structures — would be double that.



'The justification for bus subsidies is apparent . . .



. . . and civic government has the means at hand.'



From these totals would have to be subtracted the $135,000 "net profit" which comes from street parking meters, but only to Victoria's benefit.

Greater Victoria ratepayers, then, subsidize motorists, through actual expenditures and lost income, to the tune of some hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for parking area.

If that kind of money can be spent to increase the congestion problem, surely there is ample justification for a modest subsidy to counter the congestion problem by assisting transit services move people without the dislocation and cost of extra parking.

(Not to mention the direct costs to motorists for using that mode of travel. A recent economic analysis showed that 11 cents of the consumer dollar goes for transporation and all but one penny of that is far car travel.)

The startling benefit of transit directly to property is illustrated by a Toronto survey which showed that new construction gravitated to the subway route because it brought people to stores and offices without cars.

"In the past 10 years, the appriased value of all land and facilities in metropolitan Toronto has increased by $15 billion — two-thirds of it directly attributable to the existence of the subway," it was noted by the survey.

Subways are the ultimate of transit operations of course, but in an appropriately diminished scale the same benefits to the taxpayer could be attributed to buses which also need no parking.

* * *

"My contention is that transit is a utility service to the community and, since the fare box alone can't pay for it all, the community should determine how much it benefits and subsidize the service accordingly," says Halls, who has 40 years' experience here to back up his management of the local transit operation.

"Since transit is a "standby transporation" benefit to home and business owners there should be a "standby subsidy" from households and companies."

West Vancouver and Nanimo regional district are providing that standby subsidy from civic taxes directly but there is another method to which Greater Victoria became accustomed during the B.C. Electric days — another utility operation supporting the transit utility.

Indeed, local councils in the past have indicated they would take over the transit operation gladly if they also could obtain a B.C. Hydro franchise to retail electricity to Greater Victoria's consumers.

But, although Premier Bennett is anxious enough to be rid of the local transit service that he offered to hand over its rolling stock for $1 to the civic authorities, he has adamantly refused to consider turning over retail power sales, too.

In fact, only this month B.C. Hydro notified New Westminster that its solitary power retailing franchise — the outgrowth of an historical accident which gives about $800,000 annual profits to its civic coffers — would be terminated this year.

Given Premier Bennett's resounding mandate and his demonstrated determination on the point, further remonstrances by local governments demanding the retail franchise as quid pro quo is simply another manifestation of hiding heads in the sand.

* * *

B.C. Electric warned the municipalities — before being taken over by the province — that it would not continue its transit system when its franchise obligations ran out in 1968.

To his credit, the premier not only has kept providing the service at least two years longer already but under him the bus fleet that BCE was running into the ground has been replaced with expensive units and brought back into top condition.

But while the aldermen have moaned because they can't get the electric utility to subsidize a civic transit system, they've ignored an equally important utility already under their own control with lucrative potential.

Four years ago, Washington State's legislature approved a measure allowing any Washington municipality which operated either an electricity or water utility to place a transit subsidy tax on the consumers amounting to not more than $1 per month per household or per employee.

Since then, Spokane, Yakima, Tacoma, Everett and Vancouver, Wash., have added varying amounts to water or power bills to raise the amount needed for transit subsidies they felt were justified.

Seattle city council is expected to follow suit at the end of this month, imposing a 50-cents-per-month charge on utility bills for each household and, in the case of commercial consumers, for each employee in the establishment.

Greater Victoria's water board — operated by the four municipalites as an at-cost wholesaler — has used its lucrative watershed forestry logging operations to pay for capital items such as the $5 million Japan Gulch tunnel pipeline project on a pay-as-you-go basis.

In consequence, for years it has wholesaled water at lower rates than those enhoyed anywhere else in Canada — 11.5 cents per thousand gallons.

* * *

That meant that for an average 3,000-gallon-monthly household consumer, the municipalities have been able to retail water at a profit while charging only $4.20 in Victoria and Esquimalt, $3.75 in Oak Bay and $3.39 in Saanich every two months.

Other Canadian municipalities normally pay more than that every month and, even in this area, Sidney has to charge $1 per 1,000 gallons or $6 for comparable consumption.

Adding a 50-cent transit standby charge once every two months to the 48,000 Greater Victoria water bills — with a weighted increase for the commercial and industrial accounts — could easily bring in $200,000 annually for covering the net losses of a civic bus system in this area.

At $3 a year for the average householder — and comparable amounts from the rents paid by tenants or the operating budgets of businesses — that would enable civic governments to operate and improve bus service, stop the congestion increase and save tax money.

If, someday, more civic subsidy is needed, then the present cheap parking meter rates (cheap by continental and by cost-benefit standards both) could be raised to supply more cash for transit while at the same time encouraging more people to use the bus service.

To Be or Not to Be

THERE CAN BE LITTLE DOUBT that, within the next decade, Canada will face a crucial series of decisions that will determine the future of the nation. In comparison with the basic nature of the questions involved, even so essential a matter as Quebec separatism appears of secondary importance. For what is shaping up as the Big Problem of our era involves nothing less than our physical and social existence.

The situation has been developing for some time. The large influx of United States capital into Canada, resulting in widespread foreign ownership of resources and plants, has been one feature of the trend. But against this background—which was created voluntarily by Canadians—the real crisis is now becoming evident.

It was seen emerging in the recent meeting of Canadian and United States legislators in Washington to discuss informally the American suggestions for continental, rather than national, use of energy resources. It became still more evident in the United States cut-back in the amount of Alberta oil to be admitted south of the border, and the concurrent opinion in many quarters that import controls may be used as a lever to obtain other concessions from Canada—concessions relating to American access to Canadian coal, oil, gas and other energy sources.

* * *

The facts appear to be that the United States—embracing the most vast production complex in the world — is running out of new energy supplies with which to maintain its tremendous rate of industrial expansion, and it must seek additional sources if it is to continue. Canada, sharing the continent, is to United States industrialists the obvious answer, and it is to Canada that American industry will increasingly turn in search of raw materials and the fuels for utilizing them.

That the matter is urgent may be seen in the estimates of United States experts that, for instance, in the next 15 years the country will consume more oil than it did from the discovery of oil up to 1967. Or that between now and 1985 the consumption of natural gas will be 40 trillion cubic feet more than the total used up to today. Or that demands for coal and electricity will be on a comparable scale.

As one American authority puts it: "The point is that unless prompt action is taken we shall become an energy-deficient nation." Other sources are already talking in terms of power brown-outs, rationing of electrical consumption, freezing of per capita consumption at present levels. U.S. government statistics show that energy consumption in 1969 was more than 50 per cent higher than a decade ago.

Such figures indicate the vast increase in the demands of industry and population for energy. They indicate the dwindling domestic sources of supply. And they also suggest—apart from the possibilities of greatly expanded nuclear power developments, discovery of new energy principles, and such alternatives—that Canada will be regarded as the logical source of new supplies.

Therein lies Canada's problem. Will this country invite, or permit, unlimited export of our energy resources to the United States, so that everything north of the 49th parallel becomes a vast supply house, an industrial larder, for our neighbor? Is it the destiny of Canada to be merely a wilderness from which will be shipped the raw materials to feed the industrial giant to the south? Or shall we decide that this country should achieve its own industrial potential; reserve its resources, and particularly its energy fuels, for its own development; save its raw materials for the use of a larger Canadian population rather than force its people to seek their careers in the United States? Above all, shall we preserve our vital water supplies for our own development, rather than release them to the busy nation next to us?

On the answers to these questions will rest what this country will be as we enter the twenty-first century: a factory or a warehouse, a viable enterprise or a dwindling heap of materials drawn on by a more active nation? We cannot sit on our treasures and do nothing with them. But we can plan their use, allocate what we can spare for the best prices we can command, resist the great pressures that undoubtedly will be brought to bear on us, and assure our nation of its just fulfilment.

The New International Barbarism

POLITICAL RADICALS OF ALL stripes are often so self-righteous that they deem the murder of innocent persons just if it furthers their cause. Such fanaticism has resulted in scores of airplane hijackings in recent years. The latest manifestation is seen in the kidnapping of seven diplomats in separate instances during the last few weeks in Latin America. In exchange for their diplomatic hostage the radicals usually demand the release of political prisoners.

So far none of the kidnapped diplomats has been harmed but the latest seizure of a West German diplomat in Guatemala could easily result in tragedy because of the man's heart condition. Argentina will propose at the next Organization of American States meeting that member nations not grant political asylum to prisoners freed in exchange for kidnap victims. This may not cure the hostage syndrome. "Diplomatic kidnappings" could spread to other parts of the world following the radicals' success in Latin America.

There are deeper implications for a troubled world in this type of banditry. Diplomatic immunity is an old and honored tradition among most nations. A mutual sense of trust is necessary for international relations to be maintained. But a few nations, notably Communist China, turn on foreign diplomats frequently. Now the harried diplomatic community is a special target for political dissidents in other countries. It is part of the trend to violence that marks our era, but it will have to be met and mastered if further chaos is not to ensue.

One Strong Voice For a Nation

CANADIANS INTERESTED IN international amity welcome recent signs of a thaw in Franco-Canadian relations. They were revealed in the cordial reception accorded External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp by French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann. Equally gratifying to most Canadians should be Mr. Sharp's very explicit statement that "the Canadian government speaks for all Canadians."

Implicit in the words is the warning to France that it misjudges national sentiment in this country if it assumes that Quebec representatives speak for Canada—or that Canada as a whole will tolerate any foreign head of state attempting to go over the federal government's head to promote any divisive force within the nation. General de Gaulle's "Vive le Quebec libre!" is not forgotten.

" . . . May we have the balloons . . . ?"

Modern Art

Countless art-conscious citizens must wonder with astonishment about the Victoria Art Gallery acceptance, as elsewhere, of occasional exhibitions of "modernistic" paintings by much-publicized painters (referred to as "artists"). The "modern art" trend is also unfortunately evident in many art classes.

Multi-coloured blotches of meaningless shapes and patterns in the "abstract, surrealistic and non-objective" categories may be considered as symbolic expressions of our contemporary world, or do they reflect upon some lazy painters' wild moods or possibly the gloomy feelings said to be experienced in "hang-overs?"

Any person who strangely likes such framed monstrosities should have his or her portrait painted in that style to fully realize the effect. — R. B. Shaw, 1277 Rockland.

How Many Care?

Reading the account of the terrific earthquake which took place in Gediz, Turkey, really appalled me.

It was the "end of the world" to thousands of people and destruction of a large area.

I wonder how it affects the thinking of many people who live here on this continent; live in extreme luxury. Do they give a thought to such a tragedy? Would they be willing to send help?

I see the Canadian Red Cross Society is sending $10,000 and many other countries will do likewise.

I wonder how many people have sincere sympathy for those in such a dire situation? Such a catastrophe could happen here, or anywhere else. — E. Cuthbertson, 976 Humboldt.

Interrogating Children

Referring to your editorial entitled "Out of Bounds," your writer reflects the policy of this Association.

You may be interested in knowing that the February issue of "The Democratic Commitment" reads, inter alia, as follows:—

"22) Interrogation of School Children: (Norman Levi) This committee produced a brief opposing present school board practices which allow children to be questioned by police in the absence of their parents but in the presence of the principal. Directors agreed that this arrangement does not adequately protect children from possible self-incrimination; nor is it reasonable to cast such responsibility on a principal."

Aside altogether from the question of children incriminating themselves, this device opens up a fruitful avenue for police to question children about their parents' activities. More and more socially conscious parents are becoming political activists. We already have several well documented instances of under-cover RCMP intelligence agents invading universities to investigate political activity. Are we now to have police invading high schools for the same reason — to question children about anything the interrogator wishes to question them?—Ross Leighton, Victoria Chapter, B.C. Civil Liberties Assn.

CLC PHILOSOPHY

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Sublime, Even Ethereal, Confidence

Hutchison

THE most sublime and inspiring doctrine heard by Canadians for a long time came from the Canadian Labor Congress at its recent meeting with the cabinet at Ottawa: "Relatively high wage demands are not so much a revolutionary phenomenon as a vote of confidence in our country and its capacity to provide a good life for all who reside in it."

What was Prime Minister Trudeau to make of these lofty sentiments? Perhaps he remembered some occasion in his private life when a profligate friend asked him for a large loan, unlikely to be repaid. That, too, was a vote of confidence in his capacity to survive a heavy loss. All of us have received these gratifying votes now and then.

By the same method the nation has voted such total confidence in its own capacity that it has destroyed a considerable fraction of the currency and piled up gigantic debts, both Canadian and foreign, which its children, or grandchildren will repay. We are indeed a confident people.

According to official statistics, the wage demands already granted have caused about three-quarters of the price increase during recent years but this is only one small aspect of the grand North American vote of confidence. An experts' study prepared for President Nixon shows that the vote is much grander than it seems.

In sum, Mr. Nixon is told that, with all its wealth, the United States cannot undertake any extensive new social program with cutting down expenditures somewhere else, even after the Vietnam hemorrhage has been stanched. The nation's resources, though likely to grow (with good luck) about five per cent annually, will be insufficient to supply what the American people demand and expect. Undoubtedly the margin between expectations and means is proportionately larger in Canada because we are more confident, though less efficient, than our neighbors.

Hence there is a wonderful irony in the current argument about our taxes.

The Trudeau government has been accused of seeking vast additional revenues through the subtle mechanisms of its white paper on tax reform and is asked how it can possibly spend all the new money. Edgar Benson, a whimsical humorist behind his poker face and cloud of pipe smoke, says he would be the happiest finance minister in the world if he could collect more money than he needs and then reduce tax rates.

Regrettably, that ultimate bliss will be denied him. For he must know that the rates will never be permanently reduced because our vote of confidence in the future, and our demand for state services, will require increased taxes.

To be sure, some rates will be reduced from time to time. In an odd coincidence they will be reduced in election years when governments suddenly discover that the economy needs fiscal stimulation and the candidates of the ruling party need votes. Once the election is won, the government will discover that the economy needs to be cooled and the treasury needs more funds. So up will go the taxes.

Law of Politics

This is not exactly the economic law of Maynard Keynes but it is the sovereign law of politics, enforced over and over again in our time. Or, as Professor Parkinson would put it, expenditures always rise to meet revenue and usually go beyond it.

Supposing, however, with a wild flight of imagination, that the federal government actually reduces taxes over a long period, the provinces and municipalities will instantly fill the resulting revenue vacuum out of the same taxpayer's purse. Clearly the junior governments need more money to meet the real needs of the decaying cities, of education, pollution, poverty and the rest.

From any figures projected ahead for a decade or two a simple fact emerges. It is that the state, at its various levels, will use an increasing share of the nation's annual earnings. So it must when the public's demands on the state constantly rise faster than the production of wealth.

For the moment, this fact is disguised by inflating the currency, which merely means that powerful groups in business and in organized labor get more of the wealth and the weak groups less. But even if the currency is finally repudiated, as it has been in many nations of the past, the fact will survive. The state will require and take more money.

It will require more money, not only to pay its current bills but to recoup North America's lost capital in the form of poisoned water and air, of barbarous metropolitan life, of ruined landscapes, shrinking top soil, over-cut forests and many other things.

But don't worry. We now have it on the solemn word of the Canadian Labor Congress that if wages and, inevitably, prices are raised high enough all will be well and the good life assured for everybody. You can't ask for a more sublime vote of confidence.

FROM WASHINGTON

By TIM TRAYNOR

After the Rhetoric, Grey Realism

Traynor

THE speed of the return to wage-price stability depends heavily on wage settlements this year . . . "Inflationary expectations have abated . . . The recent easing of labor markets should also contribute to moderation in settlements this year. "Moreover, if the productivity curve moves upward in 1970, as seems likely, and the line representing increases in labor compensation starts down, the day of wage-price stability may not be nearly so far in the future as the current reports of price increases would seem to imply."

Such were the confident expectations of the Nixon administration, expressed last month in a New York speech by the under secretary of the treasury, Charles E. Walker. Emphatically, Mr. Walker rejected controls or even direct government pressure to restrain wage increases during the critical transition from inflation caused by excessive demand to the secondary phase in which workers seek to make up for price increases through oversize wage claims.

Full reliance was placed on the softening of the labor market, as expressed in rising unemployment, and a stiffening of resistance by employers caught in a profits squeeze. As administration officials have done consistently, he exhorted employers to fall into line with this. He also made clear the administration's expectations of labor leaders.

"Enlightened labor leaders have also observed the death of demand-pull pressures. . . . In projecting future demands they will do well to consider the impact excessive demands will have on employment. In a cooling economy, . . . excessive wage demands are contractionary, pushing toward recession and unemployment rather than continued inflation."

Just how tenuous the underlying assumptions are is being graphically demonstrated on the federal government's own doorstep. Simmering discontent among postal workers has boiled over, with repercussions throughout the federal civil service. Postal union leaders have been swept along, not only in demands for large pay increases, but into outright defiance of laws prohibiting strikes against the federal authority.

Increasing Demands

Following the postal workers' lead, other federal employees are raising their demands, and may well prevail with Congress still dazed by the unprecedented postal wildcat. At the very least, this must disrupt government expenditure plans, forcing increased allotments for civil service pay. Hopes of wage restraint in the economy as a whole have taken a bad knock.

A formidable list of contracts is up for renegotiation in the coming months. Talks between trucking companies and the Teamsters Union are not going well, and are approaching a climax. At earlier stages of negotiation are contracts involving key electrical workers, paper makers, seamen, telephone workers, airline stewardesses, and auto workers of the big three auto manufacturers and the farm machinery companies.

Apart from economic considerations, the president is squarely up against the problem of disruption of essential services. He has won wide approval for his handling of the postal walkout, combining a show of strength with a restraint which facilitated negotiation. The irreducible fact is, however, that the government has been seen to bend before the use of illegal methods. The precedent is unwelcome in every respect; in the use of troops to sort the mail, in the declaration of emergency, and in the hasty efforts to deal with grievances of long standing.

Anti-strike Laws

There remains the problem of re-establishing the anti-strike laws as a deterrent to disruption of federal services. It is not clear that use of sanctions against union leaders will suffice for this purpose. Beyond this, there is the question of protecting key services not operated by the federal authority — railroads, airlines, trucking and marine shipping.

In the short term, there is the possibility of a renewal of the rail crisis, which was merely deferred by congressional action. A trucking crisis is now a distinct possibility for the immediate future.

For the farther future, the administration has prepared legislation which would set up machinery for the settlement of nationwide transportation disputes. Under this legislation, the first major labor law revision proposed in 20 years, railroads and airlines would be brought under the emergency provision of the Taft-Hartley Act, which empowers the president to seek an injunction forbidding a strike during an 80-day cooling-off period. Rails and airlines are at present covered by the emergency provision of the Railway Labor Act.

Under the proposed legislation, the president would have three options at the end of the cooling-off period. He could order a 30-day extension of the cooling period, he could require partial operation of the struck industry for up to six months, or he could resort to a "final offer selection procedure." The deadlocked parties would have three days to put forward last, best offers, and five days to bargain over them. Failing agreement, one of the two offers would be chosen and implemented by a neutral panel.

Looking Back

From the Times of April 3, 1910:

In the Commons this afternoon, Hon. W. Fielding, in moving the adoption of the resolution of some minor amendments to the Currency Act explained that it was proposed to coin $5 Canadian gold pieces. The intrinsic value of these would be the same as of American $5 gold pieces which were now legal tender in Canada.

Bennett and Smallwood: A Comparison of Myths

By VIC PARSONS

W. B. Yeats asked how the dancer can be distinguished from the dance. Sometimes in government, it can be asked where the boundary lies between the man and his province. Take, for instance, two geographical extremists — W. A. C. Bennett in British Columbia and Joseph R. Smallwood in Newfoundland. They are at once intense citizens and major shapers of their realms. Times reporter Vic Parsons has sat in the legislative gallery in St. John's and has been observing from the gallery in Victoria. He finds some remarkable harmonies in the tunes these two veteran political dancing masters call.

The legislature is in an uproar. Shouts and jeers reverberate in the chamber as Premier W. A. C. Bennett stands—one hand up-raised—facing the opposition benches.

"They were wrong in 1952," he roars, referring to the predictions of political soothsayers about the fate of Social Credit. He pauses briefly to hear the pounding of desks by government MLAs.

"They were wrong in 1953", he continues, fumbling, stumbling over the words. He rides on the crescendo of noise like a ship on a surging sea, listing his electoral triumphs to the last and greatest of all in August. Then — smiling after his few minutes of intense oration — he takes his seat.

The same day, 4,000 miles away, Premier Joseph R. Smallwood, without effort, and without faltering, ends four hours of "ranting and roaring" in the budget debate, revealing the "great" plans he has for the future of Newfoundland, and glorying in the past.

Furious at suggestions that his policies have led to financial ruin for his province, Smallwood casts the blame on the war in Vietnam—a disaster that has made money expensive and hard to get, he says.

Then he recalls the condition of his impoverished homeland during the darkest days of the depression. Weeping, he remembers the times of the six-cent per day welfare handout — the "dole" — on which many of his people existed. And, finally, thunders a list of the miles of roads, number of schools and hospitals, and number of jobs, provided since union of Newfoundland with Canada.

At the western and eastern extremes of Canada the two most isolated provinces — British Columbia and Newfoundland — have produced the two provincial premiers with the greatest political longevity.

One of the provinces is separated from the rest of the country by sea, by history and by culture. The other has been isolated by a mountain range and by distance from the business capitals of eastern Canada.

Perhaps it is no coincidence, in view of their isolation, that both provinces have leaders who are vocal, strong-willed and durable. Remote communities need a strong leader to get what they want from centralized authority.

Ask anyone across Canada to name the ten premiers of the provinces, or the big political "wheels" in the country and listen to the answers. Count on two showing up nearly all the time.

They may remember Trudeau is the prime minister, that Pearson and Diefenbaker used to be, and the name of the premier of their own province, but a gleam comes to the eye and a smile to the lips when they mention "Joey" and "Wacky".

Appeal for 'Little Guy'

Both Bennett and Smallwood have something that appeals to the mass of the electorate — perhaps an aura that leads the "little guy" to believe that the premier is one of them and will look after his interests. Although in recent years the changing nature of popular politics has led doubters to prophesy doom, both have overcome the obstacles before them, and, thus far, retained their positions.

Bennett, premier of his province for 17 years, and now into the 18th, won an election in August by a vast majority when his downfall was being forecast.

Smallwood, the only premier of Newfoundland since that province took the giant step into confederation 20 years ago, defeated an attempt at the leadership of his Liberal party in November by getting about 60 per cent of the delegates' vote against two strong contenders.

One could argue on about whether the men are similar or different and reach no conclusions; instead let us compare mythologies.

When Bennett surged into the forefront of British Columbia politics, the province was prosperous, but the coalition formed to keep the CCF from power was weak. Social Credit was seen as the private enterprise alternative to socialism.

Newfoundland, though relatively poor, was also going through a period of prosperity after a war in which American and Canadian money came to the island as a result of the military bases.

Newfoundlanders were becoming more confident in an ability to govern themselves and wanted a change from the colonial British Commission of Government. The choice was between independence, maintaining the commission, or joining Canada or the United States.

Smallwood, a relentless political campaigner and an ardent nationalist, chose to lead his country into Confederation, as he confesses, not out of love for Canada, but for Newfoundland.

Since that time the economic ranking of the two provinces have not substantially changed, though living standards have risen in both.

The difference is that Newfoundland is still poor, while B.C. is rich. Smallwood speaks now of "Uncle Ottawa", the source of funds toward which Newfoundland can turn for help — and a convenient scapegoat when times are bad. His major complaint is that he wants more money.

Bennett sneers at the federal government's economic policies and hints at nefarious plots by the feds to separate British Columbians from their financial resources.

The similarity of their critics' arguments is striking: Bennett's NDP opposition say he is neglecting the poor and the needy, that his electric power policies are wrong, and that he gives away too much to big business.

Smallwood's critics, the Progressive Conservatives and the anti-Joey Liberals, charge that he gives no thought to those uprooted by the official policy of resettlement of fisher-folk into the larger centres, that he is giving the province away to promoters, and providing free power for business at the expense of the people.

Indeed, if one could read transcripts of the debates from the two provincial legislatures, he would find the NDP in B.C., and the PCs in Newfoundland using almost identical arguments.

Balanced Budgets Boast

The NDP and the Liberals in B.C. claim that the "contingent liabilities" of about $2.3 billion constitute for the province's approximately 2 million people the highest debt per man, woman, and child of any province. Smallwood's opposition charges that the approximately $500 million debt for the 500,000 population of the newest province is the highest.

And both Bennett and Smallwood reject the opposition claims of a debt, announcing "balanced budgets" each year.

But though they apply similar policies often, one delighted in calling himself a "socialist" until very recent times, whereas the other maintains he is a "free enterpriser."

When Bennett was once asked what Social Credit was, he replied, "The opposite of socialism." His references to members of the NDP as "Marxian socialists," his insistence, when the opposition doubts his electoral popularity, that his party gets the major part of the "free enterprise vote" leave no doubt where he stands, in theory at least. But his takeover of B.C. Hydro was interpreted by some as nationalization of the socialist variety.

Smallwood, on the other hand, reported for socialist publications in New York, and was a companion of many of the prominent socialists in New York shortly after the First World War.

A man who walked the 560-mile rail track across Newfoundland from Port aux Basques in the west to St. John's in the east organizing the railway men into a union surely had strong convictions.

But now after 20 years in power few people, if any, would venture the suggestion that he is still a socialist. His anti-union actions, and his policies belie it.

While Bennett, a dissident conservative, blasts the socialists, Smallwood vents his anger on those he sees as "Tories" both without and within his own Liberal party.

Bennett personally is friendly, good-natured generally, and much like anyone's Uncle Jack. He is more human and not so distant as the more intense Smallwood.

The B.C. premier banters with reporters, though he is tight-mouthed in most instances when asked to comment on news items and keeps his thoughts well-hidden.

In the legislature, he does not speak often, although when there he heckles the opposition and his own members with one eye on the press and public galleries. His behavior is a striking contrast to the vocal Smallwood.

Talk Them into Frenzy

When Bennett does speak, under normal circumstances his words come slowly and almost painfully. But if he begins his "flying fish act" he works up the government members and himself into a frenzy.

Then his words, in an unsteady staccato, sputter from his lips as he revels in past victories and accomplishments, or takes quixotic thrusts at the federal government, the opposition, or villians who may, for example, want B.C.'s water. Accompanied by the cheers of the Socreds and the jeers of the opposition, arms waiving about, he surveys the government benches with delight, and glances into the galleries to elicit the response.

The B.C. premier's occasional bursts of energy cannot match Smallwood's continuous energy and quixotic nature, however.

Joey is in the legislature nearly all the time it sits and dominates it completely. When he is quiet, he will browse through newspapers, magazines, clipping articles of interest to him which he pastes on paper. He may rise and walk to the great window in the chamber that overlooks Newfoundland's capital city of St. John's, and standing with hands behind his back, survey his domain.

He speaks for hours in the legislature, explains personally nearly every bill that comes before the house, and interrupts his cabinet ministers and other members at will with questions, comments, and explanations. Smallwood often rises on points of order and seldom is found wrong by the Speaker.

The futures of the two men seem vastly different. Bennett, though he has fooled us all, perhaps, in the past, may not be around for too much longer. Robert Strachan, the NDP opposition leader for 13 years against the premier, noted recently that Bennett does not spend as much time in the legislative chamber as he once did. But it seems that Bennett will quit politics when he wants to, not when the people force him into retirement.

For Smallwood the end appears near even though a man with his energy and desire could continue on for many years.

—Drawings by Dave Glover

The recent leadership campaign may have seemed to observers outside Newfoundland as another victory for Joey, but the feeling is that the great majority of people under 40 are against him. Smallwood's greatest support comes from the "baymen" from the outport areas who voted for confederation in 1949. For them conditions have improved immeasurably.

The young idealists, however, were disgusted at the more than subtle "dirty" tactics of the leadership campaign, and those young Liberals who shouted "Sieg Heil" towards the platform on which the victorious Smallwood stood, will certainly reject his style in the future. They will stand with the seven Liberals out of 38 who have crossed the floor in the legislature since the challenge to Joe's leadership began two years ago.

The ecomonic success of their provinces in the past is reflected in their politics, and their policies, and no doubt will play a big role in their futures.

British Columbia is prosperous; Newfoundland is not. This fact will probably determine how long these two familiar faces on the Canadian scene will be accepted by their people.

First Weapons Of Destruction

By WALTER SULLIVAN

NEW YORK — Were the clovis-fluted points, or spear-heads, the first weapons of mass destruction? Were they responsible for the first catastrophic impact of man upon his environment, marking the start of a progressive extinction of all other animal species? Will it culminate, then, in the final extinction — that of man himself?

These questions have arisen from a timetable of ancient extinctions derived from the use of radioactive carbon to date thousands of fossil remains. A picture has emerged of worldwide extinctions of large mammals at about the time that man learned how to make clovis points and similar weapons.

* * *

This technology is believed by many to have reached the Americas via the land bridge that linked Siberia and Alaska about 11,000 years ago. The clovis points take their name from an archaeological site in New Mexico.

Chipped with great skill, with a fluted shaft to fit into a split spear pole, they represent a high point in stone-working and apparently enabled primitive man for the first time to kill animals as large as the camel, horse and mastodon.

Many of these species had survived three successive ice ages and the temperate periods separating them. They had endured the stresses of climate change as the ice sheets waxed and waned. What, then, happened toward the close of the last ice age that was so destructive?

The question has been debated for years. In the current issue of BioScience, journal of the American Institute of Biological Sciences, Prof. Paul S. Martin of the University of Arizona, states the case for "human overkill." While others question whether man was entirely to blame, a recent spot check of specialists revealed widespread agreement that man played a key role.

Stresses imposed by rapidly changing climates in many parts of the world hit hard at the large mammals, these specialists argued. However, in previous periods of such change, enough animals survived to preserve the species. This time man delivered the coup de grace.

There have, however, been other explanations. One scientist has proposed a global outbreak of animal disease as the cause. Another believes there was a prolonged dry spell. Yet another blames increased seasonal extremes with sterility resulting from hot summers and high infant mortality during cold winters. A Soviet scientist believes deeper winter snows were the cause.

* * *

Some scientists question how the few thousand inhabitants of North America 11,000 years ago could have killed the millions of large mammals living there, wiping out 40 species in a few centuries.

There is evidence, however, that early man, on occasion at least, was a mass killer. Within a single layer uncovered at Solutre in France are remains estimated to represent more than 100,000 horses.

Russians Tone Down New Encyclopedia

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN

MOSCOW — The first volume of the Soviet Union's long-awaited new encyclopedia was distributed recently and, at first reading appeared significantly freer of dogmatism and distortions than the last edition.

Among other things, the new edition credits the Wright Brothers, and not a Russian, with the first airplane flight, treats abstract art, despite official condemnation, in a matter-of-fact tone, and avoids derogatory comments about victims of Stalin's purges.

Eventually to consist of 30 volumes, the new opus, known officially as the third edition of the Bolshaya (great) Sovetskaya Entsklopediya, will supplant the 51-volume second edition as Russia's basic reference work.

The second edition, published through the 1950s, glorified Stalin in its first few volumes and condemned his policies in volumes published after his death in 1953 in accordance with Nikita S. Krushchev's de-Stalinization policy.

Despite its fewer volumes the new edition, according to its editors, headed by Aleksandr M. Prokhorow, Nobel Prize-winning physicist, will have about the same number of entries — 100,000 — as the second edition.

That edition, which appeared from 1950 to 1958, replaced in turn a 64-volume first edition that began to be published in 1926. Many Russians treasure the first edition for its relative objectivity.

The new edition, like most Soviet works in the social sciences, has a heavy ideological framework, but, in comparison with second edition, is fairly objective, and, as the Russians say, is "scientific" in tone.

Reflecting increased interest in recent years in the old Russian past, the current edition pays more attention to the Czars and their families than did its predecessor. Some old religious leaders are mentioned for the first time.

Fulbright Fears More Asia War Involvement

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator J. William Fulbright came out in steadfast opposition to the Nixon administration's Vietnamization policy Thursday and expressed fear that the United States will be drawn into a wider war in Southeast Asia.

In a major senate speech, the chairman of the foreign relations committee said that handing over the war to South Vietnamese forces is unsound.

"I am apprehensive of our ability to stay out of war in Laos and Cambodia as long as we remain at war in Vietnam," Fulbright also declared in renewing his consistent stand against Asian involvement by the U.S.

The Arkansas Democrat said that the issue of who rules Indochina is of little importance to U.S. security.

Challenging the effectiveness of the administration's gradual troop withdrawals and turning over the fighting to the South Vietnamese, he said:

"Vietnamization is not strengthening our hand. Like any reduction in military forces it is weakening our hand, and our enemies are not such mental defectives that they can be kidded into believing otherwise."

The senator said after the speech that his apprehension about possible U.S. involvement in Cambodia was not changed by assurances given to his committee Thursday by State Secretary William Rogers.

Rogers said the administration is trying to maintain Cambodian neutrality and does not plan to give military aid to the new government in Cambodia.

Fulbright said the issues of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia are inseparable.

SUPPORTS FRANCE'S MOVE

He backed a call by France Wednesday for a new Geneva conference on Indochina as extremely constructive.

The administration has been cautious in commenting on the French initiative, saying only that it would approve broadening of the Paris peace talks to include Laos and Cambodia.

Fulbright said the Communists could not drive the U.S. from Indochina but could force it to plunge in all the way or get out altogether, a choice he said the administration has declined to make.

Fulbright said the U.S. should accept North Vietnam's domination of Indochina as a political fact of life that poses no threat to American security.

"The plain fact that comes out of the war in Vietnam—reinforced by recent events in Laos and perhaps Cambodia as well—is that, puny as it is by great power standards, North Vietnam is paramount power in Indochina.

He emphasized he is not advocating a Communist-dominated Indochina. "I merely propose to accept it, if it arises from the local power situation, as something unwelcome but tolerable, and most emphatically not worth the extravagant costs of a war like the one we are now fighting."

NIXON SEEKS BOOST IN POSTAGE RATES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to raise the first class mail rate to 10 cents to finance a 6 per cent pay raise for postal workers and other government employees.

In a message to the house and Senate, the president also asked for acceleration of collection of gift and inheritance taxes to help pay for increases retroactive to last Dec. 27, as negotiated Thursday by the government and postal union. (See also Page 41).

He said the 10-cent letter rate — 4 cents above the present rate and leapfrogging a 7-cent plan included by Nixon in his budget message — would produce added revenues of about $2.3 billion, about $1.7 billion more than he anticipated in his budget proposal.

GM LEADS DECLINE

Quarterly New Car Sales Down

DETROIT (AP) — Hit by the worst March sales in eight years, the U.S. auto industry reported Thursday the worst first quarter sales of new cars since 1967.

The four major U.S. producers reported sales of 1,782,434 cars in the three months ended March 31, down 12.2 per cent from the 2,029,857 sold at this time last year.

Sales for March—traditionally one of the strongest selling months of the year—were 646,673, down 10.1 per cent from March, 1969. This made it the worst March since 1962, when 616,357 cars were sold.

The decline was led by industry giant General Motors, which reported its March sales were off 16.4 per cent from last year and down 18.2 per cent for the first quarter. GM sales plunged 22.4 per cent in the final 10 days of March.

Ford Motor Co., the No. 2 car builder, reported sales down 7.4 per cent in March and down 6.1 per cent for the first quarter. Ford sales were down 7.8 per cent in the final 10 days of the month.

Chrysler, the No. 3 automaker, reported sales of 126,735 in March, up 2.4 per cent from the 123,114 sold in March, 1969. Chrysler was helped by a 4.6-per-cent sales surge in the final 10 days of the month. The company attributed the increase to strong sales of its compact Dodge Dart and Plymouth Valiant and Duster lines.

For the first quarter, however, Chrysler sales were down 5.8 per cent.

American Motors, whose sales have been aided by the subcompact Hornet, reported sales up 3.5 per cent for the final 10 days of March, up 1.3 per cent for the entire month and up 4. 5 per cent for the first quarter. AMC's new, even smaller, subcompact Gremlin went on sale Wednesday.

Rock Slide Blocks CNR Main Line

BOSTON BAR, B.C. (CP)—A rock slide about 300 feet long has blocked the main Canadian National Railways line near Boston Bar, about 125 miles northeast of Vancouver.

A CNR spokesman said the slide, which occurred at 6 a.m., has left the rocks piled from 20 to 100 feet over the line.

"It sounds as though the whole rock face has slipped out," the spokesman said in Vancouver today.

He said bulldozers were heading toward the slide area, about 38 miles east of Boston Bar, but the line was not expected to be back in operation until about midnight.

The CNR passenger train from the east would be detoured over CPR lines as far as New Westminster and was expected to arrive in Vancouver 2½ hours late, the spokesman said. The CNR passenger train heading east was expected to leave Vancouver on time at 5:30 p.m. but would most likely also have to be detoured over CPR lines, he said.

AN ANSWER TO REBELLIOUS YOUTH

Youth-Domain Concept of Teaching Advanced

By MYRA MacPHERSON

WASHINGTON (WP) — A Dutch professor has some old "new" words for educating today's rebellious youth — give him a place of his own.

This place would be a youth preserve, a youth-domain, where the teen-ager could get a little protection from the adults around him.

After all, as Dr. Jan Koning says, "we protect our beautiful nature — the Everglades, Yosemite, Yellowstone but nowhere in our cities, nowhere in our countries do we have protected areas for youth."

Koning ran one of only five Montessori schools for high school level youths in the world. He is now a professor at the University of Amsterdam, teaching college students who will teach in high schools.

He spoke of his concept for revitalizing high school education at a three-day international Montessori conference here honoring the founder of that movement, Dr. Maria Montessori.

Not only is Koning someone over 30 the kids can trust, he sounds like them. He says teen-agers are "the most endangered"; that "our adult society is mostly hell," that our schools are more designed as "prisons" than centres of learning.

No Single Spot

He continues: "There is no single spot where our teenagers can enjoy themselves in their own field. Don't mention here the street-corner society, the juke box civilization, the drug — LSD — marijuana establishment, the sex experiments. These are only the counter-images of the real province of youth; they are mostly in the grip of only profit-seeking societies of adults."

Koning said his views for revitalizing education stem from a concept of Maria Montessori's now a half century old. First, the youth needs "protection" and second, "insight into existing society."

Protection means a school reservation, a city for teenagers, supervised by a teacher. Here the youth develops his own thinking, studies what he wants to study, at his own tempo, but, Koning emphasizes, "not alone but with the teacher's understanding."

Teachers in this "youth-domain" have a great deal to learn themselves, says Koning. "They have to learn to listen first, to listen second, and to listen and admire third." They also have to be "grounded very well" in language and mathematics and have a wealth of deep personal experiences to draw from for the presumably endless discussions the groups would have.

Koning said that Maria Montessori's idea of a school where youths can experiment with a new community would be a place where the youth would earn at least part of his own money. He would work on the farms, in offices, shops, factories and hotels of this "educational unit," says Koning.

Confrontation

The other side of the coin is that this cannot be a return to the cloisters of the middle ages, a "secluded area of peace" in some idyllic lodge. To make the concept work there must be a confrontation with existing society. Koning sees projects in which students get involved in communications between rich and poor, political leaders and delinquents in revolt — "projects of discovery and help."

Koning started this sort of school in The Hague several years ago. It was a non-graded school and Koning said one of the major problems was he had to learn to trust and listen to his students.

"If you have the courage to trust them, they they are not rebellious."

He had some final words for the generations of educators who have spent their lifetime boring students with droning lectures.

You cannot learn in schools where an "overdose of information" flows from class to class period; where the pupil has no time to rest, to think something out for himself, to concentrate, to dream, to seek an identity, he says.

"The school is not a place for boredom ... in school we should learn to enjoy our selves."

END TO 34 YEARS OF PUBLIC SERVICE

Senior Forestry Man Retires

Vern Phelps, the senior research services officer with the Victoria Forest Research Laboratory, retired March 31 after 34 years of public service.

A University of Toronto graduate in forestry and pharmacy, he joined the federal service in Winnipeg in 1936 as a professional forest engineer. During his career he was superintendent of the forest experimental station in Manitoba and was district forest officer for the Manitoba-Saskatchewan region for 10 years.

While in Victoria, Phelps served on a variety of advisory boards, including the reforestation and fertilization boards of the B.C. Tree Farm Forestry Committee, the B.C. Agricultural Advisory Committee and the subcommittee on forest land classification.

Recently he was the author of Timber Talks, a series of capsuled comments of detailed scientific reports covering the progress and results of forestry research conducted in the Victoria laboratory.

Phelps says he has no retirement plans but would like to "keep in touch with my forestry friends." He is an active member of the Association of Registered Foresters and the Canadian Institute of Forestry.

Potential Murderer Ruled Poor Partner

OTTAWA (CP) — The Northern Canada Power Commission has been ordered to re-instate with back pay a technician discharged last August after he refused to spend two weeks in northern isolation with a 75-year-old man who had threatened to kill him.

The order, announced this week, was issued by chief public service adjudicator Edward Jolliffe following hearings into a grievance by the technician, Owen Carr of Fort Smith, N.W.T.

Jolliffe criticized the discharge as "grossly excessive" and said the commission was irresponsible to permit the assignment of two antagonistic men "to duty alone at an isolated location where liquor and several guns were readily available."

At the hearings, the adjudicator was told Carr had refused at the last moment to accept a two-week shift at the commission's hydro-electric sub-station known as Twin Gorges.

His only co-worker would have been a casual employee, Patrick Lucy, who on two earlier occasions had lost his temper and threatened to assault Carr. Evidence at the hearing showed Lucy by his own admission occasionally went "haywire . . . even when sober."

The hearing was told Lucy liked to fight and had collected five guns, including an automatic pistol.

Carr said he did not want to spend two weeks in isolation with the man "in view of the old man's threats and frame of mind."

The adjudicator ruled Carr should have notified his supervisor of his decision earlier and that a proper penalty for his abrupt refusal should be a four-week suspension without pay.

FALCON FLIGHT JOINS USAF INTERCEPTORS

LONDON (AP) — Falcons joined the jets along U.S. Air Force runways in Britain Wednesday. Their target: the starlings and seagulls that endanger military flights.

Ten falcons and their British handler went on duty at Lakenheath Air Force Base, 60 miles north of London. Birds of prey begin patrols May 1, at Midelhall and June 1, at Alconbury.

The air force turned to falconry, the ancient hunting sport of kings, after modern methods failed to control bird populations around the bases.

Three aircraft were forced to make emergency landings in the last month after birds in flight struck engin cowlings or were sucked into jet intakes.

Reisman To Steer Finance Dept.

OTTAWA (CP) — Sol Simon Reisman, 51, took over as the government's top finance and economics adviser Wednesday.

As deputy minister of finance, Mr. Reisman succeeded Robert B. Bryce, 60, who has held the government's senior civil service post since 1963. Mr. Bryce moved to a cabinet secretariat post as a special adviser.

Mr. Reisman moved back to the finance department, where he started his public service career "temporarily" in 1946, from heading the treasury board staff. It is the body which scrutinizes all government spending.

In finance, he will be the taxes, tarriffs budgeting, and government's chief adviser on the economy generally. He also will serve, by right of his new job, on the board of the Bank of Canada and a flock of other government agencies.

Milk Co-Op Starts Haul To Victoria

NANAIMO — A Co-op has been formed by a group of 15 Nanaimo and Cedar farmers to combat high freight rates.

They started Thursday hauling milk to Victoria in their own trucks,

"Freight rates were just getting out of hand and we had to do something about it," said Mrs. Pearl Wheat, secretary of the Mid-Island Milk Producers Co-Op.

Previously the milk was hauled to Palm Dairies in Victoria by Ganderton Transport whose rates are set by the B.C. Public Utilities Commission. About 20,000 pounds of milk is shipped to Victoria daily.

Kiernan Favors Underwater Park in Strait

By BRUCE YEMEN
and VIC PARSONS

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday he is "quite favorably inclined" toward a proposed underwater park in the Strait of Georgia.

But he was critical of the federal government for failing to approach him directly with the proposal instead of promoting it through the press.

"Would you add some land to an underwater park?" asked Dave Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) in reference to a suggestion that a few islands might be included.

"I'm prepared to sit down and discuss it with federal ministers at any time," said Kiernan, who was asked by MLAs to give his views on oil drilling in the straits. He did not reply.

The park proposal, suggested by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and reportedly gaining a wave of public support, was raised by Brousson during debate on Kiernan's departmental estimates which were approved shortly after 10 p.m. after six hours of debate.

During the long debate, MLAs rose up to speak on everything from tourist facilities and hunting licences to pollution and nerve gas shipments.

Nerve Gas Precautions Urged

Harold Merilees (SC—Vancouver Burrard) warned the government to take precautions to prevent accidents involving the shipment of nerve gas or oil through the Gulf of Georgia.

He asked that the government take steps to co-operate with Washington State to fight pollution in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Gulf of Georgia and Puget Sound.

Facilities for tourists in B.C. should be improved, Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) said. There should be grading of accommodation and improvement in services.

Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) said that pressure was being brought against the recreation and conservation department by Americans to get special privileges for hunting. He asked that the minister take precautions to ensure that regulations are being kept and that game be preserved for the people of the province.

Action Taken On Hunting Abuse

Kiernan replied that when officials or guides are suspected of wrongdoing, action is taken to prevent abuse of the rules.

He also told Macdonald that although only five per cent of the hunting licences are issued to non-residents, they provide one-third of the direct revenue from hunting yet take about 7.5 per cent of the kill. The proportion of non-residents getting licences has remained at about the same figure for a decade.

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) said the recreation and conservation department was being shortchanged by being allowed only less than one per cent of the budget. Wilderness areas should receive top priority and be protected against misuse.

Nimsick warned that the number of game animals taken by hunters in the Kootenays since the antlerless hunting was brought in is a signal the government might have to cut back the bag limit there.

William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) said that killing off antlerless animals will destroy next year's crop because mothers carrying calves are being slain.

He advised a committee to study wildlife and environmental effects on animals.

End of Man in 40 Years

NDP leader Dave Barrett referred to the magazine Wildlife Review published by the department as a "rational" publication that publishes articles related to conservation and pollution.

He read parts of one copy which stated in part that misunderstanding of the environment had led to the demise of all other civilizations, and that if the present rates of pollution continue it would mean the end of man in 40 years.

Barrett wondered if Kiernan would repudiate statements by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell that teachers who made similar statements to their pupils were "unethical."

The NDP leader also said that in 1958 the province had about 8.3 million acres of parks, but this figure had been reduced to 6.4 million acres by 1968. "If you want to play a numbers game, you look bad."

Funeral Plans Under Attack

American funeral service companies are milking the bereaved of the province with the complicity of the government and Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said Thursday in the legislature.

People who are bereaved should not be made victims of those who profit out of their bereavement, Williams said, contending that the Public Utilities Commission is failing in its responsibility to see that public trust funds are being properly used.

Williams said the complicity was revealed in correspondence between the attorney-general's department and legal representatives of Vancouver funeral operations owned by Service Corporation International of Houston, Tex. About $2 million of perpetual care funds are invested to make a profit for shareholders, the MLA added.

'OPPORTUNITIES'

Investors in the company had made from the trust funds more than double the amount earned from the business, with shares increasing in value from 77 cents to $3.10 without the companies doing "one tap of work."

He asked that the PUC ensure the companies do not make more than their proper share.

Williams said the companies had a slick promotional pamphlet out called Opportunities in Depth. "It should be called Opportunities in Death because that is where they are making their money."

The PUC should let it be known that there are facilities in the pcovince for the responsible commitment of the dead in a way that does not milk the living, Williams said.

USELESS

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said the PUC had a valuable role in the past as a supervisory body aver B.C. Hydro, and asked that the commission be restored to its role.

Liberal Leader Pat McGer said the commission is useless and should be abolished.

The $534,000 estimate of the PUC was passed after about a half-hour of discussion.

GORDON BAY CAMPSITE OPENS IN JULY

A 67-acre campsite at Gordon Bay on Lake Cowichan should be operational by July 1, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

Kiernan made the announcement when replying to a question from Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat). Strachan had asked what plans the government had for the development of more parks close to Victoria.

Kiernan also said that a campsite at Cottonwood Creek will be a bigger park in the long term but additional acreage had yet to be acquired, and access problems had to be solved.

WOLFISH RHETORIC BITES THAT HAND

The punch-line of the legislative session was delivered Thursday night at the expense of Frank Ney (SC — Nanaimo).

•

Speaking during debate on recreation and conservation estimates, the new MLA started off full-speed ahead by boasting that timber wolves had once been used as "lapdogs" in Nanaimo but lately they were dwindling alarmingly.

"Where are the wolves of Vancouver Island?" asked the dapper real estate man, rhetorically.

•

B.C. Legislature Session Ending

The legislative session was expected to end later this afternoon after mopping up resolutions and private members' bills, the only business left on the order paper following more than eight hours of sittings Thursday.

Spending estimates for the recreation and conservation department, the ministers without portfolio, the Public Utilities Commission and the legislature were approved Thursday along with third reading of five bills.

The bills included amendments to the Public Schools Act, an omnibus bill, and an act to establish a municipal financing authority to raise money through the sale of bonds for water, sewerage and pollution control facilities needed by municipalities and regional districts.

An act which would have regulated the practice of hearing-aid dealers and consultants introduced by Minister without Portfolio Isabel Dawson was not proceeded with.

DAUGHTER SMOKES OUT FATHER

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — For two days, 14-year-old Sheree Bryan refused to eat as a means of forcing her father to quit smoking.

After watching his daughter lose eight pounds, James Bryan, 47, declared himself a confirmed former smoker after 25 years of pursuing the habit.

"I knew he couldn't hold out," Sheree giggled, gobbling down two tuna sandwiches, six cookies and an apple.

'I was beaten," her father said Thursday.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Trading Light, Prices Off

Under slow trading prices declined today on the Toronto and New York stock markets.

Brokers said there was a general disinterest in buying as result of a lack of stimulating news.

Prices were mixed in light trading at Montreal while the same situation held true during the morning session at Vancouver.

AT TORONTO, Dome Pete was off 2½ to 53¼, Alberta Gas Trunk 1 to 41½, Thompson Paper Box 1 to 8, and Investors Overseas 1 to 34.

Seaway rose 1⅛ to 15⅝, Neonex ¾ to 5¾, Imperial Oil ⅛ to 22 and MacMillan Bloedel ⅛ to 33¾.

Hollinger rose 1¼ to 32¼ and Lake Dufault 1 to 19¼.

Asamera dropped 1 to 17 and Banff ⅛ to 10⅛. Scurry rose ⅝ to 28½.

AT NEW YORK copper industry stocks were lower, although Inspiration Consolidated had joined Phelps Dodge in raising prices to 60 cents a pound from 56.

Some big blocks were traded, including 99,300 shares of Control Data at 55, off 2⅛.

AT MONTREAL there was little excitement on the stock market today as most issues traded in a narrow range. Prices were mixed with banks leading declines.

Velcro Industries, which began a steady recovery several weeks ago from its 1970 low of 24, was up 2¾ to 31½.

Hollinger gained 1 to 32 in light trading and Abitibi advanced ¼ to 11⅞. Fleetwood dropped 1½ to 11 and Falconbridge ¾ to 175½.

Among banks, Royal slipped ⅜ to 22½, Toronto Dominion ⅜ to 21, Provincial Bank of Canada ¼ to 10¼ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to 16½.

AT LONDON, the stock market was quietly firm today.

ICI was weak in the wake of the chairman's statement and the increased bid for Viyella. The price closed at 51s. Viyella rose to 12s 6d.

Other leaders were generally higher with Phillip Lamps at 191s 3d following an optimistic annual report.

Oils were depressed in otherwise narrowly irregular Canadians. Dome lost five points at 188, Syracuse fell 1s to 18s 3d. Imperial and Pacific Pete shed one point. Consolidated Bathurst Alcan, Canadian Pacific and Noranda made modest gains.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was light and prices were mixed today as the stock exchange reported a volume to 11 a.m. of 1,221,639 shares traded.

In the industrials, NWL Finance was up .70 at $4.95 after trading 23,045 shares. Ionarc was up .10 at $3.60, and Neonex added .37 to $5.50.

Alcan Reveals Plans for Expansion

MONTREAL (CP) — Nathanael V. Davis, president of Alcan Aluminium Ltd., told the company's annual meeting Thursday about plans for the expansion and diversification of Alcan's bauxite mining and alumina manufacturing operations.

Alcan is expanding the capacities of three alumina plants in Guyana and Jamaica and is participating in the Gladstrone plant in Australia, where further expansion is in the design stages, Davis said.

In addition to these increases, however, further alumina requirements are being studied, particularly for use in Alcan's new aluminum smelter under construction in England and to meet other European commitments.

"The results of our studies indicate that the most desirable and economic location for a new alumina plant will likely be in the European area.

"A decision on such a major development, involving a capital investment of $120,000,000 between 1971 and 1974 will probably be made in the course of this year."

Davis told shareholders Alcan plans to open up a major new bauxite development in the Amazon River region of Brazil—to produce at the outset 1,000,000 tons of bauxite a year—mainly for use in Canadian alumina plants, starting in 1973 or 1974.

Furthermore, Alcan has a 27-per-cent interest in the international consortium of aluminum producers which will start shipping bauxite from Guinea in West Africa in 1972.

When total shipments reach their expected annual level of 10,000,000 tons in 1978, Davis said, this will probably rank among the largest single bauxite operations in the world.

Alcan has invested the equivalent of $300,000,000 and employs about 9,000 people in the Commonwealth Caribbean, Davis said.

GM Plans Pause In Production

DETROIT (CP) — General Motors has announced it plans to close seven of its 23 passenger car assembly plants this month for periods ranging from one to five days. Some 33,300 workers will be affected by the closings, GM reported. GM and other auto companies have been hit by declining sales of their 1970 models.

Weldwood

Properties based at 100-Mile House include a five-year-old plywood plant having 60 million square feet of ⅜ plywood, small log and large log sawmills with combined capacity of 135,000 board feet per shift. Weldwood plans to increase capacity of the operations.

Owners of Canim Lake were brothers T. A. and R. Jens, and Canim Holdings Ltd., a family company. They employed 210 workers and more will be added when mills are integrated with Weldwood.

Western

Western Electronics and Engineering of Calgary has taken over Northwest Commercial Sales Ltd. of Edmonton and Northland Commercial Sales Ltd. of Vancouver.

The Edmonton company specializes in the sale and leasing of industrial and road-building equipment while the Vancouver firm deals in custom-designed vehicles for the logging industry.

Companies held by Western Electronics are involved in electrical equipment, oil and gas drilling, geophysical exploration, heavy equipment and earth-moving machines.

Hudson's Bay

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Col. Ltd. had net earnings of $27 million or $1.40 a share in 1969 compared with $26.79 million or $1.38 a share in 1968.

President L. J. Richards said the Calgary-based company's long record of substantial annual gains in net earnings was interrupted by the impact of income taxes which previously had been negligible due to accumulated deductions for drilling and exploration carried forward from prior years.

Earnings before providing for $2.36 million of income taxes were up 9.6 per cent. Funds generated from operations, after providing for income taxes, increased 4.8 per cent to $44.79 million or $76.49 million gross revenue on the year, up 14.4 per cent.

Agra

Agra Industries Ltd. shareholders have consented to their company's takeover of Western Caissons Ltd. group and Torchinski Consulting Ltd., an engineering advisory firm, both based on the Prairies.

Total price will be $125,000 and 200,000 common shares of Agra. The deal is expected to add $7-$8 million a year to sales and 15 cents a share to earnings of Agra.

Western Caissons is a specialist in piles and foundations with offices in principal cities across Canada, while Torchinsky Consulting, whose head is B. B. Torchinsky, the president of Agra, does testing, soil mechanics, foundation and highway work, and other civil engineering.

Allarco

Allarco Developments Ltd. reports net profit in 1969 of $538,830 compared with $398,666 the previous year.

The annual report for the firm and its subsidiaries gave consolidated net profit before depreciation expenses, provision for deferred income taxes and minority shareholders' interest, as $1.84 million compared with $1.49 million in 1968.

U.S. Brokers Granted Hike In Fees

WASHINGTON (WP) — Stockbrokers will soon raise their commission rates for handling securities, purchases and sales on the nation's major stock exchanges.

The higher rates, which were approved Thursday by the Securities and Exchange Commission, will become effective Monday. On transactions of less than 1,000 shares, the extra charge will be equal to one-half of the present commission rate or $15—whichever is less.

At the same time, the SEC told brokers to handle all transactions regardless of their size. In the last year, many firms had imposed restrictions, either by demanding a minimum commission (a common requirement: $15) or refusing to accept orders under fixed floor (such as $1,000).

To the small stockholder, the new fee schedule will mean extra costs that diminish with the size of his purchase or sale.

The new fee schedule is intended to be temporary. The SEC, which is now studying a proposal from the New York Stock Exchange for a permanent revision in the commission structure, said it would review the temporary changes after three months.

Standard Buys Pet Food Plants From Western

VANCOUVER (CP) — The sale of Western Realty Projects Ltd.'s pet food division to standard Brands Ltd. was announced Thursday by Western president Samuel Belzberg.

The division is a major processor of pet foods in the prairie provinces with plants in Calgary, Lethbridge, Alta., and Edmonton.

The purchase price was not disclosed.

"The decision to dispose of the pet food operation is in keeping with our policy of concentrating on large scale real estate development," Belzberg said. "The directors feel the capital received from this sale can be utilized for further development and generate a much higher rate of return."

The pet food division was brought into Western Realty with the amalgamation of 16 private real estate development companies at the beginning of 1969.

Western, now a public company, has real estate developments under way in Regina, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

Hughes Buys Airline

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Howard Hughes, the seldom-seen financier who has vast real estate holdings in this gambling centre, has bought Air West, a regional airline with 9,000 miles of routes in eight western states, Canada and Mexico, for about $90,000,000, it was announced Thursday.

Hughes is a former major stockholder in Trans World Airlines. He sold his TWA holdings for $546,000,000 in 1966.

VICE-REGAL INSPECTION

Queen's Scouts Honored

Resplendent in multicolored scarves, shoulder flashes and merit badges, 180 Queen's Scouts and Venturers assembled before a large crowd in front of the Empress Hotel Thursday afternoon.

Ranging in age from 13 to 16, they had come from all over the province for the 15th annual Queen's Scout and Venturer Ceremony Thursday afternoon at Government House.

Having arrived from Vancouver Wednesday afternoon aboard HMCS Yukon and HMCS Qu'Appelle, they were at the hotel to attend a luncheon given in their honor by the provincial government.

The morning assemblage, which included 21 scouts from the Greater Victoria area, attracted in addition to relatives and friends, many passersby on Government Street.

Later at the ballroom at Government House Lt.-Governor John R. Nicholson himself a former scout, presented each of the young men with a certificate, officially investing him as Queen's Scout or Venturer, one of the highest honors an active scout in Canada can receive.

Before the presentations were made, B.C. Assistant Scout Commissioner Robert Simmons praised the scouts for hard work and initiative and said the scout leaders also deserved some credit for the achievements of their charges.

Acting in his dual capacity as provincial scout patron and as the Queen's representative, Nicholson expressed his pleasure at the number of people in attendance.

Nicholson said it was the last such ceremony in B.C. for the investiture of Queen's Scouts, but added that a ceremony for the Queen's Venturers, who are older, could continue.

Crowd Gathers in House Carl Built

More than 500 persons gathered Thursday in the Newcombe Auditorium of the Provincial Museum for a memorial service to Dr. G. Clifford Carl, the museum's director for 29 years and a good friend to many.

"This fine new building was his dream for many years," said deputy recreation and conservation minister Harold McWilliams, "and we are thankful he lived to see it in operation."

Dr. Carl, who died last Friday at the age of 62, retired as museum director Dec. 31 to take over the museum's marine biology department.

'LOVED TO SING'

"He was happy in this work and he looked forward to many years of work in a field that he loved," McWilliams said. "He was a man of wide interests and he worked hard to raise funds for those in need.

"Actions speak louder than words and the great number of people attending this service today are an indication of his worth.

"He loved to sing and the choral group to which he belonged is here to honor him in song."

Gathered on the platform were The Village Squires, a harmonious male voice ensemble representing the Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Singing.

Unaccompanied, they sang two of Dr. Carl's favorites—The Battle Hymn of the Republic, and Saviour, Again to Thy Dear Name We Raise.

It was the only music heard during the simple service.

"Our prayer today is that God will accept the soul of our brother, Clifford Carl," said Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh, rector of St. Michael and All Angels Anglican Church, who officiated.

He led the congregation in the recital of The Lord's Prayer and read passages from Scripture, notably:

"I am the Resurrection and the Life, saith the Lord. He that believeth in Me though he were dead yet shall he live."

Among the men and women from all walks of life was a man who followed the service from a stretcher below the platform.

Normal Lidster, a blind and partially paralysed patient at Mount St. Mary's Hospital, had expressed a special wish to be there.

POLICE SEIZE JARS OF LSD

TORONTO (CP) — Police say they seized two jars of LSD tablets Thursday in a search of a house here, and charged George Joseph McGolrick of Ioco, B.C., with possession of restricted drugs for trafficking purposes.

Brian Charles Anderson, 23, and Annie Ludmilla Holiday, 24, both were charged with illegal possession of hashish as a result of the same search.

INTRODUCING THE EXECUTIVE JET. T.M.

The conveniences of the office.

We know there's no place to work like your office. Still, we think our new Executive Jet can sort of act as your office away from the office while flying across Canada. It has some of the conveniences of your office, plus some you may wish you had in your office.

So next time you're planning a flight within Canada, make sure it's on one of our many regularly scheduled Executive Jet flights.

If you'd rather work than play.

Some men aren't happy unless they're working.

So we've put DeJur dictating equipment on all Executive Jet flights. Now, when that great business idea suddenly comes to you at 30,000 feet, you'll be able to record it instead of forgetting it.

Perhaps you have some important memos to get out. Just dictate them into one of our recorders and drop the tape off at our airport ticket counter when you land. Office Overload will type a first draft and send it ahead to your office. That way, your secretary will have things up-to-date when you get back.

Financial newspapers to show you how much money you could have made.

Or how much money you saved by not investing in the last tip your barber gave you.

All Executive Jets now carry most major financial newspapers from the Wall Street Journal to the Financial Post.

And if that's not enough to keep you financially informed, read the brief, up-to-the-minute resume of marketing/financial information that is passed around aboard every Executive Jet. (The resume is revised throughout the day. So you're never behind the times.)

Publications that might be found in your office. But not necessarily in your home.

Our survey has shown that a great many executives enjoy browsing through men's magazines in their leisure office hours. So, with the executive's pleasure in mind, we've made Playboy magazine available on all Executive Jets.

We also carry all major magazines that are directed to today's businessman. Magazines like Fortune, Harvard Business Review, and Executive are just a few.

Our stewardesses don't look like stewardesses.

For one thing, our stewardesses don't wear standard uniforms. They wear what we call "non-uniforms." Our non-uniform fashions are supplied to us by Canada's best known department store. So you know they're contemporary.

For instance, instead of uniforms that make stewardesses look like they're in the army, you'll see our girls in pantsuits, maxi-coats and bell bottoms.

And as fashions and seasons change, so will our stewardesses' dress. That way, you'll never get tired of looking at them.

Our stewardesses also have a way of making you feel comfortable throughout your flight. They're courteous, friendly, and tuned to the needs of the business flyer.

Leave your business troubles behind.

The atmosphere on board is always relaxed and informal. The food is good. The distractions plentiful. And the people on board are the kind of people a business flyer can talk to. They're mostly other business flyers.

The comforts of home.

We know there's no place like home. Still, we think our new Executive Jet can sort of act as your home away from home while flying across Canada.

It has some of the comforts you have at home, plus some you may wish you had at home.

The better treatment starts on the ground.

Unless you board an Executive Jet in a good mood, you may not be in the mood to enjoy all the good things we've put aboard.

So we've taken special care to assure you a pleasant boarding experience. We've trained our ground personnel in the fastest methods of confirming reservations and checking baggage.

It may seem like a small thing but we know from experience that if a flight is to be totally pleasant, it has to get off to a good start.

Home cooked meals.

The food you get aboard every Executive Jet is prepared by tender, loving hands. Hands that have been trained by the best Continental and Canadian masters around.

And the meat and fowl served aboard are the finest quality money can buy. So you know that the meals you get on every Executive Jet are as good as the ones you get at home.

Variety is the spice of reading.

And the reading material on every Executive Jet is varied enough to please almost anyone's taste. We have specialty magazines for businessmen. We have current issues of Newsweek and Time for those who are still trying to understand the world.

You can even pick from top-selling fiction and non-fiction books.

Games people play.

The games we have aboard are not for kids.

They're sophisticated games. The kind of games that can keep you engaged for hours.

For instance, Instant Insanity. Here's a puzzle that can reduce a sophisticated executive to a babbling child in twenty minutes.

Soma is another game that can help the executive relax and forget about business for a while.

Next time you fly with us, just tell the stewardess you're in the mood to play games.

Beer: We give you a choice.

A man shouldn't have to drink the same old brew every time. So we let you choose between several of the finest Canadian beers on the market.

Women: Find happiness on the Executive Jet.

Can a woman really find happiness aboard an Executive Jet?

We think so. After all, it's comfortable for anyone; man, woman, or child.

The women won't have to dictate or read Fortune to have fun, either. There are dozens of other things to do.

And the men who fly on the Executive Jet are the kind that women enjoy talking to. They're smart men.

Aware men.

They're MEN.

So feel welcome, ladies. You'll be in good company.

Man, 21, Jailed On Drug Count

Robert J. Grohs, 21, of 490 Gorge, was sentenced Thursday to 18 months' definite and 18 months indeterminate in prison for possession of hashish and trafficking in the restricted drugs LSD and STP.

Grohs pleaded guilty to the three charges when he appeared in court March 26.

Police testified they found six grams of hashish, 185 tablets of LSD and 155 capsultes of STP in Grohs' motel room when they entered it March 5.

He had a previous drug possession conviction in March, 1969.

Grohs asked he be sentenced to an institution where he could receive technical training and the definite-indeterminate sentece made this possible.

Judge William Ostler sentenced Grohs to 18 months definite and 18 indeterminate for each of the trafficking charges and six months on the possession charge, to be served concurrently.

★ ★ ★

Gary Nicholas Manick, 23, of Alberta, was sentenced to three months in prison for assault causing bodily harm and an additional seven days for driving an auto when his blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent.

Manick pleaded guilty to attacking a 17-year-old youth at a service station near Colwood about 7:25 p.m. April 1.

He had gone to the station with a friend who got into an argument with the youth before Manick struck him for no apparent reason.

The youth required stitches to a cut lip and had some teeth chipped.

Two hours later, city police stopped the accused at Douglas and Queens after he was observed driving erratically.

He had a breathalyzer reading of .14 per cent at the time.

★ ★ ★

Louis St. Hilaire, 55, of 4193 Quadra, was fined $250 for driving an auto when he wasn't covered by insurance.

Darrell A. Danyluck, 19, of 1243 Colville, was also fined $250 for driving without insurance.

She was stopped on Burnside about 3:30 p.m. March 2.

★ ★ ★

Larry Howard Caton, 25, of Malahat Drive, was fined $250 Wednesday for refusing to provide a breath sample when asked to do so by a police officer.

He was apprehended by police as he walked away from his parked vehicle on Broad about 12:40 a.m. Feb. 27.

47 CHEATERS HIT WELFARE

A total of 47 persons was convicted of defrauding the department of social welfare during 1969, Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi reported Thursday in answers to written questions on the legislative order paper.

The total amount involved was $27,430, he replied to Ernest Hall (NDP—Surrey).

●

The question apparently was placed on the order paper as Ea result of claims by Gaglardi that welfare recipients were "falling like flies" from the rolls in a crackdown on cheating following his takeover of the department in October.

A total of 63 persons was charged. There were 47 convictions.

The welfare rolls have numbered about 90,000 in recent months.

DEVELOPMENT WHITE PAPER COMING

Minister Freezes Park Deals

A white paper on parks development on Vancouver Island is being prepared by the provincial government, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday night.

And until the report is completed at an undetermined time, no further trades of parkland or parkland timber rights will be made, Kiernan told the legislature.

DEAL CRITICIZED

He was replying to Bob Williams (NDP — Vancouver East) who had asked if Kiernan planned any more trades similar to one last September in which the government acquired 576 acres of parkland at Cape Scott on the northern tip of Vancouver Island for the timber rights to 5,260 acres of Strathcona Park.

The deal with a lumber company was widely criticized at the time but the government defended it as the most economical and sensible means of acquiring the land to be included in a proposed 38,000-acre park at Cape Scott.

Kiernan said staff members in his department are working on "comprehensive" assessment of parks potential on the Vancouver Island at the present time but gave no indication when it might be completed.

SKI PARK

Kiernan said a look will be taken at the possibility of the Cathedral Grove-Mt. Arrowsmith areas being made into a park as requested by a 7,000-signature petition recently, but he warned that the costs of land acquisition in the area, near Port Alberni, would be high.

Dr. H. R. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) said he would do all he could to promote a park at the site which he said offers the best skiing on Vancouver Island as well as excellent hiking.

McDiarmid also called for a ban on motorcycles and other unmuffled vehicles on Long Beach and also for extra staff to clean up garbage and empty pit toilets during the summer rush.

He said adequate park reserves should be established at Sproat Lake in readiness for the increase in traffic flow to Long Beach when the Alberni-Tofino road is completed.

Frank Ney (SC—Nanaimo) said Green Mountain should be considered as a park site and John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich) asked for expansion of McDonald Park to serve more campers.

CMA Chief Asks Help From Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — L. F. Wills, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Thursday government anti-inflationary policy should include support for employers in resisting union pressures for wage increases.

"Somehow or another, we have to get it through to union members that there is no way they can easily get the kind of increases which have been so prevalent in the last three or four years," he said.

"There has to be a return to reality and we in industry have the right to expect the full backing of the authority of government — federal and provincial — for the harder line that we are now bound to take where future bargaining is concerned.

"To take any other position is to make nonsense of the efforts of the government-backed prices and incomes commission, and more especially of the support we are giving the commission and the principle of wage and price restraint," Wills, president of Honeywell Controls Ltd., Toronto, told the annual meeting of the British Columbia division of the CMA.

"Our support for the anti-inflationary policy requires of us firmness and steadfast refusal to give in to strike and other pressures for increases of the kind which can only worsen the present situation."

Wills endorsed present government anti-inflation policies as "the lesser evil than allowing inflation to continue to rip at the rate at which it has been going."

He suggested that the commission concerned itself with wages and salaries and government expenditures, rather than profits. He said wages, salaries and supplementary income make up 55.2 per cent of the gross national product, government expenditures 33.5 per cent, and profits, before taxes, 10.2 per cent.

Used Dummies Needed For Old Clothes

Goodwill's community relations officer Wilf Burton said they need not be in the ultimate of shape.

"Any minor surgery needed can be handled by our own staff in our workshop."

Burton says they need three male and three female mannequins to be used in their Duncan and Victoria stores.

New Highway Moved Away From School

LAKE COWICHAN — The department of highways has consented to a change in the site at which the new Lake Cowichan highway will enter the village, council was told.

The road will parallel the eastern boundary line and join South Shore Road near the village sign.

Both the council and school board objected to the original plan which proposed that the access road pass by J. H. Boyd school and enter South Shore Road between Cowichan Motors and the forestry station.

A letter was sent to Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) thanking him for arranging a meeting with the highways department regarding the change in access.

DON'T DROP IT NOW! Architect Paul Humphries, left, and administrator Ken Noton hold a model of present Cowichan District Hospital and proposed extended care wing as member of medical staff, Dr. Charles Ennals, looks on. The hospital association will present final plans to the regional board at its next meeting before seeking final approval from BCHIS. A bylaw then will be prepared. (Ed Gould photo.)

Young to Inherit Spoiled Earth

LAKE COWICHAN — Today's children will receive as their legacy a world in which the whole balance of nature has been altered by thoughtless and greedy man, a SPEC spokesman told the Lake Cowichan Fish and Game Club.

John Clark, president of the local Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, said "young people are going to have to be pretty special types in order to be able to make out."

The fish and game club voted at the meeting to join the local SPEC chapter and donated $15 over and above its membership fees.

Clark said this area is relatively unspoiled compared with other areas of the continent but it is "up to all of us to make sure it remains unspoiled."

He detailed areas around Lake Cowichan where pollution is advancing. Parts of the Cowichan River are clogged with garbage, metal, tires and cable. The lake is full of snags and deadheads that made boating hazardous and ruined fishing.

"The upper part of our river is, in places, covered several feet deep with old rotting bark which uses up oxygen in the water and spoils the bottom for spawning."

He said uncontrolled runoff in logged-off areas caused erosion and an increased water temperature which is harmful to fish.

Clark complimented the fish and game association for working with young people and for teaching them an appreciation of nature and the importance of conservation and maintaining nature's balance.

Harm to Fish Breeding Feared From Below-Normal Snowpack

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN—If present below-normal snowpack in the watersheds is followed by unusually dry weather, pulp-making and fish propagation will be adversely affected, several experts said Thursday.

Conservation officer Jack Fox of British Columbia fish and game branch said everything depended on precipitation in the next few months.

Fox said he had not seen such small amounts of snow at lower elevations in several years of winter field trips. However, "a wet spring and summer would remedy the situation."

MAJOR CONSUMER

B.C. Forest Service observers confirmed that at 3,000 to 3,500-foot elevations there was generally lower snowpack than in normal years.

"If there is not much of a snow pileup in the hills it could be serious," said Bill Reynolds, manager of Crofton Pulp and Paper Limited.

The company is a major consumer of water, drawing 50 million gallons daily from the Cowichan River.

He said company engineers are keeping a close watch and are in touch with water resources officials.

ADEQUATE FLOW

Fisheries officials for their part want an adequate flow for species which spend a year in the river, notably coho and steelhead fry, as well as for trout.

An extremely dry season could not only strand fry but also raise the water temperature to the detriment of young fish, Fox said.

District agriculturist Ken Jameson said with good rain "we haven't any worries. There is plenty of moisture for farmers now but a hot, dry May and June could change the picture and hay and forage crops could be light."

Mill Staff to Man Lake Cowichan Dam

LAKE COWICHAN — Operation of the control gates at Lake Cowichan weir will begin on or around April 15, Crofton Pulp and Paper Limited announced today.

Manager W. S. Reynolds said company personnel will be on duty at the weir 24 hours a day, seven days a week for the duration of the control season.

The weir, or dam, is used to effect gradual regulation of the river flow. The company has guaranteed to accommodate the boating public requiring the use of lock services.

Heroin Charge Draws Term

NANAIMO — Henry Noel Streit, 31, of Duncan, found guilty of possessing heroin, was sentenced in county court Thursday to nine months in jail plus an 18-month probationary term.

He was arrested Feb. 14 in Port Alberni.

Rangers on Spot As Detroit Wins

Bill WALKER

In the ranks of officialdom, one of the newest members of the B.C. Sports Hall of Fame is a rebel. Bruce Humber once stopped the British Empire Games from continuing until he got his way.

He challenged a ruling of the official starter in Auckland, N.Z. in 1950. And he made it stick. But he was told not to do it again. He didn't have to. He had won his point. And he had won a medal for Canada.

It happened this way.

The preliminary events of the track program were being run off, and Canada had a respected performer in Don Pettie of Calgary. However, Pettie got off to two false starts in the 100 metres and under international rules was promptly disqualified by the starter.

But wait! Who was speeding down the track at the Eden Park Cricket Grounds waving his arms in protest?

"It's not fair," he cried. "That's not the way we have been interpreting the rule. He should be allowed to continue."

An hour's discussion ensued. The starter stuck to his decision, and the jury of appeal upheld him. However, because there was a question of interpretation involved, the jury of appeal relented. It allowed Pettie to compete with the consent of the other runners in the competition, but added the rider:

"For the balance of the meeting Canada will accept the jury's interpretation of the starting rule."

Pettie ran, and qualified for the final. His times were 9.9 and 9.8. He had never run faster. Unfortunately it wasn't good enough to win. John Treloar of Australia took the gold medal with a time of 9.7. But Pettie did finish third. And the only reason he did was because of Bruce Humber.

But if Humber was a rebel this once, it was because he had a cause. For he also has been a realist in track and field for longer than most. His performances were often unmatched. His ideals always unquestioned.

Not only did Bruce begin setting records as a high school youth in the city in the early '30s, but he also played a vital part in the development of others. His 9.9 for the 100 yards was unheard of for a high schooler. His 21.8 for the 220 was equally noteworthy. Both these marks were made in Seattle where he also attended high school.

It is obvious that anyone making the Olympics is very good. Bruce was. The results he obtained prove it. He was a finalist in the 200 metres in 1932, and was a member of the Canadian relay team which finished fourth in the 400-metre event.

Bruce had been to the wars as pilot with the R.C.A.F. and his competitive career had long since ended when in 1953 a startling event took place. Someone had broken his Canadian record of 20.8 for the 200 metres, which still is close to world class time.

At the University of Washington, his name was on the honor roll for longer than that. His mark of 9.6 for the 100 and 20.8 for the 200 were targets for 32 years.

But now it was civilian life, and Bruce was a volunteer coach of the "Y" track club. He had, in conjunction with the Gyro Club, the high schools, and others, been instrumental in pushing the construction of the Victoria High School cinder track, and later the Oak Bay high track. There were no tracks in Victoria after the war.

During that time there were several who came under his wing, and they were Olympic and international competitors because of him. Bill Parnell, who won the mile at Auckland, Cliff Salmond, Bob Hutchison, Terry Tobacco, Dawn Josephs . . . all were Canadian champions.

It was Humber who helped them run like they could.

There are others, too, who are carrying on the tradition he left with them. Rafael Duke, Bill and Bob Abbott, Ted Whan, Don Burgess. There is no reason to doubt their faith in the past, and in Bruce Humber. His coaching habits didn't have many flaws.

His contribution on a national level could also be cited. Besides the BEG post in 1950, he was Canadian coach at the '52 Olympics. He probably could have had more benefits. But he declined. There were other things to do.

Victoria needed a major track, and Bruce thought it could come about. There were some who believed otherwise. At any rate, he persevered, and as chairman of the 1967 Centennial Project Committee, he may have had an "in". Because when the decision finally was made, the Centennial Stadium won out.

There were the dissenters who said it would become a private stadium for the University. Other schools would be banned.

Not so, said Humber. It will be for one and all.

And so the finest running track this side of Winnipeg has become just that. Last year the benefits were beginning to accrue. The stadium was being used by high schools and junior schools. The Mount Doug track squad won B.C. honors. The Canadian championships were held here, and track and field had reached a new peak in interest.

Sure, Bruce Humber is a rebel.

But he's a rebel with an image. And it will look well in the B.C. Sports Hall of Fame.

Flyers In Danger Of Missing Berth In West Division

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings have one stumbling block remaining in their bid to make the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time in four years.

The Wings dumped the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 Thursday night to move into third place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division, one point ahead of Montreal Canadiens, who were idle.

With two games remaining for all teams in the East, all the Wings now have to do is tie a game with New York Rangers in their home-and-home series this weekend.

New York must win both games to get past the Red Wings, who lead the Rangers by three points. A tie would give the Wings 94 points and a playoff berth over the Rangers because of their better win record.

While the Red Wings strengthened their playoff hopes in the East, Philadelphia Flyers suffered a setback in their bid for a playoff spot in the Western Division by losing 1-0 to first-place St. Louis Blues.

IT'S CLOSE

The loss left the Flyers still in third place with 58 points, two ahead of Oakland Seals and Minnesota North Stars, but they have one game remaining in the regular schedule compared with two for both the Seals and North Stars.

POWER-PLAY GOAL

Norm Ullman put Toronto back in the game in the second period on a power-play goal but Howe and Mahovlich scored two quick goals to deflate the Leafs, winless in their last five games.

The Leafs held the Wings scoreless in the third period during which Toronto picked up its second goal as Bob Pulford tipped in a shot by Dave Keon.

Philadelphia's loss was a heart-breaker to the 14th consecutive sellout crowd of 14,606 in the Spectrum. The Flyers were bombing St. Louis' goalie Ernie Wakely with shots from all points when Jim Roberts stole the puck and skated in alone for his 13th goal of the season through the legs of Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent.

Wakely's shutout was his fourth of the season.

KINGS MEET SEALS

In a game tonight that could determine one of the two remaining spots in the Western Division, Los Angeles Kings meet the Seals at Oakland.

The playoff battle continues Saturday and Sunday—windup of the regular season—with only Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks assured of playoff berths in the East and St. Louis and Pittsburgh Penguins in the West.

Final positions in the East—except for last-place Toronto—depend on home-and-home series' this weekend. Boston and Chicago, tied for first, play Toronto and Montreal respectively twice this weekend.

If they both win their games, they will end up with 99 points each but Chicago will be first because of the greater number of wins.

Besides the possibility of either Detroit or New York missing the playoffs, Montreal also stands a chance of being eliminated if the Hawks win both their games against the Canadiens and the Rangers take their two from Detroit. In that case, Montreal will end the season in fifth place with 92 points.

In other weekend games, Minnesota plays the Flyers at Philadelphia Saturday, Pittsburgh is at St. Louis and Oakland at Los Angeles. Sunday, Minnesota is at Pittsburgh.

The Next Pitch: Anti-Trust Suit

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Pilots became a thing of the past Thursday when a bankruptcy referee affixed his signature to an order allowing the American League team's sale to Milwaukee Brewers Inc.

But the past apparently is going to be recalled one of these days.

William Dwyer, special assistant state attorney-general, said an $82,000,000 anti-trust suit against the league and the owners of he defunct Seattle baseball franchise probably will come up in court in about a year.

The suit, brought by Washington State and Seattle, seeks damages for economic injury it contends will result from loss of the Pilots.

When the federal bankruptcy referee, Sidney Volinn, signed the order Thursday night, he gave the state and the city the go-ahead on the suit. Volinn had suspended all legal action while he considered a petition from the Pilots' owners for permission to sell to the Brewers for $10,800,000, most of which was to pay off $8,130,000 in debts.

Even before the suit comes up in court, however, organized baseball may be in for trouble because of the sale.

Senators Warren Magnuson and Henry Jackson and Rep. Brock Adams, all Washington Democrats, have said they will introduce legislation in Congress next week in an effort to strip the sport of its 50-year-old immunity from federal anti-trust law.

LEEDS' WORRIES GROW AS FULLBACK INJURED

LONDON (Reuters) — Leeds United, which has seen the English League championship slip from its grasp, received another blow here Thursday night when England fullback Paul Reaney was taken to hospital with a broken left leg.

Reaney, due to leave for Mexico with England's defending World Cup champions May 4, was carried off in the 50th minute of a First Division match against West Ham which ended in a 2-2 draw.

O'Keefes' Playoff Date on April 12

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Firefighters had the last word in regular-season play of the Pacific Coast Soccer League by defeating University of British Columbia Thurderbirds 1-0 Thursday night.

Robbie Goodheart's goal with 10 seconds left to play gave Firefighters their victory and a tie for sixth place with North Shore in the final standings.

UBC finished in the cellar.

Brother Acts Abound At Shamrock Sessions

By STEWART LANG

Co-coaches Bert Bertoia and Ron Jay are busy forging the bits and pieces together which, hopefully, will stamp Victoria Shamrocks as Western Lacrosse Association contenders this season.

The Victoria team celebrates its 20th anniversary this season and is now back in contention for the Mann Cup, emblematic of Canadian supremacy.

Shamrocks have been ineligible to play for the title during the past two seasons after an abortive effort at becoming professional in the now-defunct National Lacrosse Association in 1968 and again last season.

This year the league has returned to the amateur Canadian Lacrosse Association fold.

Wednesday night was the first stick practice of the training campaign for the Irish in Memorial Arena after four weeks of conditioning in the Gordon Head Junior High School gymnasium.

ANNUAL PROBLEM

Herein lies one of the problems that have plagued the Irish for years—lack of floor time in their home arena.

Ice was taken out of Memorial Arena on Tuesday and Shamrocks will have only four more practice sessions in the arena before being displaced for repair work to the roof and a products fair in the first week of May.

Rocks will not return to Memorial until their first home game of the WLA season on May 20 against Coquitlam Adanacs.

After April 12, the team will try to obtain time in Pearkes Arena for practices and will have to take on Vancouver Carlings in the only Victoria game of the pre-season Greenwood Trophy tournament at Esquimalt Sports Centre on May 5.

OPEN ON MAINLAND

The Rocks open the Greenwood tourney on April 26 against New Westminster Salmonbellies in Burnaby and start their regular season on May 14 against the same club on the mainland.

About 23 hopefuls now working out with the club have to be pared to a roster of 18 players by June 8.

Most brother combinations are among the returnees from last season.

Both veteran Dillons, defenceman Ranjit and forward Nirmal, have attended training sessions, as have Charn and Tej Dhillon. Tom and Dennis Somner as well as Ken and Frank Alexander are back.

Other veterans or players with at least one year of experience under their belts are Muzz Bryant, Gerry Baines, Rod Hamilton, Doug Thompson, George Grover, Smokey McLean and Tom Churchill.

KOWALYK RETURNING

Thompson and Grover are expected to share golatending duties.

Three players are back after sitting out last season — Glen Vickers, Ray Beech and Ed Kowalyk, captain of Shamrocks in 1968.

Newcomers to practice sessions are junior Shamrocks graduates Al Unwin, Brian Spaven, Doug Holmes and Bill Benwell as well as Owen Richmond, who played on a senior "B" circuit last season.

Shamrocks' directors are talking to other players as well. League scoring-champion Mike Gates, who played for Adanacs last year, is still being coaxed.

Other possible recruits are Grant Skipper of Nanaimo, who played with the Irish last year and Gord Osinchuck, who has just finished a successful season with the B.C. Junior Hockey League-champion Vernon Essos.

ENTHUSIASM HIGH

Both coaches agree that the team's enthusiasm is running high.

Otherwise conditioning is going well and, as Bertoia pointed out:

SENIOR BOXLA REGISTRATION

Senior "B" lacrosse registration will take place at Esquimalt High School Monday, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Players interested in trying out for Victoria's entry in the Vancouver Island League are invited to attend. Further information is available from Mrs. Munro at 384-1769 or Russ Ashworth at 388-6337.

Burnaby Rink Places Third

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP) — Doug Wyatt of Saskatoon skipped his Saskatchewan rink to an 8-7 extra-end victory over Ron Munro of Red Deer, Alta., in a sudden-death playoff to win the national firefighters' curling championship.

The Saskatchewan and Alberta representatives had ended the regulation nine-round competition Thursday tied with identical records of seven wins and two losses.

British Columbia's Ed Bekekta of South Burnaby finished with a 6-3 record to tie Northern Ontario's John Kowalenko for third place.

GREENSBORO OPEN'S START WASHED OUT

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A violent rain storm drenched the Sedgefield Country Club course today and forced postponement of the first round of the $180,000 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament.

The 72-hole event is scheduled to end Sunday and officials now have to decide whether to play 18-hole rounds today through Monday or double up with a 36-hole round Sunday.

Coughlan, Sue Smith Set Marks

WINNIPEG (CP) — Angela Coughlan and Sue Smith established two Canadian records Thursday, the opening day of the Canadian indoor winter nationals and Commonwealth Games swimming trials.

Miss Coughlan, of Burlington, Ont., holder of the mark at two minutes, 13.2 seconds in the 200-metre freestyle, left seven other girls in her wake as she won in 2:11.8.

Miss Smith, of Edmonton, beat Jeanne Warren for the second time as she cut two-tenths of a second off the Vancouver swimmer's Canadian record in the 400-metre individual medley. Miss Smith's time was 5:24.5.

Six finals were held Thursday night with favorites winning all but one.

Ralph Hutton of Campbell River, B.C., won the 200-metre free-style in 1:58.5; George Smith of Edmonton the 400-metre individual medley with a time of 4:52.9; Bill Kennedy of London, Ont., took the 100-metre backstroke in 1:02.3; and Donna Marie Gurr of Vancouver won the women's 100-metre backstroke in 1:09.4.

SHAW FOURTH

Toronto's Jim Shaw, Canadian record holder in the 100-metre backstroke, finished fourth behind Kennedy, Eric Fish of Medicine Hat, Alta., and Brad Storey of Calgary.

Fifteen-year-old Miss Gurr was nearly three seconds off the 100-metre backstroke record of Elaine Tanner but she drew loud applause from the gallery when she mounted the victory stand on crutches.

Miss Gurr said she has had a cast on her left leg since December when it was discovered "some bones were separated in the knee." Doctors were scheduled to operate, but further x-rays showed the knee improving so the operation was cancelled.

The Vancouver native said she practises with the cast on, removing it only in competition.

City Grapplers Prep for Trials

Local wrestlers are currently getting in shape for the B.C. trials on June 13 in Vancouver and, hopefully, the Canadian championships scheduled from June 26 to 28 in Calgary.

Ed Ashmore of the Victoria "Y" is in charge of preparing Olympic-style wrestlers on Vancouver Island but needs a few more experienced competitors.

Ashmore may be contacted at 7 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays at the YM-YWCA.

Ronson Reaches 50-Goal Plateau

By The Canadian Press

Len Ronson reached the 50-goal milestone Thursday with San Diego Gulls and in doing it left Seattle Totems' Western Hockey League playoff chances up in the air.

Ronson scored twice as Gulls slammed Totems 7-2 and Seattle blew a chance to cinch at least a tie for the fourth and final playoff position.

Totems lead Phoenix Roadrunners by two points and face second-place Portland Buckaroos at home Saturday in their last game of the season. Phoenix has two games left.

Meanwhile, 2,802 fans in Denver saw the injury-riddled Spurs upset league champion Vancouver Canucks 6-2.

Sandy Fitzpatrick also scored two goals for Gulls and Al Nicholson, Alex Faulkner and Willie O'Ree added the others before 4,691 fans in Seattle.

Gerry Meehan and Gerry Leonard replied for Totems, who couldn't beat goalie Ted Ouimet until the third period.

Spurs, out of the running for the WHL playoffs and without regulars Brian Harper, rookie Kent Byrnes and Brian McDonald, got two goals from Rick Sentes.

Denver coach Bill Dineen, Wilf Martin, Brian Smith and Gerry Lafond also scored for Denver. Andy Bathgate, with his 40th goal of the season, and Ted Taylor were the only Canucks to put the puck past goaltender Rocky Farr.

Phoenix gets a chance to move into a fourth-place tie tonight when Roadrunners play host to Salt Lake City Golden Eagles in the only scheduled game.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Trout Anglers Taking Limits At Shawnigan

By STEWART LANG

While warmer weather is contributing to an increasing number of dimples caused by rising trout on many lakes in lower elevations of Vancouver Island, salmon fishermen still have to work for their catches.

Anglers fishing the West Arm and Butler Bay portions of Shawnigan Lake have recently been coming home with full trout creels. Dougan's and Somenos lakes near Duncan as well as Lizard Lake (up the Harris Creek road) have also been showing excellent results.

Sarita and Marion lakes near Port Alberni have been local hot spots while anglers trolling near the head of Great Central Lake have seldom been skunked.

Still further north we find that fishermen either spin-casting or fly fishing about 50 yards offshore in Lower Campbell Lake have recorded several nice catches.

Steelhead returns seem to be tapering off even more from an already low rate.

Only streams producing even fair steelie catches have been near Courtenay. These include the Puntledge, Oyster and Tsolum rivers.

Salmon fishermen in Saanich Inlet have been finding the number of bluebacks diminishing to "normal" levels while winter spring and jack spring returns remain good.

Best places to find blues are from Willis Point to The Boulder as well as near Senanus Island, Indian Bay and Patricia Bay. Winter springs are lurking deep in the same areas and near Goldstream Island.

Jacks have been caught in Indian Bay, Coles Bay and along the Bamberton shore.

Bigger blues have been boated off Coal Island and winter springs are tightening a few fishermen's lines in the vicinity of Saanichton Spit.

★ ★ ★

Off Oak Bay the best areas for an evenly mixed return of winter springs and blues have been the golf links point, Trial Island and, for those with larger boats, Constance Banks.

Although Pedder Bay is now open, that area as well as the stretch of water through to Sooke has provided only poor catches.

Up-Island areas that have produced fair returns include Crofton, Tent Island, Five Fingers, Snake Island, Bamfield, Hornby and Denman Islands, Brown's Bay and the Narrows north of Campbell River.

Snowfall Frustrates Expo Team Officials

MONTREAL (CP) — April Fool's Day came 24 hours late for Lou Martin, director of operations for Montreal Expos of baseball's National League.

"Frustrating, frustrating, frustrating," Martin said Thursday, as he viewed six inches of fresh snow that fell on Jarry Park.

The Expos are scheduled to play their second home opener in major league baseball next Wednesday after taking part in the league's season opener at Cincinnati against the Reds Monday.

L. Martin said: "We've got to get . . . rain and one or two days of warm weather, but in the meantime I'm trying to arrange to get a machine from the airport—it's a 100-foot-wide heat machine they use to clear the runways."

Martin, who has a tarpaulin over the infield, said the outfield was springy and spongy in spots before the snow, but could have been put into shape with some rolling.

His crew had cleared the accumulation of winter snow and ice from the bleachers just before the latest precipitation.

"Now we've got to start again," Martin said. "But we're not giving up. It's just discouraging."

Don't Bet That Mets Won't Make It Again

By JACK HAND

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Maybe the World Series champion New York Mets will fall flat on their faces. Maybe manager Gil Hodges will lose his magic. Maybe pitchers Tom Seaver and Jerry Koosman won't win at least 40 games. Maybe, but don't bet on it.

After eating chalk with St. Louis Cardinals last spring, this observer has caught the Met religion. The amazin's did the convincing last September and October and there appears to be no reason to abandon ship despite a so-so record in spring training.

The Mets have bolstered the one weak spot in their infield with Joe Foy at third base. They picked up an experienced left-hander in Ray Sadecki. And they will have the full-season services of big Donn Clendenon.

After beating off Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cardinals—to say nothing of Philadelphia Phillies and Montreal Expos—they must take on the best in the West before they make the World Series again.

The best in the West could be any one of five teams. We exclude only San Diego Padres from the race. Despite a pitching problem that still exists, that raw power in the Cincinnati Reds' order suggests they will outslug Atlanta Braves, Houston Astros, San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers.

East—1. New York; 2. Chicago; 3. St. Louis; 4. Pittsburgh; 5. Philadelphia; 6. Montreal.

West—1. Cincinnati; 2. Atlanta; 3. Houston; 4. San Francisco; 5. Los Angeles; 6. San Diego.

The Pirates have been getting a big play from the sports writers in Florida who have been awed by that steady batting order and the fine early form of Bob Veale, Bob Moose and Dick Ellis.

But it is hard to overlook the Cubs, who did have a 9½-game lead on Aug. 13 and appeared ready to sell World Series tickets. Losing that lead had to leave scars on the Cubs.

However, the big reason we put them second is a shortage of starting pitchers behind Ferguson Jenkins, Bill Hands and Ken Holtzman. The Cubs have a strong but thin line of regulars.

Injuries to Ron Santo, Ernie Banks, Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert or Billy Williams could be disastrous. For a starter they are in trouble with Randy Hundley on the injured list.

Booming Bats Make Reds Dangerous

St. Louis is in a muddled situation because of the illness of Mike Shannon. Red Scoendienst has been trying Joe Torre, Phil Gagliano and Richie Allen at third base.

Ted Simmons, the rookie who is expected to be the No. 1 catcher still is in the Army. The bullpen is in trouble without Joe Hoerner.

Allen's big bat is going to be a big help and the pitching trio of Bob Gibson, Steve Carlton and Nelson Briles is rough.

The Phills are rebuilding with kids, installing Larry Bowa at short and Denny Boyle at second in the middle of the infield. They are short one outfielder.

Tim McCarver must bounce back strong if they are to get good catching. Much depends on comebacks by Chris Short and Jim Bunning in the pitching department.

Montreal is in over its head again but could do better than last year's sad 52-110 record.

In the West, the booming bats of the Reds will have to make up for pitching shortages although they hope Jim McGlothlin and rookie Wayne Simpson will come to the aid of Gary Nolan, Jim Merritt and Jim Maloney.

Sparky Anderson is gambling on rookie shortstop Dave Conception but has Woody Woodward to fall back on in case of trouble.

The loss of Ron Reed was a body blow to the Braves, taking away an 18-game winner for an indefinite period. That puts an extra heavy load on Phil Niekro, George Stone, Pat Jarvis and ex-Oakland Athletic Jim Nash.

WATCH FOR ASTROS

Many regard the Astros as the sleeper in the field. That pitching staff, led by Larry Dierker, Don Wilson, Tom Griffin and Denny Lemaster set a strikeout record last year.

Remember, they clobbered the Mets 10-2 in the season series.

Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry on the mound and Willie McCovey, Willie Mays and Bobby Bonds at the plate are going to keep the Giants in the thick of it. They have finished second five years in a row.

The Dodgers are another club that could blow up a storm if kids like Bill Buckner and possibly Steve Garvey come through. Much depends on Willie Davis in centre and the ability of Maury Wills to play steadily.

Gala Field Enters CORK Meet

Billed as the "biggest international sailing event in the Western Hemisphere," the 1970 CORK Regatta is sure to attract a number of B.C.'s top dinghy sailors.

This Canadian Olympic Training Regatta was established only last year by the Olympic committee of the Ca. Yachting Association It will again be hosted by the Kingston Yacht Club with the cooperation of the city of Kingston, the Royal Military College, and Queen's University, with multiple courses set on Lake Ontario.

Hewett

The week-long regatta, from Aug. 29-Sept. 4, will decide four North American Open Championships, five Canadian Open Championships and two Canadian-American open championships.

Most significant locally is the OK Dinghy Class. Last year, Royal Vic's Norman Marcus placed third over-all in a field of 54 OKs. Vancouver's Olympic helmsman Steve Tupper won the Cork 1969 Dragon event, while Kitsilano's Dick Helmer and Royal Van's Dr. Balmer entered in the Flying Dutchman and Soling events.

* * *

The Victoria OK Dinghy fleet will almost certainly send at least one representative east (OK CORK eliminations are scheduled for June 6 and 7 at CFSA Esquimalt). And from the performance of some of the junior sailors who have recently "graduated" from El Toros to the sophisticated 13-foot planing dinghy, the seniors had better look to their laurels. (Dennis Woodward, Philip Huggett, Alan MacGillivray and John Readshaw are four versatile junior skippers who can hold their own in almost any small-boat fleet.)

One of the major features of CORK '70 will be the seminar activity, where new techniques and ideas can be exchanged and discussed by the competing athletes.

An estimated 430 boats and 900 racing sailors are expected to participate. Among those who have already confirmed their attendance are Denmark's Ib Andersen (OK Cork winner in 1969); England's Peter Bateman (1968 world Fireball champion); Dr. Roger Green (Canadian Olympian and North American Flying Dutchman champion), and Vancouver's Peter Byrne, who represented Canada at Naples last year in the Flying Dutchman Worlds.

* * *

Sunday is "Sailing Day" at Elk Lake. The Elk Lake Sailing Association will have a power boat in attendance that can provide starts for informal racing. Newcomers may be surprised how much they learn (and how much fun it is) sailing against other similar boats. This racing will be strictly for fun with no formal scoring. Launching at Eagle Beach around 10 a.m.

During the summer months, when most people prefer to sail in the evenings, leaving weekends free, the sailing day will be every Thursday evening, around 6:45. Many, however, are planning to go to the lake right after work, along with family, for a "presail" picnic supper and swim.

Thursday evening sessions start on April 30 (after daylight saving).

For information phone Hans Waelti, 658-8002 (Sabots and El Toros); Jack Ferguson, 658-5002 (two-man dinghies); Terry Viggers, 479-6286 (OK Dinghies), and Eric Gravenor, 477-3568 (general information).

SHORT TACKS: Among the racing "Gobblers," Mario Lavoricic, who has recently acquired Trekker from T. H. Fleet Captain Frank Rhodes, must have the most spectacular log book . . . The trimaran which he build in Vancouver and sailed via Panama to Expo '67 in Montreal had a slight "confrontation" in Cuban waters with the powers that were . . . Mario is quite happy sailing his current monohull in the comparatively more sheltered atmosphere behind the Tweed Curtain.

Bowlers Aim At 50 Hours

Could you bowl for 50 hours straight?

That's what some fivepinners will be attempting to do, starting at 7 tonight, at Cauital City Bowladrome during the annual "bowlathon" in aid of charity.

Proceeds of the event, which ends at 9 p.m. Sunday, will go to the Lions' Easter Seal fund for crippled children.

Two years ago, the Evinrude 55 was first introduced. That was the beginning of the "New Breed" in outboard motors. It was the world's first 3 cylinder outboard with "loop charging" for cleaner combustion and more efficient intake and exhaust circulation. The result was a more compact unit with an amazing amount of extra horsepower . . . and overwhelming success.

Now, you can get the same fast, quiet engine . . . computer-improved to deliver an extra 5 powerful horses. It all adds up to the Evinrude 60. The 1970 "New Breed" outboard that gives you more performance per horsepower.

The Evinrude 60 comes complete with Evinrude's exclusive push-button electro-hydraulic shift, automatic single lever control and cable at no extra cost.

DYNAMITE FOR THE ASKING IN MICHIGAN

Buying Bombs No Problem Here

By CAROLE EBERLY
And CHRIS MEAD

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — We walked into a hardware store the other day and casually bought a bomb capable of blowing up a small house.

It was easier than buying cough syrup at the drugstore next door. For $3, we walked out with 12 sticks of dynamite in a paper bag. No questions were asked and no explanations offered.

LEGAL DISPARITY

Next door, we had to prove we were over 21 and sign our names and addresses in the pharmacist's drug book. We were told that in Michigan we could be arrested for buying more than four ounces of a syrup containing codeine phosphate in 24 hours.

To see how easily dynamite could be bought, we called, at random, a small hardware store.

"Do you sell dynamite?"

"Oh yes," came the friendly reply. "How much do you want?"

"How is it sold?"

"You can have a stick or a case, whatever you want."

"How much is it?"

STARTLED LOOK

At the door of the cluttered, musty store, a clerk in his mid-50s asked if he could help us.

"We'd like some dynamite," we replied.

He looked somewhat startled and asked, "how much?"

"About a dozen sticks, I guess, that should do it."

The clerk returned with change for a $20 bill and the bundle of dynamite. He handed it over underneath a sign listing the rigorous requirements for buying handguns and pistols.

All that was required from us, however, was our names on the bill of sale. We gave them, slightly modified, and they were accepted without question. He was not required by law to ask.

NO RESTRICTIONS

Under current law, anyone can buy as much dynamite in Michigan as he wants, without telling his age, his name or the reason he wants the explosives.

Eleven bills regulating sales of explosives have been introduced in the Michigan legislature in the past year. Ten died in committee and the 11th was vetoed by Gov. William G. Milliken, who said it would cause "unreasonable hardship on thousands of law-abiding citizen sportsmen engaged in handloading ammunition."

The bill would have brought nitroglycerine, dynamite, black powder, smokeless powder and other dangerous explosives under state control. It would have required purchasers to be 18 years or older and obtain a police permit.

UNDUE BURDEN

"The permit requirement of this bill would place undue burdens on sportsmen, sellers and police agencies without making a significant contribution to the reduction of criminal activities involving dangerous explosives," Milliken said in his veto message.

State police director Col. Frederick E. Davids said, "some legislation is sorely needed" to attack "an extremely serious problem. It's an awful thing for politicians or other citizens to have to go through life wondering whether they'll be blown up when they start their cars."

Mutineers Charged

LAGOS (Reuters) — Twenty-six Nigerian soldiers will face a court martial for taking part in a short-lived mutiny by an army battalion in Kaduana on Tuesday, official reports said Thursday. The mutineers stormed the armed forces hospital and the divisional army headquarters to protest an alleged delay in payment of salaries and family allowances.

Modest Glassblower Makes Laboratory Apparatus

EDMONTON (CP) —People who say glassblowers are a breed with powerful lungs and a lot of wind are full of hot air, says a glassblower.

Cor Brusselers, 35, is supervisor of a glass plant at University of Alberta, and he's on the slim side.

He said in an interview: "People seem to think that to be a glassblower you have to have a barrel chest. It's just not true. Really, there's very little blowing involved.

"And it's not how hard you blow, it's when you blow that counts. It's a question of manipulating the glass and blowing at the right time."

Born and raised in The Netherlands, Mr. Brusselers has been blowing glass for 22 years and in his estimation there are only about 20 good glassblowers in Canada.

He got his diploma and training at a trade school in his home town, Eindhoven in the southern part of The Netherlands.

He enrolled in the school when he was 13—it was a trade school—and had no idea what course he would take.

CHOSE IT FOR HIM

"I'd never even seen glassblowing," he said. "The school more or less chose it for me."

The first time he encountered the trade was during a tour of the school when the glassblowers had been given free rein for the benefit of visitors. The things they were doing appealed to Mr. Brusselers.

After four years, he received his diploma and worked in various plants in The Netherlands before moving to Toronto.

"There are a fair number of glassblowing shops in Holland. The trade is more widespread than it is here."

In 1961, he came to Edmonton to work for the university's plant which does custom glassblowing for the chemistry department.

"We buy standard glassware like joints, flasks, stop-cocks, tubing or test tubes, but we make more intricate equipment such as fusion pumps, vacuum flasks or any special apparatus which is requested."

He said the prime consideration of whether to buy an item or make it is convenience.

"If a professor needed something special and had to send away for it, there would be a delivery time of six to eight weeks, perhaps. Here, he can get it done in one or two days and talk over exactly what he wants with the man who's making it.

"In a year, I reckon that in our shop we produce $60,000 to $70,000 worth of glassware."

Contrary to the popular conception of a glassblower making ornamental glassware, Mr. Brusselers doesn't do much outside of his job.

"I've never gone in very much for fancy glassblowing. I'm not really interested in that. Sometimes I make swans or vases, but that's about the extent of it."

When asked if glassblowing is an art, he said:

"Some people call it that, but I don't fancy myself as an artist. . . . the only things I make usually are Christmas ornaments. We use only silver and white on our Christmas tree and there's usually not much variety in the stores, so I make my own."

Library Space Worry Not Just Victoria's

LONDON CP) — The British Museum, famous around the world for its vast collection of scholarly books, is asking university researchers in Canada and other countries to avoid using its reading rooms this summer if they can find other facilities.

In a circular to 162 foreign universities, museum secretary Bentley Bridgewater gave space limitations as the reason for the request. Summer traditionally brings many overseas scholars to London.

With reading-room space remaining the same, the number of foreign scholars using the museum has increased sharply.

Bridgewater said that under these circumstances, longer delays in delivering books to waiting researchers, confusion over books left uncatalogued because of staff shortages and a slower photocopying service are inevitable.

The only solution to such problems "is a major increase in the amount of accommodation available," Bridgewater added.

Already, his circular has aroused fiery reaction abroad.

G. S. Rousseau, professor of English at the University of California, writes in a letter to The Guardian that all scholars, British and foreign, should "speak up and save the single richest repository of eastern and western culture on this planet."

In 1964, the British government approved a plan for building a new library structure near the present museum quarters in the Bloomsbury district of London.

But this idea was abandoned later and no decision has yet been made on another recommendation for establishment of a national reference library in Bloomsbury.

The British Museum has 7,000,000 volumes on its shelves, a total increasing by an average of 200,000 books a year.

No More Black

CHICHESTER, England (AP) — A century-old tradition went up in smoke here when nurses at the Royal West Sussex Hospital threw their black stockings on a bonfire. They were celebrating the relaxing of the rule that forced them to wear the black stockings as part of their hospital uniform. Now the girls can wear normal light-colored stockings.

Laymore Tie-Up Blamed On Ottawa Favoritism

By PAT DUFOUR

The official is angered over the federal government decision to tie up the CNAV Laymore, described as one of the west coast's hardest working ships.

Her 25-man crew will be dispersed in other ships of Dockyard's auxiliary vessel fleet.

The Dockyard official said: "There have been no cuts on the east coast and those that are planned are much smaller than here. Ours have come immediately while the east coast's reductions are another year away."

He described the Laymore as "a real maid-of-all-work, versatile and handy." She has been with the Defence Research Board for the past four years, doubling as an ammunition dumper and general factotum.

It was Laymore that acted as escort vessel for the yachts competing in the 1968 Victoria-Maui race.

"Although the ship is really needed no one has come forward and said they'll provide the money for the vessel."

"It's a most unsatisfactory situation."

A spokesman at the Defence Research Establishment, Pacific, said the Laymore layoff means a cutback in programs, with the universities taking the brunt.

He said the research vessels on the west coast must first be made available to government departments such as DREP, department of fisheries; department of energy, mines and resources, and hydrographic survey.

Up until now there have been four vessels engaged in oceanographic research. They are the Endeavour, Le Parizeau, Vector and Laymore.

●

Sharing ship time aboard the vessels have been faculty and students of the University of British Columbia, which has an Institute of Oceanography, and faculty and students of the University of Victoria, which has the only undergraduate program in Canada which permits students to carry out field research.

Dr. W. Gordon Fields, head of Uvic's marine biology department, says Victoria will be the hardest hit.

"We have been getting surplus time by the west coast committee that sets up the ships' schedules. They've treated us extremely well but the priority of any time left from government work will have to go to UBC."

UBC, the Pacific Oceanographic Group at Nanaimo, which is due to be phased out July 1, and DREP had representatives on the committee.

Fields said the loss of Laymore was regrettable at a time when Canada had an accelerating need to train men and women for oceanographic work, as well as the fighting of pollution and environmental control.

He admitted the federal government had awarded substantially larger grants for marine research recently, "apparently giving with one hand and taking away with another."

'Maid-of-All-Work' Laymore Idled Until Her Fate Is Decided

"Our grants are supplied by the National Research Council while ships' costs are borne by the Defence Research Board"

●

He told of some of the field trips that would now have to be cancelled.

"We had two three-week cruises scheduled to the Queen Charlottes for the study of intertidal and island structure, as well as insect population.

"A biological and anthropological expedition covering vegetation and Indians on the west coast will now be off. There are others."

Littlepage said the loss of Laymore would mean the west coast would have only one vessel capable of deep-sea research.

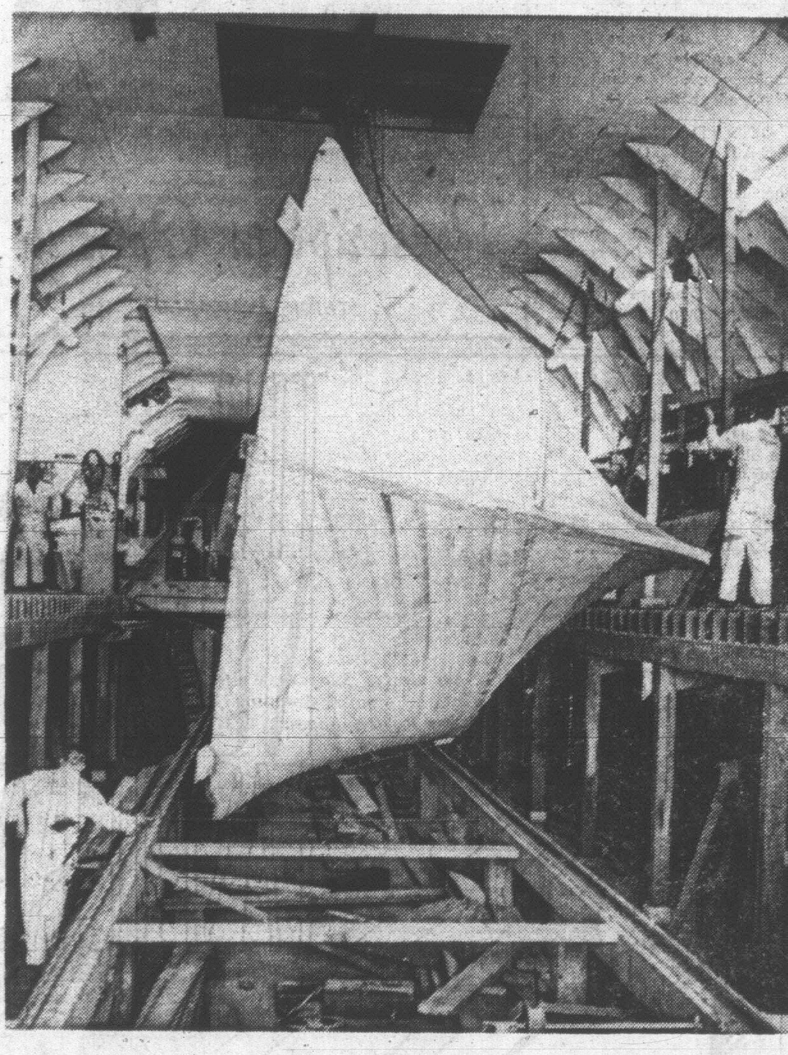
●

"The Endeavour is the only other real ocean-going vessel. Le Parizeau is only fair and the Vector good for inner waters."

Laymore, unlike the other three ships, was not built as a research vessel. She was launched as a supply ship in 1944 and later converted.

Littlepage said there were times when it was more economic to use the Laymore.

"It is uneconomic to tie up a ship with fancy electronic gear when you're on a routine assignment, such as monitoring, and the gear is not being used."



BOTTOMS-UP form of construction was used by Philbrook's Shipyards at Sidney for this 58-foot power cruiser, seen being turned for next stage of building. The yard is one of two on the west coast to use the bottoms-up method for easier handling. The other is in Seattle. The new boat is designed by William Garden, semi-retired American marine architect, now on Johnstone Island. Begun in January, she's built on yellow cedar stringers and the double-diagonal hull is red cedar and Philippine mahogany. Costing nearly $200,000, the boat is being built for H. C. Walling of Salem, Ore., and will be launched Aug. 1. (Dane Campbell Photo.)

HOMEOWNERS TACKLE SHRUM

A telegram asking B.C. Hydro Chariman Dr. Gordon Shrum to reconsider a decision to buy or expropriate five homes on Munn Road in Saanich for an overhead transmission line has been sent to Patrick Codyre.

Codyre, who lives at 1890 Munn, is spokesman for the group of homeowners who don't want to sell out to the crown corporation.

The line will run from Jordan River to Victoria.

City May Lose Service Stations

The city of Victoria will no longer be attractive to service station operators if the 1970 business tax assessments are upheld, a spokesman for dealers said today.

"If the business tax is sustained, there will be operators who will consider locations outside the city," said Bob Dunsmuir of Automotive Retailers' Association.

He said 32 members attended a protest meeting Thursday to lay plans to oppose current assessments that are in some cases several times their 1969 level.

REJECTED ALL

The meeting agreed to write Mayor Courtney Haddock and city council outlining their complaints, to deliver the letter to city hall this afternoon and request an immediate reply.

The business tax assessment court of revision heard about 20 appeals from service station operators last month, and rejected all of them.

The city denies that service stations had been singled out for substantial assessment increases this year. Revisions to the entire assessment roll were instituted, the assessor said.

Operators have a backup plan in the event their submission is rejected again, but until aldermen have had a chance to see today's letter, Dunsmuir said he will not discuss further details.

Dunsmuir said the issue had drawn wider interest than anticipated. Nearly 100 per cent of Victoria city operators are involved in the protest.

"Next year it will be hotels, or restaurants," Dunsmuir remarked. "I feel all businessmen should be concerned."

Heroin Is 'Evil' Pusher Tells Court

A 53-year-old city man who told Judge William Ostler "there is something repulsive in trafficking" was sentenced to five years in prison Thursday for trafficking in heroin.

"I think it is an evil," John M. Caird, 717 Pandora, said adding that he had been on radio programs and written articles presenting this opinion.

"It's a loathsome business," Ostler replied, pointing out that pushers are "really butchers" and the victims "breathing corpses."

Caird had been arrested March 24 on one of 48 warrants issued by the RCMP after a four-month undercover investigation of trafficking in various illicit drugs on the Island.

There were two other arrests for heroin trafficking in Nanaimo.

Constable William H. McBratney, one of the two undercover agents in the investigation, testified that he bought a capsule of heroin from the accused for $20 Feb. 10.

The 24-year-old officer related how he had gone to Caird's residence, about 10:20 a.m., posing as an addict, referred by a mutual friend, and asked Caird if he had any "stuff."

The accused replied that he had none but told McBratney "to meet me in half an hour in the square," meaning Centennial Square.

SHORT HAIR

McBratney, who appeared in court in a business suit and short hair, met Caird in the square but learned that he had not been able to get a capsule.

The two went to the Douglas Hotel where Caird made a phone call and arranged to meet a third person at the Century Inn beer parlor at 1 p.m.

Caird suggested while waiting they should try checking other beer parlors "to try and score" but McBratney, not knowing what he was getting into at this point, declined.

Caird told the agent when they met in the square that there were "a coupla fuzz in the beer parlor" and they should wait.

OSTLER
. . . 5 years for 'butcher'

McBratney said there were always "fuzz in the Century" and asked why they didn't get the capsule.

Caird indicated that the third party might be scared off.

Before Caird finally sold the heroin to McBratney, he began to question the officer's authenticity as an addict.

PICKED ARM

McBratney testified that he had pricked his arm with a straight pin to create the illusion that he was a heroin addict.

Caird gave McBratney the capsule, remarking that if the agent is RCMP "I'm good for a fin in Matsqui."

"Did I have to go to considerable trouble to obtain the heroin?" Caird asked McBratney in court Thursday, indicating he would have his own supply if he was trafficking.

"Wouldn't I have a regular employer if I was trafficking?" he asked.

He said he thought he was merely helping another addict rather than trafficking.

Ostler pointed out that the accused was making heroin available to other persons.

"There is no difference if you had a heap in the house. You were trafficking in heroin and you know it," the judge said.

MOST OF US AMBLE through life leading with our chins, absorbing what happiness we can, and hoping in a vague sort of way that everything will turn out all right. But among us and along with us are the super-organized people. They are scheduled and positive, and the world couldn't get along without them.

However, it's damnably hard for the unorganized to get along with them, and whenever possible, I avoid their company.

With a sunny afternoon to squander, you might decide on impulse to hop in the car and go for a drive.

But not the super-organized person. The excursion must be planned in detail. Much better, in fact, if the planning had been done yesterday. Also, what is the object of the trip?

It hadn't occurred to you that an object was needed. Don't worry, though. One will be promptly supplied.

That provides a springboard for more planning. What to take?

At this point, if the super-organized person runs true to form, a list will be drawn up. Each item will be numbered, and nothing left to chance.

What started as a casual notion has turned into Operation Picnic. Off you go—starting time noted on the SO's watch—and yourself hoping vindictively for a brisk, disruptive downpour.

Perhaps the super-organizer doesn't intend to do so, but he manages to make easy-going people feel unworthy and even inferior. For one thing, he tends to be an early riser. No precious few minutes more of shut-eye for him!

Once for a long week, we had a particularly virulent SO for a house guest. He needed no alarm clock, nor did we.

Precisely at 6 a.m., he would soar out of his nest. He would then address himself to the first item on his day's agenda.

This was a 10-minute bout of exercises. First, push-ups, hissing noisily between his teeth. Then hands-on-the-floor—down, grunt, up, whoosh, down, grunt—while I hoped he would pull a tendon or pop his sacroiliac.

Next, a shower. Probably a cold one.

By this time, we had given up any hope of getting back to sleep, and launched ourselves into another time-tabled day.

I don't pretend to understand the compulsion that motivates a super-organizer. But it's a driving one, and it has given rise to various sayings of doubtful wisdom that cling like burrs to the language.

"Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today" will do for an example of what I mean.

You can bet an SO originated that one, while consulting the clock with one eye and a list with the other. It's likely, too, that his audience was a casual, unplanned fellow who had been about to suggest that the day was more suited to fishing than to toil.

Unfortunately, one can't always detect the approach of a super-organized person in time to take evasive action. All too often, I get caught flat-footed by one of the busy-busy breed.

Typically, I will be settling down to work. This is a leisured process that involves sharpening a few pencils, pouring a mug of coffee from the office dispenser, and wandering over to the window for a look at the street.

At this point, in comes an SO, female persuasion, tautly girdled and firm of tread.

She has done her housework—finished it before the day was more than properly launched—and like as not got in an hour of shopping.

She has a good work in hand, and it turns out that there's a place for me in her master plan.

While she speaks, she is laying out sheets of foolscap. These, she explains, are observations and suggestions which she has penned to help me organize the talk I'm going to give on such-and-such a date.

Having laid their plans and drawn up their schedules, they take orderly progression for granted. They move toward their purpose like so many bulldozers.

The unprepared and the planless are no match for them, and lucky the victim who makes his escape.

Napoleon was a super-organizer. As you will recall, he ended his days in exile on the island of St. Helena. And if SOs weren't as necessary as the unorganized to a balanced world, I'd wish each and all of 'em the Napoleon fate!

SIMPSONS MANAGER PROMOTED

The manager of Simpsons-Sears Ltd. Hillside department store has been promoted to the company's B.C. headquarters store in Burnaby, effective by mid-April.

Peter Horlick, who came here to organize the opening of the new Hillside store just over a year ago, will be replaced by Dudley Thompson, now manager of the Simpsons-Sears Winnipeg store.

Horlick had been a store manager in Saskatchewan and Alberta before moving to an executive post at Burnaby.

'Keep Cars Out' Of Beacon Hill

A protest against allowing cars into Beacon Hill Park will be staged Sunday by a group of University of Victoria students.

"People should be allowed to enjoy the park without having to breathe exhaust fumes and have natural sounds drowned out by the noise of cars," said Mark Jackman, 20, organizer for the protest.

He said the protest will begin at 2 p.m. when students, and anyone who wants to join, will walk and bicycle through the park carrying signs, and trying to impede the movement of cars.

"We would like to see roads shut off to traffic for good, and cars parked just outside or in the park's parking areas."

Jackman became annoyed at the situation when he went down to the park to relax Easter Sunday and found it jammed with cars.

★ ★ ★

"It was insane. There was a continuous stream of people staring dumbly out of their glass and metal shells."

He went home, put a sign "ban cars in the park" on his bicycle and rode through the park.

"One guy, about 45, with three kids came up to me and said he had been trying to stop cars from coming into the park for three years."

This protest follows one three weeks ago when Uvic students tried to stall traffic downtown by using up parking spaces with bicycles in an effort to increase public resentment against the harm cars are doing to the environment.

The Times today is concluding a three-part series by writer John Mika on Page 1, which deals with the widespread frustration, expense and waste the car is bringing down upon the heads of Victorians.

Heirloom Table Adds Fuel to Feud

By PENNY SAVER

The feud between Margaret, my next door neighbor, and her sister back East reached a peak early this week. In fact, for a few minutes I doubted whether Margaret would ever recover.

"How could she?" she spluttered, staring balefully at the rather large table the movers had just deposited in her front room. "Just because I sent her that fifty pound jade tree last November . . ."

"Oh, it's a family heirloom, from the days when it took a table that big to seat the family and hired hands. But it absolutely eats furniture wax and I'll never find a table cloth big enough.

"She wouldn't have sent it to me if it hadn't been a liability."

Margaret's rumpus room, however, accepted the table without any trouble and when I was downtown later that day I took time to check out a hunch and found where she could buy a lace table cloth to fit.

"Oh yes," said the proprietor of the store when I asked. "We have all sizes and shapes of table cloths.

"In rounds, we have 72 cloths 60 and 72 inches in diameter. Our ovals are 60 by 80 inches and 70 by 90 inches. Then we have square and rectangular clothes from 45 inches to three yards.

"Then there are the odd sizes, 90 inch rounds, for instance, which can be specially ordered. They take two weeks to arrive."

Quilted Foam Cloth

As for price, the shop has lace cloths from $3.95, but those are for small end tables or trays. Ones as large as Margaret's are priced about $25.

"I'm going to make a fitted cover of this orange cotton to show through the lace," said Margaret when she returned from ordering her cloth.

"Why not let the wood show?"

"Because I ordered a silence cloth for the table — and my regular table as well — and I don't want it to show."

Made of what looks like quilted foam, it comes in white and brown and costs $5.95 a yard for the 42-inch wide size and $6.95 for the 52-inch wide size. It is made in France.

This foam looks very durable and will protect the table surface from nicks, scratches and head as well as a certain amount of wet spills. It also keeps the dishes and cutlery from clattering and clanking, making meal-time conversation pleasanter.

The foam won't crack and folds into a nice compact bundle for storage when a silence cloth is not needed.

Margaret also told me that this foam is available pre-cut into 12 by 18 inch rectangles for $1 each.

These are the size of the average place mat and can be used as with a larger cloth, both as a protection and a silencer.

Decibel for Decibel, Kitchen Clatter Rivals Sonic Boom

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shhhh! Think "quiet". For we're up to our ears in unwanted noise and matters are only getting worse.

The noise level in the modern home, for instance, when it's equipped with all the latest gadgetry can equal that of a jet plane.

In effect, a family may be living in a miniature boiler factory, when such labor-saving units as dishwasher, garbage disposal, mixer, blender, vacuum cleaner, ventilator fan, and the like all get going. All this, and the neighbors too.

Let junior wander in with his transistor blaring rock music, which can be amplified to as much as 100 decibels or higher, and you're really suffering. One wag has suggested that record and tape labels read, "Warning, modern music may be hazardous to your hearing."

The din is enough to make one head for the hills, but making sure they're not near an airport where a jet engine can produce as high as 130 decibels.

Compare that with the rustle of a leaf — a mere 10 decibels or less.

Scientists explain that a decibel is the equivalent of the faintest sound you can hear. Man is comfortable with 50 decibels, feels discomfort at 115 and actual pain at 145.

A whole look at what noise levels we live with and what they can do to us physically and mentally is in the new World Book Year Book. Author Theodore Berland, whose article is called Up To Our Ears In Noise, travelled though eight countries recording with a noise, meter to find what happens when we get past that comfortable 50. The answer — plenty that shouldn't.

Noise can deafen. Berland calls it a "major category of industrial injury, one for which millions of dollars in compensation have been claimed."

He adds that research in both North America and Europe indicates that noise increases the level of cholesterol in the blood and raises blood pressure. Several researchers in the medical field have found that excess noise causes blood vessel constriction. Other experiments in West Germany and England, at the physician or university level, show that even mild noise causes the pupils of the eyes to dilate.

Noise affects us psychologically too, in fear and irritation. It also penetrates into our thought processes, sometimes preventing deep sleep. Berland says that psychologists know that loss of sleep—enough loss, that is — can lead to delusions, hallucinations, even homicidal tendencies.

Rock music is a culprit, of course, but Berland says, "The worst is yet to come in the sound of the ground-shaking thunderclap of the sonic boom produced by large supersonic airliners."

Shock waves of these planes, "nerve wracking and ear shattering" will be felt all along a belt extending 40 miles on each side of the plane's flight path," says Berland.

Berland, a free lance science writer, says much can be done to protect against noise pollution — besides wearing earplugs all the time, that is.

A "think quiet" movement needs to pervade all technology, says Berland. Some manufacturers already are — Bethlehem Steel's noise control engineer, James H. Botsford, has developed a garbage can that makes a thud instead of a clang. At a hotel in Hamburg, West Germany, breakfasts are served on leather trays to prevent dish clatter. Even quieter pile drivers have been developed.

Berland says the chief organized anti-noise groups in the United States are the Citizens for a Quiet City in New York, the Citizens Against the Sonic Boom in Cambridge, Mass., and The National Council on Noise Abatement, Washington, D.C.

Even so, he says, the ultimate solution to noise problems not only is public pressure but the law which "forces people to respect the lives of others, as they should have, voluntarily, in the first place."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Wife Punishes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a 34-year-old son who is married to a very pretty girl of 25. She found out that my son was seeing another girl, so she confronted him and then he stopped seeing the other girl.

My problem is the method my daughter-in-law is using to punish her husband. She has been making a big play for my husband. He is 57, Abby, and very attractive. Naturally he loves it and even encourages her. I could never appeal to my daughter-in-law because I am sure she would never consider my feelings as she has never liked me very much although I never have given her any reason for feeling that way. Now I am worried that all this kidding around with hugging and kissing may develop into something more serious. Please tell me how to handle this, Abby. I'm terribly upset. — Can't Compete.

DEAR CAN'T: You could tell your husband to act his age and cool it a little out of respect to his son's marriage, which sounds as though it's on fairly shaky ground right now. It may not help. But it can't hurt.

DEAR ABBY: Before any 55-year-old grandmother has all her teeth extracted for "health reasons," as she stated, she ought to get another opinion.

If more people would realize the problems associated with false teeth more people would run to the dentist to try to save their teeth.

A dental journal recently disclosed that approximately five million people in America have deposited their lower dentures in dresser drawers because they cannot wear them! I am tired of "yanking" teeth. I'd much rather save and restore them.

DEAR DOCTOR: I have been more than true to my teeth, and thus far they have been "true" to me.

DEAR ABBY — I noticed in your column where a teenager was ready to give up music lessons because he had a clarinet and then a flute stolen from his locker at school. Abby, many people carry homeowners insurance policies, which cover most thefts of this kind. our daughter's coat and clarinet were stolen from a school locker. We though it was a complete loss until our insurance agent told us that we were completely covered. And what a happy surprise it was! Perhaps others who read your column aren't aware of what their policies cover, either. Anyway, it's worth a mention. — Not An Insurance Agent.

DEAR NOT: You have a lot of company. Many policy holders get a "happy surprise" to learn that they were covered, thinking they were not. But I would guess that there are as many policy holders who get "unhappy surprises" (not being covered, thinking they were). A good agent not only sells—he tells! So this might be a good time for you to call your friendly insurance agent and review the bidding.

DEAR ABBY: Our baby girl is just two months old and here is my problem. My husband does such cruel things to her. For instance, he will force her little cheeks together until her mouth is all pinched together. The baby reacts by jerking her arms and legs and thrashing about. My husband says he enjoys seeing her do this.

Also, when the baby is sound asleep, he goes into her room and yells and screams right in her little face. Naturally she becomes frightened, awakens and cries. (My husband says he gets a kick out of this.) I have even seen him slap her on the bottoms of her feet (very hard) for no reason at all.

Abby, the baby has become very nervous and she jumps in her sleep a lot. I have told him that he should stop being so mean to the baby, but he says it won't hurt her any. I told him I was going to write to you and he said, "Go ahead, and in the meantime I'll keep it up." Have you any advice. — New Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Your husband is either so cruel as to be dangerous, or he is sick. (He could be both.) Tell your doctor what you've told me. And for goodness' sake, do it now! Your husband shows symptoms which should not be ignored another day.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WEARING OUT IN CINCY": I'm all choked up! Your letter was about as convincing as the one from the fellow with the rubber duck. I'll send you five strong men to assist you with those five "lonely" nurses who are breaking down your door nightly.

Berland, a free lance science writer, says much can be done to protect against noise pollution — besides wearing earplugs all the time, that is.

A "think quiet" movement needs to pervade all technology, says Berland. Some manufacturers already are — Bethlehem Steel's noise control engineer, James H. Botsford, has developed a garbage can that makes a thud instead of a clang. At a hotel in Hamburg, West Germany, breakfasts are served on leather trays to prevent dish clatter. Even quieter pile drivers have been developed.

Berland says the chief organized anti-noise groups in the United States are the Citizens for a Quiet City in New York, the Citizens Against the Sonic Boom in Cambridge, Mass., and The National Council on Noise Abatement, Washington, D.C.

Even so, he says, the ultimate solution to noise problems not only is public pressure but the law which "forces people to respect the lives of others, as they should have, voluntarily, in the first place."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Wife Punishes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a 34-year-old son who is married to a very pretty girl of 25. She found out that my son was seeing another girl, so she confronted him and then he stopped seeing the other girl.

My problem is the method my daughter-in-law is using to punish her husband. She has been making a big play for my husband. He is 57, Abby, and very attractive. Naturally he loves it and even encourages her. I could never appeal to my daughter-in-law because I am sure she would never consider my feelings as she has never liked me very much although I never have given her any reason for feeling that way. Now I am worried that all this kidding around with hugging and kissing may develop into something more serious. Please tell me how to handle this, Abby. I'm terribly upset. — Can't Compete.

DEAR CAN'T: You could tell your husband to act his age and cool it a little out of respect to his son's marriage, which sounds as though it's on fairly shaky ground right now. It may not help. But it can't hurt.

DEAR ABBY: Before any 55-year-old grandmother has all her teeth extracted for "health reasons," as she stated, she ought to get another opinion.

If more people would realize the problems associated with false teeth more people would run to the dentist to try to save their teeth.

A dental journal recently disclosed that approximately five million people in America have deposited their lower dentures in dresser drawers because they cannot wear them! I am tired of "yanking" teeth. I'd much rather save and restore them.

DEAR DOCTOR: I have been more than true to my teeth, and thus far they have been "true" to me.

DEAR ABBY — I noticed in your column where a teen-ager was ready to give up music lessons because he had a clarinet and then a flute stolen from his locker at school. Abby, many people carry homeowners insurance policies, which cover most thefts of this kind. our daughter's coat and clarinet were stolen from a school locker. We though it was a complete loss until our insurance agent told us that we were completely covered. And what a happy surprise it was! Perhaps others who read your column aren't aware of what their policies cover, either. Anyway, it's worth a mention. — Not An Insurance Agent.

DEAR NOT: You have a lot of company. Many policy holders get a "happy surprise" to learn that they were covered, thinking they were not. But I would guess that there are as many policy holders who get "unhappy surprises" (not being covered, thinking they were). A good agent not only sells—he tells! So this might be a good time for you to call your friendly insurance agent and review the bidding.

DEAR ABBY: Our baby girl is just two months old and here is my problem. My husband does such cruel things to her. For instance, he will force her little cheeks together until her mouth is all pinched together. The baby reacts by jerking her arms and legs and thrashing about. My husband says he enjoys seeing her do this.

Also, when the baby is sound asleep, he goes into her room and yells and screams right in her little face. Naturally she becomes frightened, awakens and cries. (My husband says he gets a kick out of this.) I have even seen him slap her on the bottoms of her feet (very hard) for no reason at all.

Abby, the baby has become very nervous and she jumps in her sleep a lot. I have told him that he should stop being so mean to the baby, but he says it won't hurt her any. I told him I was going to write to you and he said, "Go ahead, and in the meantime I'll keep it up." Have you any advice. — New Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Your husband is either so cruel as to be dangerous, or he is sick. (He could be both.) Tell your doctor what you've told me. And for goodness' sake, do it now! Your husband shows symptoms which should not be ignored another day.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WEARING OUT IN CINCY": I'm all choked up! Your letter was about as convincing as the one from the fellow with the rubber duck. I'll send you five strong men to assist you with those five "lonely" nurses who are breaking down your door nightly.

GRACE MacINNIS

'It's Not Fair Shares' Says Outspoken MP

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

There are quite a few things about the state of the nation that Grace MacInnis, MP, doesn't like.

Among the things she finds less than satisfactory are the white paper on taxation, soap producers who say they can't make phosphate-free detergents, and a B.C. cabinet with second-class citizens—the women ministers without portfolio.

In an interview Thursday afternoon, preceding her talk at a public meeting sponsored by the Victoria Abortion Reform Committee she discussed many current problems.

On the subject of the white paper on taxation, she says:

"The budget has come through and there is literally nothing in it for low-income people. Now we've been told the white paper on social security won't be ready in time for legislation during this session.

"So, while there is no money for those who need it we have raised pensions for public servants, senators and MPs — just at a time when the people are being told to tighten their belts."

The timing, Mrs. MacInnis feels, could hardly be worse.

Her main objection to the white paper stems from the fact that the government is "using moral persuasion in approaching business, asking them to please take less profit."

But when it comes to the low-income groups, there is no question of moral persuasion. These people have no choice.

With unemployment up and consumer credit tightened, the poor are compelled to spend less whether they like it or not.

"The reason people use consumer credit is simply that they haven't enough cash to buy what they need.

"My objection is that moral persuasion on the rich and compulsion on the poor is hardly fair shares."

"Now I know it is a delightful image our prime minister has, but honestly, when the country is being asked to tighten its belt, at the same time that the prime minister divides his holidays between scuba diving in the south, jetting to the Alps and now out here to Whistler Mountain, comes into parliament with American actresses on his arm, and this and that . . .

"Though they don't put it in so many words, they feel that the prime minister and Nero, way back in Roman days, have quite a bit of affinity.

No Reassurance

"Some of us feel that taxation should be strictly according to ability to pay. The white paper is not reassuring."

Mrs. MacInnis also has strong feelings about soap manufacturers who claim it will take years of research to produce a satisfactory phosphate-free detergent.

"But there are phosphate-free detergents available now, and other companies, including a Swedish co-op, are preparing to market others soon."

One milk company in Ontario is selling a detergent which has been analysed by the department of energy, mines and resources and it is definitely phosphate-free. Still the "soapers" are saying they're doing research as fast as possible but need more time.

A Toronto university professor claims he has a phosphate-free detergent which is just as good as the well known brands.

"I've tried to get the Science Council, the National Research Council and several government agencies to analyse it. They won't touch it.

"Now in my opinion this is not unconnected with the Science Council of Canada, whose chairman is also the vice-chairman of the Electric Reduction Company of Canada which makes all phosphates that are used in Canadian laundry detergents.

"I've protested about that and asked for his resignation in the House a number of times.

"The firm was rebuked by the minister of fisheries for pollution in Newfoundland, and it was also fined $40,000 under the Combines Investigation Act for maintaining a monopoly against the public interest.

There was, however, no sign of resignation, even though Mrs. MacInnis suggested "surely you could find somebody who wasn't connected with a firm fined for maintaining a monopoly against the public interest.

"Then I suggested another way around it. Would the government consider asking him to resign his interests in the Electric Reduction Company of Canada?

"There was no answer to that one."

Asked if there was anything the average citizen could do to influence the government, she was emphatic.

"Of course you can't do everything at once — unless you change the government."

"But in specific cases such as legalized abortion, nonphosphate detergents, housing or whatever, you should first get the facts, become informed. Then organize. Know what your goal is, then find out where the levers of power are so you can approach them directly.

"It is these organized groups at the grassroots level which will provide a counterbalance to too much power in the hands of too few people."

MP ADVOCATES BIRTH CONTROL

Abortion Should Be 'Safety Net' for Slip-Ups

By JUDI FREEMAN

Grace MacInnis faced the Victoria Abortion Reform Committee Thursday and told members they should be thinking about birth control.

She agreed that abortion should be taken out of the Criminal Code, thus removing the stigma of crime.

She agreed that a woman has the right not to bear children.

But, stated the NDP member of Paliament for Vancouver-Kingsway, the right to not bear a child brings with it the responsibility to prevent conception.

"To refuse or to neglect to take proper contraceptive measures is the height of irresponsibility and should be so regarded by herself, her partner and society."

"Accidents happen, of course, and abortion may be the safety net," she told the disappointingly small audience of 38 in the Oak Bay Junior Secondary School auditorium.

"But with modern knowledge and the availability of contraceptives, diligently-applied birth control measures should be the first line of defence."

She went on to tell the public meeting that a woman had no reason to bear more children than she could handle "even with our existing backward abortion legislation."

Mrs. MacInnis, a former member of the B.C. legislature, has been working for abortion reform almost from the time she went to Ottawa in 1965. One of her private member's bills asked that the abortion laws be widened.

CONFIRMED STAND

She now advocates complete removal of the laws from the books, making abortion "a matter between a woman and her doctor."

Questioned from the audience, she confirmed her stand.

Dr. Pierre d'Estrube asked if a group such as the Victoria Abortion Reform Committee would have better success seeking modification of the present laws or removal of the laws from the books.

"I think it would be easier to take it out of the books," Mrs. MacInnis replied.

The laws, modified last year to include physical and mental reasons for abortion, could possibly be widened to include economic grounds.

However, trying to establish the boundaries for such grounds could create still more problems.

CHEAPER METHODS

Mrs. MacInnis agreed.

"Yes, it would be cheaper to provide contraceptive devices than to support the children (on relief)."

Mrs. MacInnis said two points should be tackled if amendments had to be made.

They should insist that a pregnant woman have the right to appear before the abortion committee of three doctors. As it stands now, the committee can make its ruling without the presence of the patient concerned.

They should also ask that the physical surroundings for abortions, now stipulated as accredited and approved hospitals, should include medical clinics and well-appointed doctors' offices.

Mrs. MacInnis also suggested in her speech that better sex education at an earlier age and establishment of more family planning clinics are essentials in a world threatened with over-population.

And, she pointed out, "if we had the family planning clinics, we wouldn't have the need for abortions that we have today."

Included in the planning concept would be reinforcement of a doctrine to discourage large families, she said.

Canada's only woman member of Parliament, Grace MacInnis, was in Victoria Thursday evening to address a meeting sponsored by the Victoria Abortion Reform Committee. Mrs. MacInnis is the daughter of J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF party, and was a member of the B.C. Legislature from 1941 to 1945. (Bill Halkett Photo.)

Mini-Gadgets Come to France To Save Space in Small Homes

PARIS (Reuters) — The mini-gadget is making inroads in France, while the miniskirt seems on the way out.

Even as spring collections of Paris couturiers were showing a big increase in skirt lengths, mini-appliances were given top priority here at the annual home furnishings trade fair, the Salon des Arts Menagers.

Appliances for the kitchen and home are getting progressively smaller or more compact to meet the increasing lack of storage space in the average French household.

An electric ice-cream blender 10 inches long is a far cry from the cumbersome old-fashioned models that often had to be cranked by hand.

An offbeat new appliance making its debut at the salon is an electric window cleaner—a miniscule triangular-shaped wiper fitted with a water cylinder to spray vapor on the glass through the chamois-covered blade. It performs the entire operation in a single sweep.

Bright colors are another dominant influence, with strong searing hues replacing whites and pastels in all types of household apparatus from oven-proof casseroles to brooms and mops.

'Looney' Keeps Typists Working Relentlessly

TORONTO (CP) — Some people talk of man's future enslavement to the machine. The rattled typing students of George Brown Community College will probably tell you the enslavement's here—now.

A female voice pronounces the letter A, the keyboard A lights up, the voice says "Now!" and 30 A-keys strike as one.

Looney has cut average learning time from 40 hours to about 20. Despite its relentless efficiency, there is a waiting list for the course.

Life in Far North Has Unique Attractions

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A view of Baffin Land, only one-and-a-half miles away across the waters of Davis Strait (in ice). Drinking water delivered by truck and pumped into a small tank on the ground floor of their two-storey "mansion." A narwhale hunt almost in front of their windows before the ice came in. And a "poor moon" that "has just been going in circles" during the dark days of winter.

Forbes

* * *

Where? Up beyond the Arctic Circle on a 10-mile-by-eight-mile bit of land named Broughton Island. Home for the last seven months for two Victoria school teachers, Audrey Hayley and Alice Haines. They went there last autumn to teach Eskimo youngsters.

"They (the children) are adorable," Alice says in a recent letter. "A long time ago some handsome whalers were here as well as Hudson's Bay men. Results are some very good-looking people."

One of the biggest thrills for the two young Victorians has been to see skins "by the dozen" (especially the polar bear) hanging up to dry outside "all the neat little houses freshly painted in pretty pastels."

* * *

Seals were being caught "in abundance" when they first arrived. Arctic char is on most menus "and it's delicious."

The girls have also "sampled" polar bear steaks, seal stew, seal liver and muktuk, the skin and blubber of the whale. "This last is eaten raw and I'm afraid we don't really appreciate it."

It was on a late October afternoon that the narwhale hunt commenced when the children returned to school after recess excitedly shouting "The whales! The whales!"

Everyone rushed down to the shore. The narwhales were passing through the straits. Hunters were out in their boats and the women and children stood on shore and shouted each time they spied one coming up to blow.

* * *

Alice says, "I am not sure how many were taken but there were quite a few. The tusks are lovely but most of them were very long, five to eight feet. And since they were selling for at least $10 a foot, I didn't get one."

There are 23 white people in the settlement, including the Victoria girls. There is a Dew Line site nine miles from the settlement and social evenings are often enjoyed there. "They get some good movies and they also get fresh fruit and vegetables."

Teachers on Broughton Island are supplied with government rations which they pay for, and they can supplement this with frozen produce from The Bay.

* * *

Audrey and Alice live on the top floor of their "mansion" and use the lower floor as "extra space for storage." They have wall-to-wall carpet, a deep freeze, electric stove, an oil furnace "and one of the three flush toilets in the settlement."

On the other hand the kitchen was not equipped when they arrived "or else, it was borrowed from."

However, residents came to the rescue "and we now have something in our kitchen from every home. It should make it interesting when we leave and have to return all these gadgets to their proper places."

* * *

Weather? Well, when the letter was written they "could feel it but couldn't see too much of it because we are in the time of year when Mr. Vitamin D (The sun) takes his annual vacation."

Order of the day seemed to be freezing winds, drifting snow and "it's cold . . . cold!"

Despite this fact "we are having so many experiences we could almost write a book."

One "exciting" event saw Alice Haines voted "girl of the year" by the Dew Line people and presented with a red plastic rose and some "fresh" parsley.

Romance? Evidently it's to be found. Latest news has it that the school principal, David Kemp, and Audrey Hayley are engaged. They will be married in Victoria in August and return to Broughton Island again to teach.

* * *

So a dream comes true for Miss Hayley who spent her youth in Churchill, Manitoba, fell in love with the north and has always wanted to go back to live.

With Alice it's different. She took on the Broughton Island assignment at a moment's notice. Word came that another teacher was needed. She applied by telegram and four days later had a new job.

"It's been a tremendous experience," is the way she puts it. But whether she will go back for a second year is still on the lap of the gods.

Smog Kills Trees

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Calif. (AP) — The federal government is cutting down and selling about 2,000,000 board feet of trees on 1,010 acres in the San Bernardino Mountains that have been severely damaged by smog that drifts from Los Angeles, it has been announced.

McGEER TAKES PAY RAISE —ANYHOW

The vote was 48 to 1 in the legislature Thursday night when MLAs approved increases in their combined salary and sessional allowances from $8,000 to $10,000.

The lone dissenter was Liberal Leader Pat McGeer, who has argued that this is an inappropriate time for MLAs to raise their salaries.

McGeer was challenged by Socred MLAs to refuse to take the salary increase or give it to charity but he indicated he would accept the raise.

OPPOSITION CRITICAL OF 'DOLLIES'

The "dollies" of the legislature got their salary Thursday night, but not before the opposition gave them a run for the money.

The women in question are the three government ministers without portfolio who are often criticized by NDP and Liberal MLAs as not earning their keep.

The vote for their estimate totalling $48,000 sparked a division in the house which the government MLAs, rallying to the defence of the trio, put down 35 to 16.

Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) started the debate on the salary off—and finished it—by telling the house that the taxpayers of B.C. were picking up the tab for three public relations people for the Social Credit party.

CUT OFF

Cocke announced that he would vote against their salary and immediately called for a division to take advantage of a ruling by the chair Wednesday in which debate was cut off when a division was called. The NDP had protested the ruling when they wanted to speak longer on the vote in regard to the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen.

All three ministers—Isabel Dawson, Pat Jordan and Grace McCarthy—rose to speak after Cocke, but chairman Herb Bruch maintained the ruling, preventing the women from having their say.

Through the uproar that ensued, Premier Bennett claimed that the opposition was trying to stop the "dollies" from speaking, while opposition MLAs charged the ministers were receiving a form of welfare.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) asked on a point of order what one would do if he wanted to vote for the salary of one of the ministers, but not for the remuneration of the other two.

AS WOMEN DO

However, though they were blocked from speaking on the vote for their salary, they did get their word in as women usually do.

Mrs. McCarthy later rose during debate on salaries for MLAs to defend her performance as a minister and tangled several times with Chairman Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) for straying off the subject of debate. Opposition MLAs accused her of giving the speech she hadn't been able to give earlier.

Mrs. Jordan also rose to attack the opposition. Both women were greeted by opposition groans, expressions of disbelief and general merriment.

Mrs. Dawson was absent from the house while the other two spoke.

Uvic Hires Top Man In Music

NEWCOMB
. . . plays recorder

A distinguished musicologist teaching at State University of New York, Dr. Wilburn W. Newcomb, will join the University of Victoria department of music in July.

Phillip T. Young, chairman of the department, said today: "We have made a long and thorough search to find a scholar of Dr. Newcomb's distinction. It is our pride and delight that he has enthusiastically chosen to join us at Uvic.

"We have not overlooked either his eminence as a performer on the recorder or his wife's reputation as a notable soprano. The Newcombs will be an asset to both the university and to Victoria itself."

In particular, Young points out, Dr. Newcomb's experience in supervising doctoral candidates in musicology will be of value as Uvic will add that field to its Ph.D. programs beginning in September.

MESH BEAUTIFULLY

"His specialties mesh beautifully, in fact, with those of Dr. Howard Barnett and Dr. Roger Bray, our other musicologists, to lend impressive breadth to all our offerings in music history."

Newcomb, 34, received his bachelor of music degree from Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, took his master's with Professor Willi Apel at Indiana and then earned the doctorate magna cum laude at the University of Gottingen in Germany.

His most renowned book is Lute Music of Shakespeare's Time, but he has also published Renaissance Lieder and—in Germany—a volume devoted to Elizabethan lute music and lute-playing.

At Uvic he will hold the rank of associate professor.

Mrs. Newcomb, professionally Lorraine Gorrell, shares her husband's enthusiasm for early music and 19th-century lieder, but is also a specialist in contemporary music for voice.

IN THE YEAR OF THE PIG

The terror and brutality of the war in Vietnam are captured by brilliant Producer-Director Emile de Antonio. Not just an anti-war film, In the Year of the Pig shows the de-humanizing effects of war on all participants. Original newsreel and TV footage are used to identify historical events leading to the current war.

"A first rate film"—Toronto Daily Star.
"A new kind of chiller movie"—Time Magazine.

April 3, 1970, 8:00 p.m., Elliott Building, 167.
Adults, $1.00, Students, 50c.

Division of Continuing Education,
University of Victoria.

"ANTONIONI AT HIS CREATIVE BEST! Haunting, meaningful, dynamically contemporary—about the powder keg that is the United States, seen warped by moral decay and false values." —Cue Magazine

"ANTONIONI IS A GENIUS! The picture is not pretty but the movie is beautiful, for Antonioni is a genius and so is his cameraman." —WCBS-TV

Tonight's Top Television Shows

ANDY WILLIAMS. 7 p.m., Channel 8. The rerun season begins tonight for Andy. Guests are Judy Collins, the Smothers Brothers and Gary Puckett and the Union Gap. The Smothers Brothers have a temporary falling-out . . Dick dumps Tom to team up with the bear of the show. Andy sings Lodi, Easy to Be Hard, and Sweet Caroline.

* * *

SPECIAL. 7:30 p.m., Channels 7, 12. Cinderella. (Repeat.) This durable adaptation of the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical based on the classic fairytale may be written off by many as a sentimental, cornball affair with a familiar Rodgers and Hammerstein score, but that's pretty good right there. The songs are uniformly fine and the cast, headed by Lesley Ann Warren in the title role, Stuart Damon as Prince Charming, Celeste Holm as the fairy godmother, and Jo Van Fleet as the wicked stepmother is excellent, except for the dimwitted stepsisters overdrawn by Pat Carroll and Barbara Ruick. Walter Pidgeon and Ginger Rogers get top billing in the minor and thankless roles of the King and Queen.

* * *

SPECIAL. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. The Unexplained. Young and old alike with a curiosity about the road that science may be taking us, won't find an answer here, but they will discover something about the innumerable questions among the "unexplained" that scientists are asking. Just imagine how much expertise is involved in even thinking of the questions, when something like two dozen top level scientists and lay authorities on the program discuss some of the ones they're only able to ask as yet. For example, you'll be exposed to the thought that the "definition of what is uniquely human is becoming narrower"; that a dolphin can see with sound at a pace "ten times as fast as our language" can take us: that evidence exists which may prove that America was discovered in 1500 B.C.; that who knows but that computers may one day be able to program themselves; and that no one knows what man will do with his knowledge of genetic engineering and his ability to control the environment.

THE NAME OF THE GAME. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. One of the Girls in Research. Brenda Vaccaro, a delightful Broadway actress who doesn't do too much TV, is so cute in this episode's title role, one can easily overlook its shortcomings. Brenda Vaccaro has a schoolgirl crush on Glenn, and daydreams about him constantly even though they've never met. Finally, she actually gets to work with him, researching an eccentric millionaire who's trying to strangle Howard Publications.

* * *

SPECIAL. Like Hep! (Repeat) 10 p.m., Channels 7, 12. "Laugh-In's" wacky irreverence infiltrates Dinah Shore's special right from the start when the star displays her lumpy footgear. In a fairytale sketch, Diana Ross plays Snow White, and Lucille Ball a mean godmother who socks it to Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, cast as Tommy Tucker and Little Boy Blue. Miss Ross steals the show dancing in a "Singing Detective" bit with Dinah Shore playing the lead. "Laugh-In " blackouts predominate in a singing sister routine; the ladies mimic The Supremes in a version of "Dinah"; Lorne Greene, the Smothers Brothers and Greg Morris pop up for a moment; and Miss Shore plays with songs like "Windmills of Your Mind."

* * *

DRAMA SPECIAL. 10 p.m., Channel 8. Mirror, Mirror, Off the Wall is a contemporary farce in which veteran character actor George C. Scott plays a dual role. As Max Maxwell, a writer with a sinking reputation, he's rumpled and dumpy. But he publishes a dirty book under a pseudonym . . . and success makes for schizophrenia. His alter ego struggles to take over Max's personality.

* * *

JOHNNY CARSON. 11:30 p.m., Channel 5. Flip Wilson is always funny . . . and tonight he's guest host on the Carson night run, funny as ever. His guest is to be Louis Armstrong.

* * *

LAUGH-IN. 8 pm.., Channels 2 and 6. Guest Jack Benny is a lion tamer, ballet dancer, Eskimo and matador . . . but not all at once. Telephone operator Lily Tomlin takes on the White House and Mod Mod, World salutes work. Consider it a flashback . . . a rerun, it takes us back to early in the big romance

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

8 p.m. Channel 8: Jigsaw (1968 Mystery), Harry Guardino, Hope Lange, Bradford Dillman. A swift pace and intricate editing highlight an unconventional murder melodrama.

11 p.m. Channel 11: Tarzan and the Trappers (1958 Adventure), Eve Brent, Ricki Sorensen. The jungle man frees the animals from some villainous trappers.

11 p.m. Channel 12: A Taste of Honey (1961 English Drama), Rita Tushingham, Murray Melvin. Warmly human, outspoken drama of girl and her violent entrance into womanhood. Tops in acting and direction.

11:40 Channel 2: The Millionairess (1960 English Adventure), Sophia Loren, Peter Sellers. George Bernard Shaw's views on love and money.

12:01 Channel 6: Jigsaw (see above).

"Complete Real Estate Service Across Canada"

There are many ways of putting your property into the hands of many selling brokers — Multiple Listing (which reaches most Victoria Offices and Salesmen) is the sure way; or the listing agent will sub-list to other offices as seems advisable. A broad segment of selling agents is readily within your reach.

The key man in listing a property, though, is the listing broker you choose, and you should choose him with care. It is he whom you look to for advice as to the proper selling price to be placed on your property. It should not be too low — obviously — otherwise you will loose money; and it should not be too high so as to have a property which "drags" and does not sell in a reasonable time. This too can result in, eventually, a lower price than what could have been obtained. The advice is helpful in arriving at this figure. You will look to the listing agent to advertise your property fully; it is unlikely that anyone else will take on this task. Then, when an offer is received, the listing agent is available for advice as to its acceptance, no matter what the source of the offer may be. A key man in a satisfactory Real Estate Sale is the listing agent — a position of trust.
Our experienced staff is at your service.

WITH INCOME
EXHILARATING VIEW—PRIVACY
We all like an income, but often hesitate to buy income property because we have to sacrifice our own privacy. Here is property that is unique in that one can have one's pie and eat it. Income and privacy goes hand in hand. The owner's apartment is situated in such a position that it offers a commanding view over our beautiful city and out to the distant sea. Hardwood floors throughout, de luxe kitchen with built-in range and oven. In addition to the owners home there are FOUR furnished rental units with separate entrances and plumbing. These provide a substantial monthly income. Construction only 11 years old and beautifully maintained. A pleasure to show. Sorry, no drive-by address can be given. Make your appointment to view by calling Don Bacon, 385-2458.

103 Hostages Freed Unharmed After Marathon Air Hijack

By SINO LEE

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters) — A Japanese jetliner hijacked Tuesday by a band of swashbuckling students tonight apparently landed in North Korea after releasing 103 hostage passengers and crew here. But North Korea said it could guarantee neither the safety of those aboard nor their immediate return.

On board the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 were a crew of three, nine armed fanatical student hijackers and their voluntary hostage, Vice-Transport Minister Shinjiro Yamamura of Japan.

The jet disappeared from a U.S. radar screen in Japan while over North Korea and apparently landed in Pyongyang, the Japanese self-defence force agency reported.

North Korea told the United Nations armistice commission on the border village of Panmunjum it could not guarantee the safety of the plane and its occupants because "the situation had changed," the North Korean central news agency reported.

Wednesday the hardline Communist nation told the commission it would guarantee the safety of the plane and all concerned if it landed in North Korea.

HELD 3½ DAYS

North Korea's change of heart capped one of the most tense dramas in aerial history. Hours earlier the youthful hijackers released 99 passengers and four stewardesses in exchange for Yamamura after holding them hostage for 3½ days while repeatedly threatening to blow the plane up.

All but one of the hostages later returned by air to Fukuoka in southern Japan.

Radio Pyongyang accused the Japanese of a plot to "create the impression that we want to take in the so-called Trotskyites or criminals," meaning the hijackers.

The broadcast said the North Koreans did not want to become involved in the case and would not "play the role of the Japanese police" in doing what Pyongyang said the Japanese authorities should have done—arrest the hijackers.

They hold the record as the longest-held hostages in aviation history.

The plane was hijacked while on a domestic flight in Japan by left-wing "Red Army" students who demanded it land in North Korea. After a stop in Fukuoka, Japan, for refuelling it headed for the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

SHOT AT FIRST-TIME

But anti-aircraft guns opened fire and the plane turned south to Kimpo airport in Seoul. Three days of negotiating followed between the desperate hijackers and high officials from the South Korean and Japanese governments as the tense affair was watched by millions in Japan on live telecasts.

Almost 79 hours after the plane was taken over in central Japan after leaving Tokyo, the passenger door was opened today. Two students holding feudal samurai swords stood at the top of the steps as the first group of 50 passengers stepped out and walked to waiting buses.

A few minutes later the second group made their way down the steps and into the buses.

Most of the passengers walked briskly, and Herbert Brill, 50, of Hoboken, N.J., one of two Americans aboard, said he was treated extremely well by the students.

Asked if he felt his life was threatened, he said: "Yes, when the negotiations were going on. But it was a very interesting experience."

The only other non-Japanese on board was Rev. Daniel MacDonald, a Roman Catholic priest from San Francisco. Both Americans are living in Japan.

Brill is an executive for Pepsi Cola in Tokyo and Father MacDonald is a Maryknoll missionary.

Throughout the morning, Japanese and South Korean officials negotiated with the hijackers over a special telephone line connected between the plane and the terminal.

The students finally agreed to release the passengers after the plane had been made ready for takeoff.

North Korea has promised that the crew and others aboard will receive humane treatment.

The Korean Central news agency said it had no idea why the hijackers wanted to fly to North Korea, and certainly never invited them.

Throughout the long war of nerves at Kimpo airport, the youths repeatedly threatened to blow the plane up. But so far no one has been harmed.

M.A.S.H. Gnaws At Everything

By STEVE HUME

The helicopter swings across a green and pleasant land, and the soundtrack eases itself alive with guitar music and a gentle lyric that deceptively insinuates itself into the viewer's frame of reference.

"The game of life
is hard to play,
You're going to lose
it anyway . . ."

It's a soft-sell piece of sentimental slush with "Tragicomedy-Hollywood style" stamped all over it. A hundred cliches culled from John Wayne war epics leap by association to the brain.

The camera zooms in on the helicopter. Bundles of bloody rags strapped to landing skids resolve themselves into maimed human beings. An arm flaps spasmodically. Cliches echo in the head.

MIND-BLOWER

It is the first setup of the movie, and it is a mind-blower.

M.A.S.H. is a movie of juxtaposition. The gross cliches and corny old punchlines all carry finely-chiselled edges of bitterness and guilt.

One leaves the theatre with the distinct impression of having sat through a relentless barrage of broken glass to the accompaniment of canned laughter.

M.A.S.H. are the initials of a military hospital operating just four miles from enemy lines in a war that masquerades as Korea but is a thinly-veiled Vietnam.

CRY OF ANGUISH

Elliott Gould and Donald Sutherland play precisely the roles of "the pros from Dover," a pair of highly-skilled surgeons indispensable to the efficient operation of the medical unit.

Their activities, a kind of sanctioned guerrilla theatre of the operating room, provide the vehicle for some of the most astute and stinging satire in a long, long time.

Darts fly furiously into a number of prominent victims:

● The puritanical Christian, maintaining a pseudo-rational pose of support in the midst of an insane war, is hung from his own cross;

● The obsessive sex that lurks repressed behind the facade of bureaucratic mediocrity which is becoming the social norm, is hung out like a gaudy poster painted on soiled sheets;

● The women's liberation movement, with its rhetoric of sexual exploitation, gets a subtle burn through the film's caricature of sexual exploitation as the militants appear to see it;

● The medical profession is flayed with a depiction of assembly-line service where the mute, frightened patient is reduced to the level of object, fixed like a blown-up engine;

● And there is the priest, hovering outside the operating theatre like a bird of carrion, preying on the dead for his own absolution.

MILITARY BEAST

It adds up to a ludicrous gallery of events.

Bourgeois values, the military beast, all are levelled by the common denominator of absurdity.

One laughs, but the movie is not funny. With each giggle comes a trickle of guilt.

For juxtaposed with the mockery is a continued glimpse of the true absurdity—a stream of shattered human beings that moves through the backdrop of the film's action in a grisly parade along the edges of awareness.

The broken soldiers are not emphasized. They are just there. And they create an awareness that erodes the glow generated by the sharp satire, a nasty feeling of inadequacy that gnaws at the viscera.

FUTILITY

The futility of the whole thing, the value systems, the war itself, crystallizes in a single scene.

He has the gaping wound of a high-velocity weapon in his chest.

He is dying because he has a rare blood-type not available at the base. Not available, that is, until someone takes whole blood from the camp's sleeping commander and transfusion by bucket brigade begins.

CHEERING IDIOTS

And in the end, the whole war is reduced to an inter-unit football game, complete with casualties, players on the bench smoking dope, caricatures of racism, and a crowd of cheering idiots on the sidelines.

"Death hath ten thousand several doors for men to make their exits," wrote Elizabethan playwright John Webster.

The sentimental lyric repeats, "you're going to lose it anyway," and there are better ways of dying than in wars. Suicide, for example, is a cleaner, more painless alternative. It's an absurd suggestion, but no more absurd than the idea of blowing out the brains of a complete stranger over an issue of abstract ideology.

M.A.S.H. generates a depressing feeling of futility in the viewer, and in the end, the onus is tossed back into the collective lap of the audience. The buck stops there, the movie says.

B.C. BRIEFS

Jury Blames Drinking, Gear Lack

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Excessive drinking and inadequate lifesaving gear were cited Thursday night by a coroner's jury in this port as governing factors in the deaths of four persons March 15 when a fishboat swamped in heavy seas.

The inquest was into the death of Milicent Cecil, 37, her daughters Yvonne, 6, and Carla, 2, and the one-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barton, all of nearby Kinkolith.

The dead were among nine persons aboard the vessel when it foundered in heavy seas about 15 miles north of here. Four of the survivors testified at the inquest.

Building Damaged

BURNABY (CP) — Fire department officials estimated damage at more than $100,000 in a blaze Thursday at a 23-suite apartment building under construction here. A plumber's torch was blamed for starting the fire. Workmen in the building escaped safely.

Villagers Upset

CHETWYND (CP) —Members of the Chetwynd village council are more concerned than elated over oil and gas deposits in the Peace River district. The community needs a supply of fresh water, but every well strikes natural gas. Officials are considering selling natural gas to Chetwynd residents — although they claim the profit margin would be embarrassing if they charged the same rate as utility companies.

$1,500,000 PROJECT

Tissue Rejection Probe Planned

By GLENNIS ZILM

EDMONTON (CP) — A medical team beginning a new $1,500,000 research project on the problem of the body's immunity to transplant tissue hopes to achieve a major breakthrough within five years.

Dr. John B. Dossetor, 44, head of the research team of scientists ready to begin work at the University of Alberta, said Thursday he hoped for "clinical application of the induction of immunological tolerance" within five years.

This would mean a person could be readied to receive an organ transplant, such as a kidney or heart, from a specific donor without the rejection reaction, as is now the case.

The project, announced Thursday, is jointly sponsored by the Medical Research Council and the University of Alberta.

The council's financial contribution of $1,250,000 over five years will provide salaries for Dr. Dossetor and Dr. Erwin Diener, the two principal investigators, and for other full — and part-time medical and technical assistants.

TAKING NEW APPROACH

"We are directing our efforts at a new approach to rejection," Dr. Dossetor told a news conference.

Now, when an organ such as heart, kidney or lung is transplanted, the recipient's body treats the new tissue as a foreign object and reacts to it. A simple example of the rejection mechanism is the way the body fights the bacteria or viruses that cause a cold of flu.

"The problem is to prevent, or at best to interfere with, this immune response," Dr. Dossetor said.

At present there are two ways of doing this:

● Selection of an organ from an individual who has similar tissue factors to those of the patient. This involves tissue typing and matching, similar to blood typing and matching.

● Suppression of all the immune responses in the patient. However, this means the individual is then susceptible to infection which could rapidly become fatal.

LISTS FOUR AIMS

— Investigate ways to improve tissue typing and matching. Dr. Dossetor said that at least 13 factors have been identified so far, and there are more.

—Study the whole process of rejection.

"We still don't know just what the basic mechanism that causes rejection is," he said.

—Try to find ways of preserving organs. At present, an organ must be used within hours of the donor's death.

'Not Doing Enough'

CALGARY (CP) — Canada is heading toward a dangerous isolationism and the victims will be western wheat growers, Robert Thompson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Red Deer, said Thursday.

"Canada's mission in the '70s should be to go to the impoverished nations and teach them the secrets of Canada's success rather than to withdraw from the international arena," Thompson told a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club.

Canada was not doing enough in the field of international aid because of its isolationist feelings, he said.

Farmers Protest

REGINA (CP) — More than 5,000 members of the National Farmers' Union brought their organize-and-bargain movement to the Saskatchewan legislature Thursday, second stage of a prairie-wide show of strength. They demonstrated at the Alberta legislature in Edmonton Tuesday and plan to mass at the Manitoba legislature in Winnipeg Saturday.

Ombudsman Appeals

EDMONTON (CP) — George B. McClellan, Alberta's ombudsman, has asked the legislature for direction because the cabinet has said it is not prepared to accept his recommendations to settle the most exhaustive investigation made by him since his appointment in 1967.

In a special report tabled Thursday in the legislature, McClellan declined to reveal details of the case which resulted in a 53-page submission to the cabinet in addition to 16 "heavily documented exhibits."

The report deals with a complaint made by R. J. Philipzyk against his expulsion as a salesman from the Edmonton Real Estate Board Co-Operative Listing Bureau Ltd. in June 1966 following charges heard against him by the ethics committee and a subsequent appeal.

Unit Opened

VANCOUVER (CP) — A testing unit was formally opened Thursday at Vancouver General Hospital to check hearing loss. The $19,580 unit will also test facial nerve functions, loss of taste and causes of dizziness. Dr. Pat Gannon, director of ear-nose-throat research laboratories at McGill University, Montreal, takes charge of the unit May 1.

Local Air Pilots Fighting New Rules

The Victoria branch of the Canadian Owners and Pilots' Association is continuing its fight against the transport department's new airport flight rules.

In a brief to the DOT's air regulations superintendent Wednesday, COPA said the new rules cause confusion and are unsafe.

The rules restrict visual flights to latitudes below 1,500 feet within 15 nautical miles of Vancouver International Airport and extend the positive control zone around other airports beyond the previous five-mile radius.

This zone is a restricted area which small planes cannot enter without receiving radio permission from the control tower. Its purpose is to ensure clear airspace for the landing of large aircraft.

In the brief, COPA contends that crossing the Straits of Georgia under the 1,500-foot ceiling to comply with the DOT ruling violates other over-water flying rules.

PROPOSAL REJECTED

Roy Parrett, COPA's B.C. director, said today that his association rejected a DOT proposal that private pilots use American airspace when flying from one part of Canada to another. "It's completely unnecessary," he said.

Parrett said the Victoria Flying School also objects to the 1,500-foot ceiling because much of the land in this area rises to 800 feet, leaving only 700 feet for an inexperienced pilot to fly in.

COPA proposed a system of corridors to separate jet planes and slower traffic at all major Candian airports where a problem exists. These corridors would give large high-powered aircraft exclusive airspace, while at the same time allowing slower planes to operate under normal flight rules outside the protected airspace.

COPA asked that no control zone extend more than five miles from the airport; that from five to 10 miles, aircraft be permitted to fly at least 1,500 feet above ground and that from 10 to 15 miles, they should be allowed a ceiling of at least 3,000 feet.

Parrett said the transport department was not unsympathetic towards the COPA complaints and added that they have indicated the Vancouver zone might be reduced from 30 miles to 10 miles with a flight ceiling of 2,500 feet.

Guatemalan Kidnappers Set New Conditions

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters) — In a dramatic new demand, the rebel armed forces movement asked today for $700,000 in cash and the release of 25 political prisoners as ransom in exchange for kidnapped West German Ambassador Karl von Spreti.

The demand was made following a Guatemalan government decision Thursday night not to heed the abductors' first order to release 17 prisoners in exchange for the 62-year-old ambassador, kidnapped Tuesday.

No news of the new condition by the rebels has been released officially by the government, but Reuters news agency was told unofficially that the demand came in a letter delivered to the papal delegate, Msgr. Gerolamo Prigione.

Meanwhile, a delegation of ambassadors met with Foreign Minister Alberto Fuentes Mohn today to protest the government's decision on the kidnapping of the German ambassador and asked for personal protection for themselves and their staff.

In Bonn, the West German government said it expected Guatemala to do everything possible to protect von Spreti's life.

HOME GARDEN

Time to Start Cabbage Seed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Out of all the cabbage tribe listed in vegetable garden books and seed catalogs, we rarely come across more than three represented in average gardens. Is it because we don't know how to grow them? Or because we don't cook them properly?

Perhaps the answer is 50 of one to 50 of the other.

Cole slaw is as much a part of Canadian meals as apple pie; and salads of shredded young cabbage, celery and chopped apple covered with grated cheese are another Canadian institution.

For these foods we need fresh cabbage — sweet, crisp and easily digested. A stored and shipped cabbage does not give us these qualities so we say — no cabbage.

Any gardener can grow a few, and by a few we mean about 12 each of six different kinds for a family of six.

Cabbage take just over two months to mature from the setting out of young plants. To have early summer heads ready by end of June the plants need to be put into the garden by the end of April.

So get the seed sown now, this week, in a coldframe or a seedbox with some protection from frost.

Early cabbage varieties are Salad Green, Viking Extra Early, Hybrid Emerald Cross, Stonehead. You will find more than one of these locally, but in general be guided by earliness and small heads.

Mid season cabbages are ready by late July into August. Copenhagen Market is the one usually recommended.

For late fall, and keeping pretty well outdoors here until almost Christmas, there are such names as Penn State Ballhead, Eastern Ballhead and Baby Head, a small solid head for home gardens.

Red Cabbage is something different for eating raw in salads during fall, and as a cooked vegetable, not only for pickling. It has a delicious flavor, far less cabbagy in taste and odor than stored green cabbages.

Try even a half dozen plants.

Savoy is another late fall and early winter cabbage. It will stand heat during its growing period, and improves with light frost at the end of its growing season. Savoys have wrinkled leaves and less odor when cooking, though I believe that much of the cabbage odor we complain about comes from heads which are not freshly cut. And when cooked for too long a period. Fast cooking in the smallest amount of water, uncovered, gives little odor.

Seeds of the early and mid-season cabbages must be sown at once to get the young plants ready for the garden by the end of this month.

Those for late fall and winter (including Red and Savoy) can be sown by about the middle of May for planting during June.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Every winning bridge player has learned that in a rubber-bridge game one should never jeopardize his game or slam contract in order to try to make an overtrick. If the reader will observe South's play in the deal presented today, he will come to the proper conclusion: our South declarer was not a winning rubber-bridge player.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

For those who might think that North's rebid of three hearts is a typographical error, it is not. North was afraid to bid four diamonds, for fear that South might interpret this bid as a constructive one. So he "corrected" to three hearts, hoping that South had a five-card suit.

Despite East's duce of spades play on West's opening lead of the spade ace, West continued with the nine of spades, hoping that East possessed the king. This trick was captured by dummy's queen.

A low trump was then led, South finessing his queen successfully. He then led the four of diamonds to the board's nine, in order to take another trump finesse. And the roof now caved in.

East ruffed this lead and returned a spade, which West ruffed with the eight-spot. He then played back another diamond, which East trumped with his king, for the setting trick.

Waste no tears for South because of his "tough luck" in finding East with no diamonds. He deserves no sympathy, for his avariciousness brought about his downfall.

Actually, declarer should not have taken even the first finesse. Instead, he should have played the ace of trumps, and followed up by leading another trump. He would then have had a guaranteed contract.

However, having finessed successfully, certainly South should not have tried the finesse again. He should have cashed the trump ace. He would then have made one overtrick. When he elected to try for another overtrick, he lost the game, the rubber, and a friend (North).

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

CPR Link Began At Thunder Bay

By BOB BOWMAN

Although Fort William and Port Arthur amalgamated only this year as Thunder Bay "Canada's newest city," the area has been known as Thunder Bay for many years. It was the winter headquarters of the North West Company and Fort William was called after one of its directors, William McGillivray.

The CPR had its beginning there when a contract was awarded on April 3, 1875, to build a railway to Winnipeg. The work began in June and followed "the highway of destiny," a route recommended by one of Canada's greatest surveyors, Sandford Fleming, who also invented standard time.

The company that began the work in 1875 was not the original CPR organized by Montreal financier Sir Hugh Allan. It was granted a charter by Sir John A. Macdonald's government and when the act passed the House of Commons it was recorded by the shortest speech ever made by a cabinet minister. Sir George Etienne Cartier said "All aboard for the Pacific."

Cartier's speech was short and so was the life of the company. An election campaign fund scandal led to the defeat of the Macdonald government, and Canada's first Liberal government, under Alexander Mackenzie, was in power when the second CPR company began its work from Thunder Bay.

In order to keep a promise to British Columbia the railway should have been completed to the Pacific by 1881. However, even when the work began in 1875, Prime Minister Mackenzie, in a speech at Sarnia, said "All the power of man and all the money of Europe" could not complete the railway in 10 years. However, it was completed by 1885, but by the third CPR company, organized after the Macdonald government was returned to power in 1878.

Other events on April 3:

1834 — W. L. Mackenzie became the first mayor of Toronto.

1858 — U.S. soldiers deserted and mills closed in California as Fraser River gold rush began.

1907 — University of Saskatchewan received charter.

"We passed each other 18 miles short of Tula on Monday," said Bob. "I was driving there to see a client."

"Sure," replied Joe. "I had left Tulla at noon on my way here, and only stayed here an hour. Then I drove back to Tulla, and passed you again 13 miles from here."

Don't Shop Around For Better Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many a time in my medical life I have felt so sorry for a person, often a woman with an obviously retarded child, perhaps with a very dull face and a tongue too large for his mouth. Because he had not learned to walk well, his mother was carrying him, although he may have been four or five years old.

When I talked to the woman, she admitted that she had her child to experts in several big clinics, and they had all told her that her child's brain had not grown properly, and that no doctor knew how to rebuild it; but still she kept shopping around, hoping always to get a happier diagnosis, one that would be more to her liking. My heart went out to the unhappy woman, but I had no hope at all that she would ever get the diagnosis that she so wanted.

I have seen hundreds of stout women coming into a big clinic, hoping to be given the diagnosis that they much wanted. They wanted to find a doctor who would say, "You are just fat, and you do not have to diet; what you have is an inactive thyroid gland: we will give you thyroid pills, and soon you will be slim." Unfortunately, these many women did not get that diagnosis, even though they shopped in many clinics.

Again I have seen many women with frequent and severe attacks of migraine, sick headaches, who said to me that they planned to go from clinic to clinic, until they found a place where they would get at least 100 laboratory tests. Curiously, they were not interested in what a physician with great experience with migraine could tell them; they wanted laboratory tests, and they felt sure that if they could get enough tests they get a cure.

Actually, I, with my enormous experience with migraine, cannot remember a case in which the results of tests threw light on the cause of a woman's migraine. Migraine seems always due to a "storm" that comes out of a little irritable spot in the brain.

I must have seen 3,000 women with severe migraine and most of those whom I could help greatly were those who confessed to me that they had some great sorrow or terrible worry; perhaps the husband lacked love and kindness and understanding, or the son was a terrible problem, with his stealing of cars and dropping out of school; or perhaps the hippie daughter had run away and disappeared. With all this, there had come many sleepless nights and many unhappy days.

Fortunately, when a migrainous woman told me what was tearing at her heart, and when I could get her to face her problem more bravely or perhaps to make up her mind definitely what to do, sometimes I could almost cure her without any medicine.

U.S. TEAMSTERS BACK ON JOBS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of striking truck drivers went back to work today under a tentative agreement increasing their average wage by more than $1 an hour during a three-year contract.

Frank Fitsimmons, acting president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, asked the strikers to return to their jobs pending a mail vote by the 425,000 workers covered by the tentative agreement announced Thursday.

Most of the 425,000 drivers had stayed on the job after the old contract expired midnight Tuesday night but wildcat strikes in dozens of cities added up to the biggest trucking walkout in U.S. history.

Details of the agreement were withheld pending results of the mail referendum among the workers but sources in the negotiations confirmed the wage increase figure of more than $1 an hour for the approximately 325,000 city truck drivers. These men now average about $4 an hour and about $10,000 a year with overtime and other benefits.

Air Controllers Balk At Strike-End Bids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Working under an agreement with the U.S. government, union leaders tried to get air traffic controllers back on the job today and end a strike that has crippled air travel for more than a week.

Early reports, however, indicated no significant back-to-work movement on today's first shift.

In New York, a focal point in the strike, 40 of 57 controllers scheduled to work reported sick at the air route centre which controls traffic in several Eastern states.

The number of controllers staying off the job remained about the same at Kansas City and Minneapolis. In Chicago, all 10 controllers at the O'Hare tower reported for duty but the nearby Aurora control centre declined to give out numbers on strikers.

Leaders of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization agreed Thursday to order their men back to work by the weekend.

DROP CHARGES

Judge George L. Hart Jr. of the U.S. district court then dismissed contempt proceedings against PATCO Executive Director F. Lee Bailey and two other union leaders.

Later, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman confirmed that three controllers who had been ordered from Baton Rouge, La., to new posts and who had not reported to their new assignments were in the early stages of dismissal proceedings.

The transfers, which PATCO said were aimed at undercutting the union, were a prime spark to the current work stoppage, which has curbed air travel through the country since March 25.

The FAA spokesman said letters of proposed removal had been sent to Shelby McCurnin, James Sparks and James Henson. They have 30 days to respond and after that face the usual civil service procedures.

Sparks had said in Baton Rouge Thursday night they had not received the notices, nor had they been notified they were in the works.

U.S. Mail Workers Get Landmark Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal workers in the United States got their pay raise and pulled all other civil service employees and military men up with them in a landmark agreement that for the first time provides collective bargaining rights for government workers.

The agreement, reached Thursday but still subject to congressional approval, was scheduled for formal presentation to Capitol Hill today in the form of presidential messages.

As worked out in talks that opened March 25, the pact provides a 14-per-cent, two-step pay raise for postal workers that breaks down this way:

A six-per-cent increase for post office employees—and with them, more than 2,000,000 other government workers and 3,000,000 in the military services retroactive to Dec. 27.

Another eight per cent for the postal workers who wrought the agreement in the wake of their first-ever strike last month, and collective bargaining rights if the post office department is reorganized.

The cost was estimated at $1,200,000,000 the first six months of this year and $2,500,000,000 in fiscal 1971.

In New York, Moe Biller, president of the 25,000-member Manhattan-Bronx Postal Union, called the Washington agreement, "a complete sellout."

He said his men, mostly post office clerks, still were insisting on extra wage consideration because of the higher cost of living in the New York area.

A spokesman for Branch 36 of the New York Association of Letter Carriers, which started the strike last month, said the agreement is vague concerning the additional eight-per-cent pay raise.

The increase will apply retroactive to last Dec. 27 for 2,900,000 federal employees—of whom 750,000 work in the post office—and some 3,000,000 military men.

"The most significant thing," said George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, "is extending collective bargaining procedure to government."

The Nixon administration wants to make the department a government-owned but privately operated corporation. The agreement, as announced by Postmaster-General Winton Blount, did not spell out this portion of reorganization.

The agreement also included amnesty for the 180,000 postal employees who staged the wildcat strike that tied up the mails for several days last month and resulted in troops being called to work in New York post offices.

Another provision will reduce for the postal workers, who now earn between $6,176 a year to $8,442, the length of time it takes to earn the maximum amount to eight years from 21.

Cabinet Holds Crisis Session

SEARCH PRESSED FOR SICK BABY

Times News Services

KINGSTON — Search for the newborn baby snatched early Thursday from hospital here goes on today as doctors expressed concern for the infant. The baby girl is suffering a possibly fatal blood disease and Dr. D. J. Delahaye said he believed she urgently needed a blood transfusion.

Toronto lawyer W. Glen How, general counsel for the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect of which the mother is a member, said he had been told by "a competent, medically-trained person" that the baby is doing well.

The baby was born Wednesday in Smith Falls, 55 miles north of here to Mrs. Antonius Dewall, 22.

Breath Law Appeal Filed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Attorney-General's department today filed an appeal with the B.C. Court of Appeals against a judgment handed down Thursday by a B.C. Supreme Court judge declaring null and void the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

No date was announced for hearing the appeal.

City Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said there is no change in the law as far as B.C. is concerned except that it is no longer an offence to refuse to take a breath test.

In Ottawa, Justice Minister John Turner said the federal government will defend the law in the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary.

Technically, the landmark ruling of Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe is effective only in B.C. but, as Attorney-General Edgar Gerhard of Alberta put it, it will have a "persuasive effect" elsewhere.

In other words, if defence lawyers in other provinces cite the judgment, selling fast here at $1.20 a copy, judges would consider it, although they would not be bound by it.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Thursday instructions have been sent to police throughout the province to revert to the former method of charging drivers with impaired driving rather than with violation of the federal law which makes it an offence to drive with a breathalyzer reading in excess of .08.

OTHER CHARGE

Lady Luck Smiles On Drinker

By NEILL GADDES

Call it a lucky break:

An 18-year-old who was to be sentenced this morning for driving while his blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent reversed his guilty plea on the advice of Judge William Ostler and had his case dismissed.

"You have pleaded guilty to Section 224 of the Criminal Code," Ostler told John M. Soan, 315 Alder, but added in view of the "landmark decision" in Vancouver the section is "a nullity."

NULL AND VOID

Ostler was referring to the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling Thursday that declared null and void, at least in B.C., the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

The section had been in effect since Dec. 1 of last year.

"The legal implications are probably not known to you but I advise you to withdraw your plea of guilty and enter a plea of not guilty," Ostler said, noting that the accused was undefended.

Soan took the advice and the case was dismissed.

He had originally pleaded guilty March 24 to having a blood-alcohol content of .11 per cent when he was involved in an accident near Rockland and Cook March 23.

But Harold S. Andrews, 57, of Vancouver, was not as lucky:

He asked Ostler, before entering a plea to an impaired driving charge, whether the Vancouver decision would have any bearing in his case.

"Hope springs eternal but I'm afraid not," the judge replied, adding that it was a good question.

Andrews pleaded guilty, was fined $350 and had his licence suspended.

Capital Budget Hiked; Voting Date April 30

By JIM HUME

It took city council two hours Thursday to tell Mayor Courtney Haddock's special budget committee it had cut capital project proposals too much.

It took the same aldermen only a few minutes to tell the mayor they disapproved of public statements published Thursday in which Haddock forecast defeat of capital budget vote set for April 30.

The mayor cheerfully agreed to re-insert in the five-year capital program $523,000 to revamp and replace city maintenance sheds at Garbally Road and $220,000 as a Phase One move towards a fire fighting training centre.

The extra $743,000 pushed the capital budget total from $5,570,000 to $6,313,000.

DENIES REPORT

Haddock denied telling the Colonist that the fall would be a better time to hold the budget. And he suggested that his forecast of defeat for an April vote had been taken out of context.

Ald. Harold Olafson was the first to ask Haddock about morning reports regarding the budget.

"We had an informal meeting in the alderman's lounge and we all agreed that April 30 was the best, not the fall," Olafson said.

"I didn't say the fall," replied Haddock.

Ald. Clyde Savage said he couldn't see too much point in pushing for April 30 "if you are openly against it . . . we'll be defeated before we start."

"Let's forget the press report," said Haddock.

"I can't forget," answered Savage. "I'm in favor of getting this thing through but I can't see how we can do that from what I read this morning."

LACK OF FACTS

"Are you against holding the vote now because of lack of facts or because of what I said?" asked Haddock. "One is important, the other isn't."

And he again urged Savage to take no notice of what had been reported in the morning newspaper.

The five-year program itself, pared from more than $8 million to $5.5 million ran into its own troubles from a council strangely divided after earlier pledges of unanimity.

Ald. Tom Christie sparred and spatted with Ald. Percy Frampton throughout the debate. Frampton is chairman of the city's finance committee.

At one point when Frampton urged a decision, Christie snapped "don't be in such a flaming hurry, Mr. Frampton." He later accused Frampton of being rude by "mumbling away and inter-

Resignation Rumors Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—An emergency cabinet meeting was under way today with the Montreal postal dispute the prime topic.

Reports that a resignation from the cabinet might result centred upon Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, who was at the meeting.

MACKASEY
. . . standing firm

Mackasey quickly squelched them as he emerged from themeeting briefly. Asked whether there was any truth to reports of his impending resignation, he replied:

"None at all."

Was he ready to quit?

"Not in the least."

Mr. Mackasey added that "it was an unfortunate rumor."

One informant said he expects that the government will reverse its acceptance of the recommendation of mediator H. Carl Goldenberg that Montreal mail truck drivers be incorporated into the public service. The proposal has been rejected by the drivers because it would cost them their membership in the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

PM BACK FROM HOLIDAY

The cabinet was believed ready to have the mail hauled by a single contractor after calling for public tenders.

However, Postmaster - General Eric Kierans' office said the Goldenberg report is being implemented.

Prime Minister Trudeau went to the meeting shortly after arriving back in Ottawa early this morning from a skiing vacation in British Columbia.

Speculation about possible resignations was rife as word came out about the meeting. One source said the possibility that some minister would submit a resignation, depending on what decision the cabinet reached, was not improbable.

Mackasey and Kierans have headed two cabinet factions with different ideas on how the Montreal postal snarl should be resolved.

Meanwhile, postal deliveries were made to all sections of Montreal today as rented trucks handled mail for the third consecutive day since the government took over the service.

Post office officials said the rented vehicles are doing "just more than 50 per cent" of the work previously provided by a private contractor.

The two-month postal dispute has cost the post office about $3,000,000.

Violence erupted in the dispute again Thursday afternoon when six trucks and an escorting security car were attacked and one man was injured.

SOGGY SNOW HITS QUEBEC

MONTREAL (CP) — A heavy, 24-hour snowfall ended as suddenly as it began early today, leaving Montreal under six inches of snow and slush.

The spring storm which moved into southern Quebec from Lake Erie Wednesday morning caused between 300 and 400 minor car accidents in and around Canada's biggest city.

Williston-Benguet Meeting 'Incredible'

By BRUCE YEMEN

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett today described as "incredible" and "unbelievable" a meeting which may take place Saturday in Vancouver between Resources Minister Ray Williston and a lawyer for Benguet Corp.

"What power has Benguet got to pull a cabinet minister over to Vancouver for a meeting?" Barrett asked of the foreign company whose gambling interests in the Bahamas have led to the provincial government stalling a proposed development of recreation facilities in the Cypress Bowl area of West Vancouver.

Williston said today he will attend the meeting if he is invited. It is understood that West Vancouver Mayor Alex Forst is also expected to attend.

ALLEGED LINKS

The opposition has asked repeatedly for the government to say clearly that Benguet is unwelcome in B.C. because of its gambling connections and other alleged links with organized crime including bribing of government officials in the Bahamas.

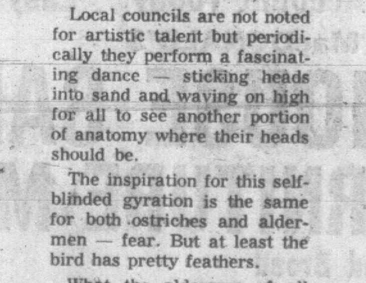
Benguet took over a B.C. company called Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources last fall for $1 million in the controversial ski development on leased Crown land.

After a public uproar over the Benguet firm's reputation and apparent plans for a huge residential subdivision in the bowl, Williston and Premier Bennett announced the project was being suspended.

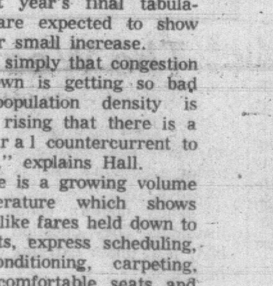
AWAITS REPORT

Williston has said in the legislature he has had no reason so far to change his view that Benguet is not welcome in the project but maintained that a report on the company had not yet been given to him by the attorney-general's department.

He said the promoters of the Cypress Bowl project have been given until May to arrange acceptable financing but also said that, as far as the government is concerned, the promoters don't own any leases in the Bowl because of an administrative oversight in the lands department.



Public Transit Subsidies—Common Sense or Outrage?



By JOHN MIKA
(Last of a series)

Local councils are not noted for artistic talent but periodically they perform a fascinating dance — sticking heads into sand and waving on high for all to see another portion of anatomy where their heads should be.

The inspiration for this self-blinded gyration is the same for both ostriches and aldermen — fear. But at least the bird has pretty feathers.

What the aldermen of all councils fear is the responsibility of operating a money-losing transit system, reasoning that poor service is better than civic subsidy.

The latest dance occurred only last month in the city when an alderman suggested the validity of that fear should be examined — and drew only a "gasp of dismay" from the rest of council at such heresy.

But how much subsidy would be needed? Would it be justified? Could it be reduced by civic operation? Would its cost be outweighed by savings in more rational planning of transportation services? Where could subsidies come from? Are the people interested?

So far the dismayed councils have been too busy gasping to ask.

The capital region's bus system loss estimate for the fiscal year ending this month is $750,000.

The new fare increase — raising adult fares to 25 cents cash April 1 — is estimated to add a net $275,000 of new revenue.

The provincial government gives a $2,000,000 annual subsidy for transit losses and, being approximately one-fifth of the combined total, the Greater Victoria bus system could expect to receive at least $400,000 annually as its share if taken over by the local municipalities.

That would leave a total operating deficit of $75,000 to be shared by the capital region's municipalities if they took over the system this year.

Because labor costs form such a high proportion of operating costs, the bus system deficit could be expected to climb in future but municipal control in itself could slow this cost increase substantially.

Remember, B.C. Hydro is running the bus system purely as a holding operation and is not even considering methods of increasing business because it wants to get rid of the fleet.

Despite that — and apparently not even known by most civic officials — the well-known bus passenger decline over the decades "bottomed out" three years ago and is beginning to climb back even with an uninterested board of directors.

In the 1966-67 year, the local system carried an all-time low of 8,619,835 paying passengers, B.C. Hydro transit manager H. R. Halls revealed in an interview.

The following year it pulled up to 8,720,100 and last year hopped to 9,011,953. The current year's final tabulations are expected to show another small increase.

"It's simply that congestion downtown is getting so bad and population density is slowly rising that there is a natural countercurrent to transit," explains Hall.

There is a growing volume of literature which shows things like fares held down to 25 cents, express scheduling, air conditioning, carpeting, more comfortable seats and room and even brighter interior decor in buses have enabled a determined transit operation to vigorously promote a comeback in many small and medium-sized cities.

Assets Not Safe In Quebec—Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal firm of investment consultants has advised its clients to remove "physical securities and liquid assets from the province of Quebec—at least until the election is over."

This advice came from Lafferty, Harwood and Co. Ltd. in a newsletter to between 200 and 300 clients mainly financial institutions in Canada, the United States and Europe.

R. G. D. Lafferty, partner in the firm, said today the letter was sent March 18 to explain to clients possible problems that may follow the April 29 provincial general election.

The firm's advice resulted from allegations that Quebec Finance Minister Mario Beaulieu's "economic philosophy is based on demagoguery and not on the disciplines of economic reasoning."

The next government might attempt to implement these theories by "arbitrary government action" against private investment in the province, the newsletter warns.

The letter cites a speech by Mr. Beaulieu to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce March 16.

The investment guide said "the entire political philosophy of the speech is one of statism," which it warns "is unworkable within the framework of the North American environment."

Mr. Lafferty said the statist approach would lead to a "province where the population is subservient to the state."

Investment capital here would then suffer the same fate it did in the Belgian Congo after independence or in Cuba after the takeover by Premier Fidel Castro.

"Unless the Canadian federal government unequivocally undertakes to protect the rights and property of Canadian citizens, we think the correct investment move at this time is to physically remove securities and liquid assets from the province of Quebec—at least until the election is over and the policies and formation of the new government can be evaluated."

Mr. Laffert y said that "it would be very difficult" for Ottawa to intervene to protect investments in Quebec because property and civil rights are strictly provincial responsibilities under the Canadian constitution.

30-Plane Dogfight Over Nile

BY United Press International

Israeli jets switched their attack from Syria back into Egypt's heartland today and knocked out two missile bases in the northern Nile delta, Israeli spokesmen said. Cairo reported about 30 Egyptian and Israeli warplanes fought an air battle over the delta area.

An Israeli military spokesman said the bases reported knocked out were at El Mansura, 75 miles north of Cairo and 50 miles west of the Suez Canal. It was the fourth time in three weeks Israeli jets had struck missile sites on the bank of the Nile around El Mansura.

An Egyptian military spokesman said, however, that intercepting Egyptian aircraft took off to engage the attacking jets and the Israeli pilots retreated "withotu being able to carry out their mission" of hitting the emplacements.

A dogfight broke out, and eventually involved approximately 30 plnes from both sides, the Cairo spokesman said.

rupting when other people try to talk."

Most aldermen found agreement in Olafson's request that the Garbally Road maintenance yards be brought up to date. In existence since the turn of the century, replacement has been termed essential.

Having a rougher ride, but finally put back in the budget with modifications, was the proposed fire fighting training centre.

It was stressed that the only actual fire fighting training received by Greater Victoria fire fighters is "on the job."

Mostalder men agreed that eventually a fire fighting centre would be required. Some felt the vote was not the place to make the decision, others thought the proposed centre should be a regional district effort or at least a four core municipalities project.

CAN'T DELAY

But on the vote the majority agreed to leave the training centre in the budget.

Ald. Cecil Parrott urged council members to get behind the April 30 vote because "we can't keep delaying these things. They have to be done. We can't dilly dally any longer."

Christie suggested that by setting an April 30 vote date council was giving the appearance ot trying to railroad it through.

"I can't see how anyone can claim the referendum is being pushed down their throat," said Ald. Hugh Ramsay. "These projects are long overdue. The capital budget program was announced almost two years ago — it's two years old, not something brand new."

FALL VOTE

Ramsay and Olafson agreed that if the spring vote fails the same program would have to go to the people again in the fall.

Christie described the spending program as "poorly-timed and containing nothing but streets and sewers."

Last June when the budget was first defeated council asked approval for close to a million dollars for parks. At that time the criticism was that the budget contained too many frills and lacked practical content.

This time the frills are out — more than $2 million of them — including a proposed $162,000 community centre planned for Beacon Hill Park and designed for the elderly.

DDT Total Ban Seen By Kiernan

Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday he will be "very surprised" if the insecticide DDT isn't banned totally in B.C. within a year.

"I think we've reached a point where an outright ban is needed," he told the legislature.

"It's too dangerous to fool around with."

Kiernan also said a bill regulating use of snowmobiles and other off-highway vehicles may be placed before the legislature next year. It might even include regulation of helicopters used in hunting, he said, but there will have to be study of possible conflict with federal department of transport jurisdiction.

Sihanouk Seeks UN Support For Return Bid

HONG KONG (WP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk has appealed to the United Nations to withhold recognition from the new Cambodian regime that deposed him as chief of state two weeks ago.

In a message to UN Secretary-General U. Thant from Peking, where he is now in exile, Sihanouk claimed that his ouster by a coalition of conservative Cambodian military and civilian leaders on March 18 was unconstitutional.

The prince urged that Cambodia's UN seat therefore be left "vacant" until the Cambodian people "say the last word" in what he called "their current struggle for the return of our state to constitutional legality and peace."

The text of Sihanouk's cabled message, sent to U Thant on Wednesday, was transmitted here Thursday from Peking by the official New China News Agency.

"Straight charges of impaired driving can and will be laid," he said.

Mr. Justice Munroe overturned the legislation on grounds the federal cabinet substantially altered it when it proclaimed the date on which the law took effect. That was last Dec. 1.

The judge said that by dropping a section of the law, the cabinet went beyond its powers because Parliament, which approved the legislation, had not given the cabinet authority to change it.

"Parliament ... did not intend to delegate to the privy council any power beyond the power to fix the time when the legislation should become effective," his written judgment said.

His ruling came as he allowed an appeal by David Story of Vancouver, charged with impaired driving here Jan. 10 and convicted March 26. He had not been sentenced. The conviction is quashed.

Story appealed a ruling by provincial Judge Maurice Mulligan who had rejected defence lawyer Richard P. Anderson's contention that the law had been improperly proclaimed.

SECTION ELIMINATED

Mr. Justice Munroe ruled that the legislation had indeed been improperly proclaimed because the cabinet, without power to do so, scratched a "safeguard" section that Parliament had approved.

The section gave an accused driver the right to a sample of his breath, to be provided by police, the idea being that he could then have it independently tested if he so desired.

Stewart McMorran, Vancouver's chief prosecutor, said the cabinet presumably ditched this clause because "science has never been able to design a container that will retain an air sample."

Sooner or later, the breath contained in it would disappear or at least become mixed with air from the outside.

Prior to Thursday's precedent-setting judgment, a driver with a blood-alcohol reading of .08 per cent or more was automatically ruled impaired, provided the court agreed the test was properly given.

Now, said Mr. McMorran, the Crown is back where it was before Dec. 1. Police would have to go back to giving such evidence about a driver as the smell of alcohol on his breath, slurred speech, unsteady gait, and so on.

The breath test law upset by Mr. Justice Munro was part of the 1969 Criminal Law Amendment Act. His judgment did not affect other parts of this act, which affected passports, firearms, theft from mails, gaming houses and harassing telephone calls.

In Winnipeg, Attorney-General A. H. Mackling of Manitoba said Thursday he would be "reluctant to see application of a law frustrated by a technicality."

Mr. Mackling said although he has not seen the decision "there may be some technical omission within the law."

"If the effect of this technical ommission is to delay application of what is a good law, then it is regretable," he said.

He said the law will continue to be applied in Manitoba "assuming it is valid and proper."

"If it is considered by judges here that there is some absence of authority in the law, they may choose to follow their colleagues in British Columbia."

In Edmonton, Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart said Thursday the court decision that the federal compulsory breath test law is invalid, does "not have other than a persuasive effect in provinces other than B.C."

'Now Casting For Son Of Good Life'

Now W. A. C. Bennett Productions Inc. announce "The Son of Good life." Read on.

The premier threw the legislature into turmoil Thursday night with an announcement that the controversial government film will have a sequel before the next election.

He made the disclosure in a shouting, arm-waving defence of the B.C. promotion film which was made at taxpayers' expense and shown widely before the 1969 election.

"Before the next election, I want to announce there will be another one—'The Better Life'," Bennett shouted.

The matter came up during recreation department estimates when Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said the $50,000 "The Good Life" was made for political propaganda purposes with the taxpayers' money.

He charged that the government had cheated the people of B.C.

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) suggested a sequel of his own: "The Full Life." The film would show the province as it is, including pollution, welfare and poverty to depict a balanced view of life, he said.

The premier replied that the film had brought "millions of dollars" into B.C. and "created hundreds and hundreds of jobs." The opposition just couldn't take the election defeat, he added.

Pulp Mill Wins Safety Award

Local 2 of the Pulp and Paper Makers of Canada, at the Crofton pulp and paper mill, has been awarded the National Safety Award for the third consecutive year.

At the Crofton gathering, the plant's administrative general manager, G. F. Cameron, complimented the union members and their executive for their active interest in safety.

CONG PRESS VIET WAR ON 2 FRONTS

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrillas kept up their intensified attacks across South Vietnam today, shelling 60 positions and battling South Vietnamese troops in the northern Mekong Delta and American forces near the Cambodian border.

Casualties continued to rise. Official but incomplete reports said at least 79 Americans, 267 South Vietnamese troops and 770 guerrillas were killed since Tuesday night, when the Communist command launched its heaviest attacks in eight months.

NDP Caucus Backs Barrett for Chief

Caucus Chariman Bob Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said the endorsement by the 12 MLAs was made in accordance with the party's constitution. The decision will be forwarded to the party's leadership convention in June at Chilliwack where Barrett is expected to win the leadership.

The 39-year-old social worker from Coquitlam was named house leader of the party by the caucus following defeat of Tom Berger in the Aut. 27 election.

Berger also resigned as party leader effective as soon as the party could elect a new leader. Berger had won the leadership at an April, 1969, convention, defeating Barrett by 36 votes.

Williams was also a contender at that convention but ran third to Berger and Barrett. Former party leader Robert Strachan, who had previously defeated a Berger leadership bid in caucus in 1967, backed Williams at the convention.

With Barrett making a credible showing as opposition leader in his first session, he received the support of Williams, Strachan and Alex Macdonald, former deputy leader who was also considered a possible candidate.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

We grow up from childhood with some ideas that aren't anywhere near accurate, such as the idea that a layer of fat under a person's skin is an efficient insulation against cold weather.

Many doctors doubt that a layer of fat is a good insulator. They question whether a fat man can conserve body heat under extreme conditions of cold better than a thin man can.

Each pound of fat requires about one mile of blood vessels for nourishment. As some of these blood vessels come near to the surface of the fat man's body, they can give off a rather great amount of heat by radiation. Thus, although fat does function as a form of insulation, its efficiency can be impaired by the high flow of blood through the fat.

A man who is thin is probably as efficient as the fat man in conserving his body heat.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Trading Light, Prices Off

Under slow trading prices declined today on the Toronto and New York stock markets.

Brokers said there was a general disinterest in buying as result of a lack of stimulating news.

Prices were mixed in light trading at Montreal while the same situation held true during the morning session at Vancouver.

AT TORONTO, Power Corp. lost ¼ to 9. Chemcell gained ⅛ to 7⅞ and Royal Trust, at 28⅛ bid, 28¾ asked did not trade.

Power sold its entire holdings to Chemcell — 1,000,000 common shares or 7½ per cent of the outstanding stock — to Royal Trust. Royal Trust said it was acting for clients, mainly pension funds.

Seaway climbed 1⅜ to 15⅞ on 20,912 shares after touching a 1970 high of 16¼. Levy Industries dropped 3 to 15 on 100 shares.

A claim of controlling interest in Seaway by the Levy family has been disputed by Seaway.

ACR gained ⅝ to 7. It will raise its quarterly dividend to 10 cents from eight cents.

AT NEW YORK copper industry stocks were lower, although Inspiration Consolidated had joined Phelps Dodge in raising prices to 60 cents a pound from 56.

Some big blocks were traded, including 99,300 shares of Control Data at 55, off 2⅛.

AT MONTREAL there was little excitement on the stock market today as most issues traded in a narrow range. Prices were mixed with banks leading declines.

Velcro Industries, which began a steady recovery several weeks ago from its 1970 low of 24, was up 2¾ to 31½.

Hollinger gained 1 to 32 in light trading and Abitibi advanced ¼ to 11⅞. Fleetwood dropped 1½ to 11 and Falconbridge ¾ to 175½.

Among banks, Royal slipped ⅜ to 22½, Toronto Dominion ⅜ to 21, Provincial Bank of Canada ¼ to 10¼ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to 16½.

Seaway Multi Corp., on the Canadian Stock Exchange, gained 1⅜ to 15¾.

AT LONDON, the stock market was quietly firm today.

ICI was weak in the wake of the chairman's statement and the increased bid for Viyella. The price closed at 51s. Viyella rose to 12s 6d.

Other leaders were generally higher with Phillip Lamps at 191s 3d following an optimistic annual report.

Oils were depressed in otherwise narrowly irregular Canadians. Dome lost five points at 188, Syracuse fell 1s to 18s 3d. Imperial and Pacific Pete shed one point. Consolidated Bathurst Alcan, Canadian Pacific and Noranda made modest gains.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was light and prices were mixed today as the stock exchange reported a volume to 11 a.m. of 1,221,639 shares traded.

In the industrials, NWL Finance was up .70 at $4.95 after trading 23,045 shares. Ionarc was up .10 at $3.60, and Neonex added .37 to $5.50.

In the oils, Golden West was down .02 at .54 after trading 22,500 shares. United Bata Resources was unchanged at $2.90 and Midland was up a half-cent at .10.

And in the mines, Brenmac was up .06 at $1.21 on a turnover of 432,351 shares. Croyden was up .05 to .58 and Casino Silver was up .20 to $3.85.

Superjets Get Solid Booking

MONTREAL (CP) — Experience gained from the operation of the new jumbo jets which went into service early this year will result in the introduction of new features by 1972.

The airline business was sent into the jumob jet age with the inaugural flight last Jan. 21 of the first Boeing 747 superjet from New York to London.

Since then, besides flying the Atlantic, the huge jets which can carry 365 passengers comfortably have been criss-crossing the U.S. and the Pacific regularly.

Boeing Co. officials have been making studies of the in-flight performance of the 747 to determine potential improvements and are passing this information to airlines that have placed orders for the superjets.

Malcolm T. Stamper, a Boeing vice-president in charge of commercial airplane programs, said some new features will be introduced to the interior of the 747 by 1972 as a result of experience gathered in the last couple of months.

The features will be aimed at greater marketability of the aircraft and will include special requirements for different airlines to meet their own particular needs.

ECONOMY LOUNGES

New features may include such conveniences as lounges for economy-class passengers—only first-class lounges now exist—and lockers for suitcases where businessmen can store part of their luggage without having to check it through the baggage department.

Stamper and other Boeing officials were in Montreal to brief Air Canada on the performance of the new superjets so far and to pass along experience gained since the introduction of the 747.

Air Canada has ordered three of the $23,000,000 jumbo jets and will place them into service in the spring of 1971.

Stamper said the main reason for his meeting with Air Canada officials was to discuss ways of making the new superjet service more appealing to passengers and to meet special needs of Air Canada.

He added, however, that the company is in the business of selling planes and that he would like to see Air Canada "buy a lot more Boeing 747s."

FAVORABLE REACTION

Besides the 747s, Air Canada has ordered 10 medium-range Lockheed L-1011 TriStar jets, with delivery to begin in March, 1872. The airline holds options on nine additional L-1011s.

Stamper said public reaction to the superjets has been "tremendously favorable," with the first-class sections booked solidly.

"More than 80 per cent of the passengers indicated preference for the wide-body jet—the Boeing 747 seats nine persons across—because of the spaciousness of the aircraft."

The new planes have been found to reduce air traffic congestion and are much quieter both inside and outside than the smaller-type jets, Stamper added.

One 747 can replace two Boeing 707s, reducing congestion at the airports and cutting down direct operating costs.

Air Canada Names Marketing Chief

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada has announced the appointment of Yves J. Menard as vice-president in charge of marketing, effective May 1.

Menard has served in the past on an executive level with a number of firms.

By SINO LEE

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters) — A Japanese jetliner hijacked Tuesday by a band of swashbuckling students tonight apparently landed in North Korea after releasing 103 hostage passengers and crew here. But North Korea said it could guarantee neither the safety of those aboard nor their immediate return.

On board the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 were a crew of three, nine armed fanatical student hijackers and their voluntary hostage, Vice-Transport Minister Shinjiro Yamamura of Japan.

The jet disappeared from a U.S. radar screen in Japan while over North Korea and apparently landed in Pyongyang, the Japanese self-defence force agency reported.

North Korea told the United Nations armistice commission on the border village of Panmunjum it could not guarantee the safety of the plane and its occupants because "the situation had changed," the North Korean central news agency reported.

Wednesday the hardline Communist nation told the commission it would guarantee the safety of the plane and all concerned if it landed in North Korea.

HELD 3½ DAYS

North Korea's change of heart capped one of the most tense dramas in aerial history. Hours earlier the youthful hijackers released 99 passengers and four stewardesses in exchange for Yamamura after holding them hostage for 3½ days while repeatedly threatening to blow the plane up.

All but one of the hostages later returned by air to Fukuoka in southern Japan.

Radio Pyongyang accused the Japanese of a plot to "create the impression that we want to take in the so-called Trotskyites or criminals," meaning the hijackers.

The broadcast said the North Koreans did not want to become involved in the case and would not "play the role of the Japanese police" in doing what Pyongyang said the Japanese authorities should have done—arrest the hijackers.

They hold the record as the longest-held hostages in aviation history.

The plane was hijacked while on a domestic flight in Japan by left-wing "Red Army" students who demanded it land in North Korea. After a stop in Fukuoka, Japan, for refuelling it headed for the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

SHOT AT FIRST-TIME

But anti-aircraft guns opened fire and the plane turned south to Kimpo airport in Seoul. Three days of negotiating followed between the desperate hijackers and high officials from the South Korean and Japanese governments as the tense affair was watched by millions in Japan on live telecasts.

Almost 79 hours after the plane was taken over in central Japan after leaving Tokyo, the passenger door was opened today. Two students holding feudal samurai swords stood at the top of the steps as the first group of 50 passengers stepped out and walked to waiting buses.

A few minutes later the second group made their way down the steps and into the buses.

Most of the passengers walked briskly, and Herbert Brill, 50, of Hoboken, N.J., one of two Americans aboard, said he was treated extremely well by the students.

Asked if he felt his life was threatened, he said: "Yes, when the negotiations were going on. But it was a very interesting experience."

The only other non-Japanese on board was Rev. Daniel MacDonald, a Roman Catholic priest from San Francisco. Both Americans are living in Japan.

Throughout the morning, Japanese and South Korean officials negotiated with the hijackers over a special telephone line connected between the plane and the terminal.

The students finally agreed to release the passengers after the plane had been made ready for takeoff.

North Korea has promised that the crew and others aboard will receive humane treatment.

The Korean Central news agency said it had no idea why the hijackers wanted to fly to North Korea, and certainly never invited them.

Throughout the long war of nerves at Kimpo airport, the youths repeatedly threatened to blow the plane up. But so far no one has been harmed.

Anti-Riot Charges Laid Against Radicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government has used the controversial "Rap Brown" anti-riot law against the radical left for a second time, indicting 12 Weatherman leaders the justice department's top criminal lawyers calls "open Marxists."

The 12, including police fugitive Kathy Boudis and chief Weatherman Mark Rudd, were accused Thursday of conspiring to incite—and participating in—violence during the "four days of rage" sponsored by the militant Weatherman faction of Students for a Democratic Society last October in Chicago.

The indictments by a Chicago federal grand jury came less than two months after a tumultuous trial of the Chicago seven—first defendants to be tried under the 1968 anti riot law—closed in the court of U.S. District Judge Julius J. Hoffman.

Ironically, Judge Hoffman, on of eight judges in the court, was selected under a random assignment method to hear the Weatherman case.

The indictments charged each of the 12 with one count of conspiring between June 30 and Oct. 11, 1969, "to travel in and use the facilities of interstate commerce with the intent to incite, organize, promote, encourage, participate in and carry on a riot." Each also was charged with one to four counts of crossing state lines with the intent of inciting a riot.

The "Rap Brown" law, so called because of the black militant's presence at 1968 racial riots in Cambridge, Md., shortly before the anti-riot provision was tacked on to an open-housing bill, has been attacked by civil libertarians as a threat to free expression of dissent.

The government first used the law last year in charging eight persons with fomenting violence at the 1968 Democratic national convention in Chicago. That number was later reduced to seven when the judge separated the trial of one of the defendants and held it over for hearing at a later date.

The current defendants, five of whom were convicted of crossing states lines to incite a riot but acquitted of conspiring to do so and two of whom were acquitted altogether, contended the law was invoked because of their opposition to the war in Vietnam.

Miss Boudin is sought in connection with a New York City blast in which two persons named in Thursday's indictment as co-conspirators were killed. They were Theodore Gold, 23, and Diana Oughton, 28.

M.A.S.H. Gnaws At Everything

By STEVE HUME

The helicopter swings across a green and pleasant land, and the soundtrack eases itself alive with guitar music and a gentle lyric that deceptively insinuates itself into the viewer's frame of reference.

"The game of life
is hard to play,
You're going to lose

It's a soft-sell piece of sentimental slush with "Tragicomedy-Hollywood style" stamped all over it. A hundred cliches culled from John Wayne war epics leap by association to the brain.

The camera zooms in on the helicopter. Bundles of bloody rags strapped to landing skids resolve themselves into maimed human beings. An arm flaps spasmodically. Cliches echo in the head.

MIND-BLOWER

It is the first setup of the movie, and it is a mind-blower.

M.A.S.H. is a movie of juxtaposition. The gross cliches and corny old punchlines all carry finely-chiselled edges of bitterness and guilt.

One leaves the theatre with the distinct impression of having sat through a relentless barrage of broken glass to the accompaniment of canned laughter.

CRY OF ANGUISH

Their activities, a kind of sanctioned guerrilla theatre of the operating room, provide the vehicle for some of the most astute and stinging satire in a long, long time.

Darts fly furiously into a number of prominent victims:

- The puritanical Christian, maintaining a pseudo-rational pose of support in the midst of an insane war, is hung from his own cross;
- The obsessive sex that lurks repressed behind the facade of bureaucratic mediocrity which is becoming the social norm, is hung out like a gaudy poster painted on soiled sheets;
- The women's liberation movement, with its rhetoric of sexual exploitation, gets a subtle burn through the film's caricature of sexual exploitation as the militants appear to see it;
- The medical profession is flayed with a depiction of assembly-line service where the mute, frightened patient is reduced to the level of object, fixed like a blown-up engine;
- And there is the priest, hovering outside the operating theatre like a bird of carrion, preying on the dead for his own absolution.

MILITARY BEAST

It adds up to a ludicrous gallery of events.

Bourgeois values, the military beast, all are levelled by the common denominator of absurdity.

One laughs, but the movie is not funny. With each giggle comes a trickle of guilt.

For juxtaposed with the mockery is a continued glimpse of the true absurdity—a stream of shattered human beings that moves through the backdrop of the film's action in a grisly parade along the edges of awareness.

The broken soldiers are not emphasized. They are just there. And they create an awareness that erodes the glow generated by the sharp satire, a nasty feeling of inadequacy that gnaws at the viscera.

FUTILITY

The futility of the whole thing, the value systems, the war itself, crystallizes in a single scene.

He has the gaping wound of a high-velocity weapon in his chest.

He is dying because he has a rare blood-type not available at the base. Not available, that is, until someone takes whole blood from the camp's sleeping commander and transfusion by bucket brigade begins.

CHEERING IDIOTS

And in the end, the whole war is reduced to an inter-unit football game, complete with casualties, players on the bench smoking dope, caricatures of racism, and a crowd of cheering idiots on the sidelines.

The sentimental lyric repeats, "you're going to lose it anyway," and there are better ways of dying than in wars. Suicide, for example, is a cleaner, more painless alternative. It's an absurd suggestion, but no more absurd than the idea of blowing out the brains of a complete stranger over an issue of abstract ideology.

M.A.S.H. generates a depressing feeling of futility in the viewer, and in the end, the onus is tossed back into the collective lap of the audience. The buck stops there, the movie says.

B.C. BRIEFS

Jury Blames Drinking, Gear Lack

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Excessive drinking and inadequate lifesaving gear were cited Thursday night by a coroner's jury in this port as governing factors in the deaths of four persons March 15 when a fishboat swamped in heavy seas.

The inquest was into the death of Milicent Cecil, 37, her daughters Yvonne, 6, and Carla, 2, and the one-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barton, all of nearby Kinkolith.

The dead were among nine persons aboard the vessel when it foundered in heavy seas about 15 miles north of here. Four of the survivors testified at the inquest.

Building Damaged

BURNABY (CP) — Fire department officials estimated damage at more than $100,000 in a blaze Thursday at a 23-suite apartment building under construction here. A plumber's torch was blamed for starting the fire. Workmen in the building escaped safely.

Villagers Upset

CHETWYND (CP) —Members of the Chetwynd village council are more concerned than elated over oil and gas deposits in the Peace River district. The community needs a supply of fresh water, but every well strikes natural gas. Officials are considering selling natural gas to Chetwynd residents — although they claim the profit margin would be embarrassing if they charged the same rate as utility companies.

$1,500,000 PROJECT

Tissue Rejection Probe Planned

By GLENNIS ZILM

EDMONTON (CP) — A medical team beginning a new $1,500,000 research project on the problem of the body's immunity to transplant tissue hopes to achieve a major breakthrough within five years.

Dr. John B. Dossetor, 44, head of the research team of scientists ready to begin work at the University of Alberta, said Thursday he hoped for "clinical application of the induction of immunological tolerance" within five years.

This would mean a person could be readied to receive an organ transplant, such as a kidney or heart, from a specific donor without the rejection reaction, as is now the case.

The project, announced Thursday, is jointly sponsored by the Medical Research Council and the University of Alberta.

The council's financial contribution of $1,250,000 over five years will provide salaries for Dr. Dossetor and Dr. Erwin Diener, the two principal investigators, and for other full — and part-time medical and technical assistants.

TAKING NEW APPROACH

"We are directing our efforts at a new approach to rejection," Dr. Dossetor told a news conference.

Now, when an organ such as heart, kidney or lung is transplanted, the recipient's body treats the new tissue as a foreign object and reacts to it. A simple example of the rejection mechanism is the way the body fights the bacteria or viruses that cause a cold of flu.

"The problem is to prevent, or at best to interfere with, this immune response," Dr. Dossetor said.

At present there are two ways of doing this:

- Selection of an organ from an individual who has similar tissue factors to those of the patient. This involves tissue typing and matching, similar to blood typing and matching.
- Suppression of all the immune responses in the patient. However, this means the individual is then susceptible to infection which could rapidly become fatal.

LISTS FOUR AIMS

— Investigate ways to improve tissue typing and matching. Dr. Dossetor said that at least 13 factors have been identified so far, and there are more.

—Study the whole process of rejection.

—"We still don't know just what the basic mechanism that causes rejection is," he said.

—Try to find ways of preserving organs. At present, an organ must be used within hours of the donor's death.

'Not Doing Enough'

CALGARY (CP) — Canada is heading toward a dangerous isolationism and the victims will be western wheat growers, Robert Thompson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Red Deer, said Thursday.

"Canada's mission in the '70s should be to go to the impoverished nations and teach them the secrets of Canada's success rather than to withdraw from the international arena," Thompson told a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club.

Canada was not doing enough in the field of international aid because of its isolationist feelings, he said.

Farmers Protest

REGINA (CP) — More than 5,000 members of the National Farmers' Union brought their organize-and-bargain movement to the Saskatchewan legislature Thursday, second stage of a prairie-wide show of strength. They demonstrated at the Alberta legislature in Edmonton Tuesday and plan to mass at the Manitoba legislature in Winnipeg Saturday.

Ombudsman Appeals

EDMONTON (CP) — George B. McClellan, Alberta's ombudsman, has asked the legislature for direction because the cabinet has said it is not prepared to accept his recommendations to settle the most exhaustive investigation made by him since his appointment in 1967.

In a special report tabled Thursday in the legislature, McClellan declined to reveal details of the case which resulted in a 53-page submission to the cabinet in addition to 16 "heavily documented exhibits."

The report deals with a complaint made by R. J. Philipzyk against his expulsion as a salesman from the Edmonton Real Estate Board Co-Operative Listing Bureau Ltd. in June 1966 following charges heard against him by the ethics committee and a subsequent appeal.

Unit Opened

VANCOUVER (CP) — A testing unit was formally opened Thursday at Vancouver General Hospital to check hearing loss. The $19,580 unit will also test facial nerve functions, loss of taste and causes of dizziness. Dr. Pat Gannon, director of ear-nose-throat research laboratories at McGill University, Montreal, takes charge of the unit May 1.

Local Air Pilots Fighting New Rules

The Victoria branch of the Canadian Owners and Pilots' Association is continuing its fight against the transport department's new airport flight rules.

In a brief to the DOT's air regulations superintendent Wednesday, COPA said the new rules cause confusion and are unsafe.

The rules restrict visual flights to latitudes below 1,500 feet within 15 nautical miles of Vancouver International Airport and extend the positive control zone around other airports beyond the previous five-mile radius.

This zone is a restricted area which small planes cannot enter without receiving radio permission from the control tower. Its purpose is to ensure clear airspace for the landing of large aircraft.

In the brief, COPA contends that crossing the Straits of Georgia under the 1,500-foot ceiling to comply with the DOT ruling violates other over-water flying rules.

PROPOSAL REJECTED

Roy Parrett, COPA's B.C. director, said today that his association rejected a DOT proposal that private pilots use American airspace when flying from one part of Canada to another. "It's completely unnecessary," he said.

Parrett said the Victoria Flying School also objects to the 1,500-foot ceiling because much of the land in this area rises to 800 feet, leaving only 700 feet for an inexperienced pilot to fly in.

COPA proposed a system of corridors to separate jet planes and slower traffic at all major Candian airports where a problem exists. These corridors would give large high-powered aircraft exclusive airspace, while at the same time allowing slower planes to operate under normal flight rules outside the protected airspace.

COPA asked that no control zone extend more than five miles from the airport; that from five to 10 miles, aircraft be permitted to fly at least 1,500 feet above ground and that from 10 to 15 miles, they should be allowed a ceiling of at least 3,000 feet.

Parrett said the transport department was not unsympathetic towards the COPA complaints and added that they have indicated the Vancouver zone might be reduced from 30 miles to 10 miles with a flight ceiling of 2,500 feet.

Guatemalan Kidnappers Set New Conditions

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters) — In a dramatic new demand, the rebel armed forces movement asked today for $700,000 in cash and the release of 25 political prisoners as ransom in exchange for kidnapped West German Ambassador Karl von Spreti.

The demand was made following a Guatemalan government decision Thursday night not to heed the abductors' first order to release 17 prisoners in exchange for the 62-year-old ambassador, kidnapped Tuesday.

No news of the new condition by the rebels has been released officially by the government, but Reuters news agency was told unofficially that the demand came in a letter delivered to the papal delegate, Msgr. Gerolamo Prigione.

Meanwhile, a delegation of ambassadors met with Foreign Minister Alberto Fuentes Mohn today to protest the government's decision on the kidnapping of the German ambassador and asked for personal protection for themselves and their staff.

In Bonn, the West German government said it expected Guatemala to do everything possible to protect von Spreti's life.

Fulbright Fears More Asia War Involvement

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator J. William Fulbright came out in steadfast opposition to the Nixon administration's Vietnamization policy Thursday and expressed fear that the United States will be drawn into a wider war in Southeast Asia.

In a major senate speech, the chairman of the foreign relations committee said that handing over the war to South Vietnamese forces is unsound.

"I am apprehensive of our ability to stay out of war in Laos and Cambodia as long as we remain at war in Vietnam," Fulbright also declared in renewing his consistent stand against Asian involvement by the U.S.

The Arkansas Democrat said that the issue of who rules Indochina is of little importance to U.S. security.

Challenging the effectiveness of the administration's gradual troop withdrawals and turning over the fighting to the South Vietnamese, he said:

"Vietnamization is not strengthening our hand. Like any reduction in military forces it is weakening our hand, and our enemies are not such mental defectives that they can be kidded into believing otherwise."

The senator said after the speech that his apprehension about possible U.S. involvement in Cambodia was not changed by assurances given to his committee Thursday by State Secretary William Rogers.

Rogers said the administration is trying to maintain Cambodian neutrality and does not plan to give military aid to the new government in Cambodia.

Fulbright said the issues of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia are inseparable.

SUPPORTS FRANCE'S MOVE

He backed a call by France Wednesday for a new Geneva conference on Indochina as extremely constructive.

The administration has been cautious in commenting on the French initiative, saying only that it would approve broadening of the Paris peace talks to include Laos and Cambodia.

Fulbright said the Communists could not drive the U.S. from Indochina but could force it to plunge in all the way or get out altogether, a choice he said the administration has declined to make.

Fulbright said the U.S. should accept North Vietnam's domination of Indochina as a political fact of life that poses no threat to American security.

"The plain fact that comes out of the war in Vietnam—reinforced by recent events in Laos and perhaps Cambodia as well—is that, puny as it is by great power standards, North Vietnam is paramount power in Indochina.

He emphasized he is not advocating a Communist-dominated Indochina. "I merely propose to accept it, if it arises from the local power situation, as something unwelcome but tolerable, and most emphatically not worth the extravagant costs of a war like the one we are now fighting."

NIXON SEEKS BOOST IN POSTAGE RATES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to raise the first class mail rate to 10 cents to finance a 6 per cent pay raise for postal workers and other government employees.

In a message to the house and Senate, the president also asked for acceleration of collection of gift and inheritance taxes to help pay for increases retroactive to last Dec. 27, as negotiated Thursday by the government and postal union. (See also Page 41).

He said the 10-cent letter rate — 4 cents above the present rate and leapfrogging a 7-cent plan included by Nixon in his budget message — would produce added revenues of about $2.3 billion, about $1.7 billion more than he anticipated in his budget proposal.

GM LEADS DECLINE

Quarterly New Car Sales Down

DETROIT (AP) — Hit by the worst March sales in eight years, the U.S. auto industry reported Thursday the worst first quarter sales of new cars since 1967.

The four major U.S. producers reported sales of 1,782,434 cars in the three months ended March 31, down 12.2 per cent from the 2,029,857 sold at this time last year.

Sales for March—traditionally one of the strongest selling months of the year—were 646,673, down 10.1 per cent from March, 1969. This made it the worst March since 1962, when 616,357 cars were sold.

The decline was led by industry giant General Motors, which reported its March sales were off 16.4 per cent from last year and down 18.2 per cent for the first quarter. GM sales plunged 22.4 per cent in the final 10 days of March.

Ford Motor Co., the No. 2 car builder, reported sales down 7.4 per cent in March and down 6.1 per cent for the first quarter. Ford sales were down 7.8 per cent in the final 10 days of the month.

Chrysler, the No. 3 automaker, reported sales of 126,735 in March, up 2.4 per cent from the 123,114 sold in March, 1969. Chrysler was helped by a 4.6-per-cent sales surge in the final 10 days of the month. The company attributed the increase to strong sales of its compact Dodge Dart and Plymouth Valiant and Duster lines.

For the first quarter, however, Chrysler sales were down 5.8 per cent.

American Motors, whose sales have been aided by the subcompact Hornet, reported sales up 3.5 per cent for the final 10 days of March, up 1.3 per cent for the entire month and up 4.5 per cent for the first quarter. AMC's new, even smaller, subcompact Gremlin went on sale Wednesday.

Rock Slide Blocks CNR Main Line

BOSTON BAR, B.C. (CP)—A rock slide about 300 feet long has blocked the main Canadian National Railways line near Boston Bar, about 125 miles northeast of Vancouver.

A CNR spokesman said the slide, which occurred at 6 a.m., has left the rocks piled from 20 to 100 feet over the line.

"It sounds as though the whole rock face has slipped out," the spokesman said in Vancouver today.

He said bulldozers were heading toward the slide area, about 38 miles east of Boston Bar, but the line was not expected to be back in operation until about midnight.

The CNR passenger train from the east would be detoured over CPR lines as far as New Westminster and was expected to arrive in Vancouver 2½ hours late, the spokesman said. The CNR passenger train heading east was expected to leave Vancouver on time at 5:30 p.m. but would most likely also have to be detoured over CPR lines, he said.

Laymore Tie-Up Blamed On Ottawa Favoritism

By PAT DUFOUR

The official is angered over the federal government decision to tie up the CNAV Laymore, described as one of the west coast's hardest working ships.

Her 25-man crew will be dispersed in other ships of Dockyard's auxiliary vessel fleet.

●

The Dockyard official said: "There have been no cuts on the east coast and those that are planned are much smaller than here. Ours have come immediately while the east coast's reductions are another year away."

He described the Laymore as "a real maid-of-all-work, versatile and handy." She has been with the Defence Research Board for the past four years, doubling as an ammunition dumper and general factotum.

It was Laymore that acted as escort vessel for the yachts competing in the 1968 Victoria-Maui race.

"Although the ship is really needed no one has come forward and said they'll provide the money for the vessel."

"It's a most unsatisfactory situation."

A spokesman at the Defence Research Establishment, Pacific, said the Laymore layoff means a cutback in programs, with the universities taking the brunt.

He said the research vessels on the west coast must first be made available to government departments such as DREP, department of fisheries; department of energy, mines and resources, and hydrographic survey.

Up until now there have been four vessels engaged in oceanographic research. They are the Endeavour, Le Parizeau, Vector and Laymore.

●

Sharing ship time aboard the vessels have been faculty and students of the University of British Columbia, which has an Institute of Oceanography, and faculty and students of the University of Victoria, which has the only undergraduate program in Canada which permits students to carry out field research.

Dr. W. Gordon Fields, head of Uvic's marine biology department, says Victoria will be the hardest hit.

"We have been getting surplus time by the west coast committee that sets up the ships' schedules. They've treated us extremely well but the priority of any time left from government work will have to go to UBC."

UBC, the Pacific Oceanographic Group at Nanaimo, which is due to be phased out July 1, and DREP had representatives on the committee.

Fields said the loss of Laymore was regrettable at a time when Canada had an accelerating need to train men and women for oceanographic work, as well as the fighting of pollution and environmental control.

He admitted the federal government had awarded substantially larger grants for marine research recently, "apparently giving with one hand and taking away with another."

"Our grants are supplied by the National Research Council while ships' costs are borne by the Defence Research Board."

●

He told of some of the field trips that would now have to be cancelled.

"We had two three-week cruises scheduled to the Queen Charlottes for the study of intertidal and island structure, as well as insect population.

"A biological and anthropological expedition covering vegetation and Indians on the west coast will now be off. There are others."

Littlepage said the loss of Laymore would mean the west coast would have only one vessel capable of deep-sea research.

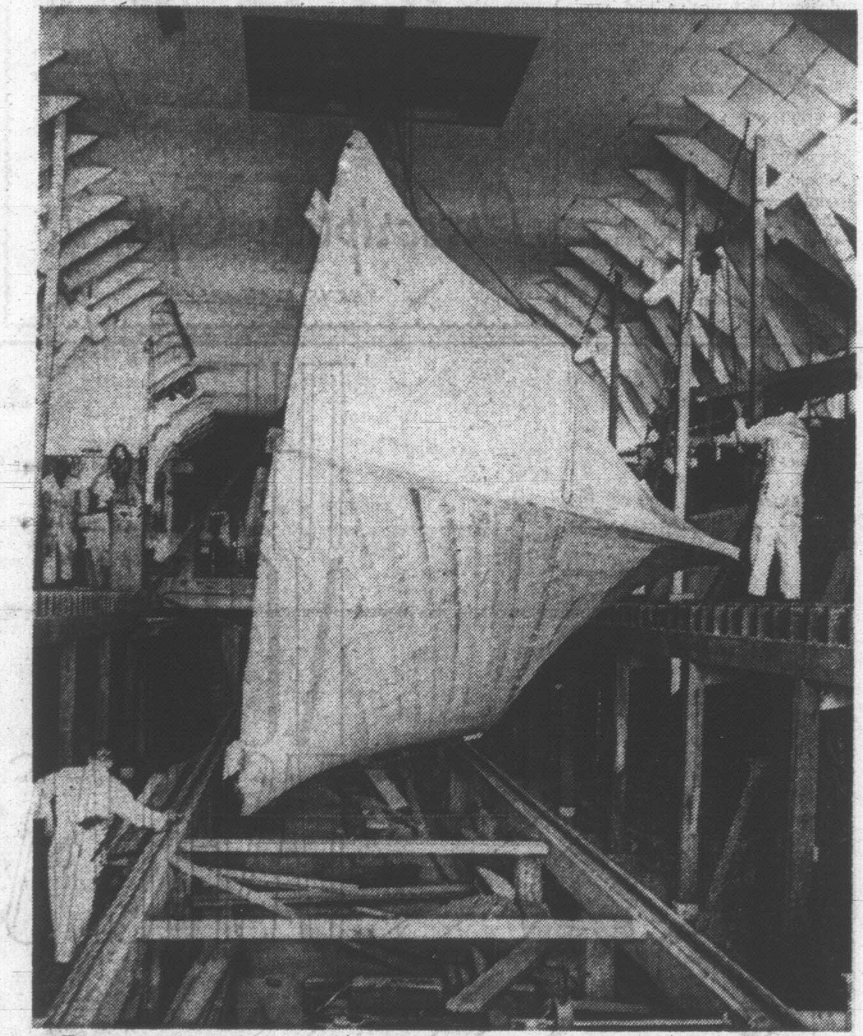
●

"The Endeavour is the only other real ocean-going vessel. Le Parizeau is only fair and the Vector good for inner waters."

Laymore, unlike the other three ships, was not built as a research vessel. She was launched as a supply ship in 1944 and later converted.

Littlepage said there were times when it was more economic to use the Laymore.

"It is uneconomic to tie up a ship with fancy electronic gear when you're on a routine assignment, such as monitoring, and the gear is not being used."



BOTTOM UP form of construction was used by Philbrook's Shipyards at Sidney for this 58-foot power cruiser, seen being turned for next stage of building. The yard is one of two on the west coast to use the bottoms-up method for easier handling. The other is in Seattle. The new boat is designed by William Garden, semi-retired American marine architect, now on Johnstone Island. Begun in January, she's built on yellow cedar stringers and the double-diagonal hull is red cedar and Philippine mahogany. Costing nearly $200,000, the boat is being built for H. C. Walling of Salem, Ore., and will be launched Aug. 1. (Dane Campbell Photo.)

HOMEOWNERS TACKLE SHRUM

A telegram asking B.C. Hydro Chariman Dr. Gordon Shrum to reconsider a decision to buy or expropriate five homes on Munn Road in Saanich for an overhead transmission line has been sent by Patrick Codyre.

Codyre, who lives at 1890 Munn, is spokesman for the group of homeowners who don't want to sell out to the crown corporation.

The line will run from Jordan River to Victoria.

City May Lose Service Stations

The city of Victoria will no longer be attractive to service station operators if the 1970 business tax assessments are upheld, a spokesman for dealers said today.

"If the business tax is sustained, there will be operators who will consider locations outside the city," said Bob Dunsmuir of Automotive Retailers' Association.

He said 32 members attended a protest meeting Thursday to lay plans to oppose current assessments that are in some cases several times their 1969 level.

REJECTED ALL

The meeting agreed to write Mayor Courtney Haddock and city council outlining their complaints, to deliver the letter to city hall this afternoon and request an immediate reply.

The business tax assessment court of revision heard about 20 appeals from service station operators last month, and rejected all of them.

The city denies that service stations had been singled out for substantial assessment increases this year. Revisions to the entire assessment roll were instituted, the assessor said.

Operators have a backup plan in the event their submission is rejected again, but until aldermen have had a chance to see today's letter, Dunsmuir said he will not discuss further details.

Dunsmuir said the issue had drawn wider interest than anticipated. Nearly 100 per cent of Victoria city operators are involved in the protest.

"Next year it will be hotels, or restaurants," Dunsmuir remarked. "I feel all businessmen should be concerned."

Heroin Is 'Evil' Pusher Tells Court

OSTLER
. . . 5 years for 'butcher'

A 53-year-old city man who told Judge William Ostler "there is something repulsive in trafficking" was sentenced to five years in prison Thursday for trafficking in heroin.

"I think it is an evil," John M. Caird, 717 Pandora, said adding that he had been on radio programs and written articles presenting this opinion.

"It's a loathsome business," Ostler replied, pointing out that pushers are "really butchers" and the victims "breathing corpses."

Caird had been arrested March 24 on one of 48 warrants issued by the RCMP after a four-month undercover investigation of trafficking in various illicit drugs on the Island.

There were two other arrests for heroin trafficking in Nanaimo.

Constable William H. McBratney, one of the two undercover agents in the investigation, testified that he bought a capsule of heroin from the accused for $20 Feb. 10.

The 24-year-old officer related how he had gone to Caird's residence, about 10:20 a.m., posing as an addict, referred by a mutual friend, and asked Caird if he had any "stuff."

The accused replied that he had none but told McBratney "to meet me in half an hour in the square," meaning Centennial Square.

SHORT HAIR

McBratney, who appeared in court in a business suit and short hair, met Caird in the square but learned that he had not been able to get a capsule.

The two went to the Douglas Hotel where Caird made a phone call and arranged to meet a third person at the Century Inn beer parlor at 1 p.m.

Caird suggested while waiting they should try checking other beer parlors "to try and score" but McBratney, not knowing what he was getting into at this point, declined.

Caird told the agent when they met in the square that there were "a coupla fuzz in the beer parlor" and they should wait.

McBratney said there were always "fuzz in the Century" and asked why they didn't get the capsule.

Caird indicated that the third party might be scared off.

Before Caird finally sold the heroin to McBratney, he began to question the officer's authenticity as an addict.

PICKED ARM

McBratney testified that he had pricked his arm with a straight pin to create the illusion that he was a heroin addict.

Caird gave McBratney the capsule, remarking that if the agent is RCMP "I'm good for a fin in Matsqui."

"Did I have to go to considerable trouble to obtain the heroin?" Caird asked McBratney in court Thursday, indicating he would have his own supply if he was trafficking.

"Wouldn't I have a regular employer if I was trafficking?" he asked.

He said he thought he was merely helping another addict rather than trafficking.

Ostler pointed out that the accused was making heroin available to other persons.

"There is no difference if you had a heap in the house. You were trafficking in heroin and you know it," the judge said.

'Keep Cars Out' Of Beacon Hill

A protest against allowing cars into Beacon Hill Park will be staged Sunday by a group of University of Victoria students.

"People should be allowed to enjoy the park without having to breathe exhaust fumes and have natural sounds drowned out by the noise of cars," said Mark Jackman, 20, organizer for the protest.

He said the protest will begin at 2 p.m. when students, and anyone who wants to join, will walk and bicycle through the park carrying signs, and trying to impede the movement of cars.

"We would like to see roads shut off to traffic for good, and cars parked just outside or in the park's parking areas."

Jackman became annoyed at the situation when he went down to the park to relax Easter Sunday and found it jammed with cars.

★ ★ ★

"It was insane. There was a continuous stream of people staring dumbly out of their glass and metal shells."

He went home, put a sign "ban cars in the park" on his bicycle and rode through the park.

"One guy, about 45, with three kids came up to me and said he had been trying to stop cars from coming into the park for three years."

This protest follows one three weeks ago when Uvic students tried to stall traffic downtown by using up parking spaces with bicycles in an effort to increase public resentment against the harm cars are doing to the environment.

The Times today is concluding a three-part series by writer John Mika on Page 1, which deals with the widespread frustration, expense and waste the car is bringing down upon the heads of Victorians.

Arthur Mayse . . .

MOST OF US AMBLE through life leading with our chins, absorbing what happiness we can, and hoping in a vague sort of way that everything will turn out all right. But among us and along with us are the super-organized people. They are scheduled and positive, and the world couldn't get along without them.

However, it's damnably hard for the unorganized to get along with them, and whenever possible, I avoid their company.

With a sunny afternoon to squander, you might decide on impulse to hop in the car and go for a drive.

But not the super-organized person. The excursion must be planned in detail. Much better, in fact, if the planning had been done yesterday. Also, what is the object of the trip?

It hadn't occurred to you that an object was needed. Don't worry, though. One will be promptly supplied.

That provides a springboard for more planning. What to take?

At this point, if the super-organized person runs true to form, a list will be drawn up. Each item will be numbered, and nothing left to chance.

What started as a casual notion has turned into Operation Picnic. Off you go—starting time noted on the SO's watch—and yourself hoping vindictively for a brisk, disruptive downpour.

Perhaps the super-organizer doesn't intend to do so, but he manages to make easy-going people feel unworthy and even inferior. For one thing, he tends to be an early riser. No precious few minutes more of shut-eye for him!

Once for a long week, we had a particularly virulent SO for a house guest. He needed no alarm clock, nor did we.

Precisely at 6 a.m., he would soar out of his nest. He would then address himself to the first item on his day's agenda.

This was a 10-minute bout of exercises. First, push-ups, hissing noisily between his teeth. Then hands-on-the-floor—down, grunt, up, whoosh, down, grunt—while I hoped he would pull a tendon or pop his sacroiliac.

Next, a shower. Probably a cold one.

By this time, we had given up any hope of getting back to sleep, and launched ourselves into another time-tabled day.

I don't pretend to understand the compulsion that motivates a super-organizer. But it's a driving one, and it has given rise to various sayings of doubtful wisdom that cling like burrs to the language.

"Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today" will do for an example of what I mean.

You can bet an SO originated that one, while consulting the clock with one eye and a list with the other. It's likely, too, that his audience was a casual, unplanned fellow who had been about to suggest that the day was more suited to fishing than to toil.

Unfortunately, one can't always detect the approach of a super-organized person in time to take evasive action. All too often, I get caught flat-footed by one of the busy-busy breed.

Typically, I will be settling down to work. This is a leisured process that involves sharpening a few pencils, pouring a mug of coffee from the office dispenser, and wandering over to the window for a look at the street.

At this point, in comes an SO, female persuasion, tautly girdled and firm of tread.

She has done her housework—finished it before the day was more than properly launched—and like as not got in an hour of shopping.

She has a good work in hand, and it turns out that there's a place for me in her master plan.

While she speaks, she is laying out sheets of foolscap. These, she explains, are observations and suggestions which she has penned to help me organize the talk I'm going to give on such-and-such a date.

Having laid their plans and drawn up their schedules, they take orderly progression for granted. They move toward their purpose like so many bulldozers.

The unprepared and the planless are no match for them, and lucky the victim who makes his escape.

Napoleon was a super-organizer. As you will recall, he ended his days in exile on the island of St. Helena. And if SOs weren't as necessary as the unorganized to a balanced world, I'd wish each and all of 'em the Napoleon fate!

SEARCH PRESSED FOR SICK BABY

Times News Services.

KINGSTON — Search for the newborn baby snatched early Thursday from hospital here goes on today as doctors expressed concern for the infant. The baby girl is suffering a possibly fatal blood disease and Dr. D. J. Delahaye said he believed she urgently needed a blood transfusion.

Toronto lawyer W. Glen How, general counsel for the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect of which the mother is a member, said he had been told by "a competent, medically-trained person" that the baby is doing well.

The baby was born Wednesday in Smith Falls, 55 miles north of here to Mrs. Antonius Dewall, 22.

Breath Law Appeal Filed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Attorney-General's department today filed an appeal with the B.C. Court of Appeals against a judgment handed down Thursday by a B.C. Supreme Court judge declaring null and void the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

No date was announced for hearing the appeal.

City Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said there is no change in the law as far as B.C. is concerned except that it is no longer an offence to refuse to take a breath test.

In Ottawa, Justice Minister John Turner said the federal government will defend the law in the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary.

Technically, the landmark ruling of Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe is effective only in B.C. but, as Attorney-General Edgar Gerhard of Alberta put it, it will have a "persuasive effect" elsewhere.

In other words, if defence lawyers in other provinces cite the judgment, selling fast here at $1.20 a copy, judges would consider it, although they would not be bound by it.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Thursday instructions have been sent to police throughout the province to revert to the former method of charging drivers with impaired driving rather than with violation of the federal law which makes it an offence to drive with a breathalyzer reading in excess of .08.

OTHER CHARGE

Lady Luck Smiles On Drinker

By NEILL GADDES

Call it a lucky break:

An 18-year-old who was to be sentenced this morning for driving while his blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent reversed his guilty plea on the advice of Judge William Ostler and had his case dismissed.

"You have pleaded guilty to Section 224 of the Criminal Code," Ostler told John M. Soan, 315 Alder, but added in view of the "landmark decision" in Vancouver the section is "a nullity."

NULL AND VOID

Ostler was referring to the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling Thursday that declared null and void, at least in B.C., the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

The section had been in effect since Dec. 1 of last year.

"The legal implications are probably not known to you but I advise you to withdraw your plea of guilty and enter a plea of not guilty," Ostler said, noting that the accused was undefended.

Soan took the advice and the case was dismissed.

He had originally pleaded guilty March 24 to having a blood-alcohol content of .11 per cent when he was involved in an accident near Rockland and Cook March 23.

But Harold S. Andrews, 57, of Vancouver, was not as lucky:

NOT AS LUCKY

He asked Ostler, before entering a plea to an impaired driving charge, whether the Vancouver decision would have any bearing in his case.

"Hope springs eternal but I'm afraid not," the judge replied, adding that it was a good question.

Capital Budget Hiked; Voting Date April 30

By JIM HUME

It took city council two hours Thursday to tell Mayor Courtney Haddock's special budget committee it had cut capital project proposals too much.

It took the same aldermen only a few minutes to tell the mayor they disapproved of public statements published Thursday in which Haddock forecast defeat of capital budget vote set for April 30.

The mayor cheerfully agreed to re-insert in the five-year capital program $523,000 to revamp and replace city maintenance sheds at Garbally Road and $220,000 as a Phase One move towards a fire fighting training centre.

The extra $743,000 pushed the capital budget total from $5,570,000 to $6,313,000.

DENIES REPORT

Haddock denied telling the Colonist that the fall would be a better time to hold the budget. And he suggested that his forecast of defeat for an April vote had been taken out of context.

Ald. Harold Olafson was the first to ask Haddock about morning reports regarding the budget.

"We had an informal meeting in the alderman's lounge and we all agreed that April 30 was the best, not the fall," Olafson said.

"I didn't say the fall," replied Haddock.

Ald. Clyde Savage said he couldn't see too much point in pushing for April 30 "if you are openly against it . . . we'll be defeated before we start."

"Let's forget the press report," said Haddock.

"I can't forget," answered Savage. "I'm in favor of getting this thing through but I can't see how we can do that from what I read this morning."

LACK OF FACTS

"Are you against holding the vote now because of lack of facts or because of what I said?" asked Haddock. "One is important, the other isn't."

And he again urged Savage to take no notice of what had been reported in the morning newspaper.

The five-year program itself, pared from more than $8 million to $5.5 million ran into its own troubles from a council strangely divided after earlier pledges of unanimity.

Ald. Tom Christie sparred and spatted with Ald. Percy Frampton throughout the debate. Frampton is chairman of the city's finance committee.

At one point when Frampton urged a decision, Christie snapped "don't be in such a flaming hurry, Mr. Frampton." He later accused Frampton of being rude by "mumbling away and inter-

Resignation Rumors Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—An emergency cabinet meeting was under way today with the Montreal postal dispute the prime topic.

Reports that a resignation from the cabinet might result centred upon Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, who was at the meeting.

MACKASEY
. . . standing firm

Mackasey quickly squelched them as he emerged from the meeting briefly. Asked whether there was any truth to reports of his impending resignation, he replied:

"None at all."

Was he ready to quit?

"Not in the least."

Mr. Mackasey added that "it was an unfortunate rumor."

One informant said he expects that the government will reverse its acceptance of the recommendation of mediator H. Carl Goldenberg that Montreal mail truck drivers be incorporated into the public service. The proposal has been rejected by the drivers because it would cost them their membership in the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

PM BACK FROM HOLIDAY

The cabinet was believed ready to have the mail hauled by a single contractor after calling for public tenders.

However, Postmaster - General Eric Kierans' office said the Goldenberg report is being implemented.

Prime Minister Trudeau went to the meeting shortly after arriving back in Ottawa early this morning from a skiing vacation in British Columbia.

Speculation about possible resignations was rife as word came out about the meeting. One source said the possibility that some minister would submit a resignation, depending on what decision the cabinet reached, was not improbable.

Mackasey and Kierans have headed two cabinet factions with different ideas on how the Montreal postal snarl should be resolved.

Meanwhile, postal deliveries were made to all sections of Montreal today as rented trucks handled mail for the third consecutive day since the government took over the service.

Post office officials said the rented vehicles are doing "just more than 50 per cent" of the work previously provided by a private contractor.

The two-month postal dispute has cost the post office about $3,000,000.

Violence erupted in the dispute again Thursday afternoon when six trucks and an escorting security car were attacked and one man was injured.

SOGGY SNOW HITS QUEBEC

MONTREAL (CP) — A heavy, 24-hour snowfall ended as suddenly as it began early today, leaving Montreal under six inches of snow and slush.

The spring storm which moved into southern Quebec from Lake Erie Wednesday morning caused between 300 and 400 minor car accidents in and around Canada's biggest city.

Williston-Benguet Meeting 'Incredible'

By BRUCE YEMEN

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett today described as "incredible" and "unbelievable" a meeting which may take place Saturday in Vancouver between Resources Minister Ray Williston and a lawyer for Benguet Corp.

"What power has Benguet got to pull a cabinet minister over to Vancouver for a meeting?" Barrett asked of the foreign company whose gambling interests in the Bahamas have led to the provincial government stalling a proposed development of recreation facilities in the Cypress Bowl area of West Vancouver.

Williston said today he will attend the meeting if he is invited. It is understood that West Vancouver Mayor Alex Forst is also expected to attend.

ALLEGED LINKS

The opposition has asked repeatedly for the government to say clearly that Benguet is unwelcome in B.C. because of its gambling connections and other alleged links with organized crime including bribing of government officials in the Bahamas.

Benguet took over a B.C. company called Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources last fall for $1 million in the controversial ski development on leased Crown land.

After a public uproar over the Benguet firm's reputation and apparent plans for a huge residential subdivision in the bowl, Williston and Premier Bennett announced the project was being suspended.

AWAITS REPORT

Williston has said in the legislature he has had no reason so far to change his view that Benguet is not welcome in the project but maintained that a report on the company had not yet been given to him by the attorney-general's department.

He said the promoters of the Cypress Bowl project have been given until May to arrange acceptable financing but also said that, as far as the government is concerned, the promoters don't own any leases in the Bowl because of an administrative oversight in the lands department.

Public Transit Subsidies—Common Sense or Outrage?

By JOHN MIKA
(Last of a series)

Local councils are not noted for artistic talent but periodically they perform a fascinating dance — sticking heads into sand and waving on high for all to see another portion of anatomy where their heads should be.

The inspiration for this self-blinded gyration is the same for both ostriches and aldermen — fear. But at least the bird has pretty feathers.

What the aldermen of all councils fear is the responsibility of operating a money-losing transit system, reasoning that poor service is better than civic subsidy.

The latest dance occurred only last month in the city when an alderman suggested the validity of that fear should be examined — and drew only a "gasp of dismay" from the rest of council at such heresy.

But how much subsidy would be needed? Would it be justified? Could it be reduced by civic operation? Would its cost be outweighed by savings in more rational planning of transportation services? Where could subsidies come from? Are the people interested?

So far the dismayed councils have been too busy gasping to ask.

The capital region's bus system loss estimate for the fiscal year ending this month is $750,000.

The new fare increase — raising adult fares to 25 cents cash April 1 — is estimated to add a net $275,000 of new revenue.

The provincial government gives a $2,000,000 annual subsidy for transit losses and, being approximately one-fifth of the combined total, the Greater Victoria bus system could expect to receive at least $400,000 annually as its share if taken over by the local municipalities.

That would leave a total operating deficit of $75,000 to be shared by the capital region's municipalities if they took over the system this year.

Because labor costs form such a high proportion of operating costs, the bus system deficit could be expected to climb in future but municipal control in itself could slow this cost increase substantially.

Remember, B.C. Hydro is running the bus system purely as a holding operation and is not even considering methods of increasing business because it wants to get rid of the fleet.

Despite that — and apparently not even known by most civic officials — the well-known bus passenger decline over the decades "bottomed out" three years ago and is beginning to climb back even with an uninterested board of directors.

In the 1966-67 year, the local system carried an all-time low of 8,619,835 paying passengers, B.C. Hydro transit manager H. R. Halls revealed in an interview.

The following year it pulled up to 8,720,100 and last year hopped to 9,011,953. The current year's final tabulations are expected to show another small increase.

"It's simply that congestion downtown is getting so bad and population density is slowly rising that there is a natural countercurrent to transit," explains Hall.

There is a growing volume of literature which shows things like fares held down to 25 cents, express scheduling, air conditioning, carpeting, more comfortable seats and room and even brighter interior decor in buses have enabled a determined transit operation to vigorously promote a comeback in many small and medium-sized cities.
